

FREDERICTON
WOMAN HONORED
BY BRYN MAWR

Miss Mary K. Tibbetts
Was First Woman
U.N.B. Graduate

Set a Precedent

U.S. College for Women to Observe 50th Anniversary of Founding

In the year 1886 the Legislature of this province passed a law which characterized a woman as "a person" and enabled her to enter the University of New Brunswick. Prior to that, women were not permitted to attend the university. Miss Mary K. Tibbetts, formerly of this city, who pioneered in the cause of her sex, and was largely instrumental in having this law passed, will be honored along with other of her classmates of the first graduating class of Bryn Mawr Ladies College at Philadelphia, at the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of that college which takes place on November 1 and 2.

Miss Tibbetts is now teaching in the Hyde school at Hyde Park in Boston. As the first woman graduate of the University of New Brunswick she received her B.A. in the year 1889 and her Honorary B.A. from this university in the year 1914. She is a cousin of Rt. Rev. Bishop Ralph Sherman of Calgary, and a cousin also of Francis J. Sherman, the famous New Brunswick poet. She is a member of a brilliant family and her personal career has been equally brilliant.

Miss Tibbetts will attend the 50th anniversary celebration of Bryn Mawr as a member of the first graduating class from that institution, and will also carry with her the congratulations and greetings of the University of New Brunswick Alumnae Society to Bryn Mawr College on its fiftieth anniversary.

Miss Tibbetts took a special course in English at Bryn Mawr and has been residing in Boston and vicinity for a number of years.

The particular instance of the provincial legislature passing the law enabling women to enter the University of New Brunswick, is noteworthy in Miss Tibbetts' career, in that she had passed the matriculation examinations but was refused permission to enter college. She protested, claiming that she had every right to enter the college. It was partially on Miss Tibbetts' agitation and partly on the part of other equally courageous women that the legislature finally saw the necessity of passing the law. Prior to this women were not on the statute books as "persons."

NO DECISION GIVEN

The Maritime Intercollegiate debating team of J. Ernest Richardson, Halifax, and William B. Morrissey, Newcaste, debated with the University of Maine team at Orono, Maine, last evening in a no-decision debate. David S. Brown of Ellsworth and Leo Leberman of Bangor, Maine, represented the Maine team. The resolution was "that the so-called more advanced nations should leave the so-called backward nations to work out their own political and economic salvation". The Maritime team upheld the negative side of the argument.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS VISIT

The regular meeting of the Fredericton Lodge No. 6, Knights of Pythias took place last evening at the Loyalist building on Queen Street. The evening was featured by a fraternal visit from lodges of Woodstock, Hartland, Juniper, St. Stephen, St. Andrews and Marysville, about two hundred being present. After the business of the lodge a program consisting of dances, songs, and speeches was carried out. A social hour was spent and refreshments were served. Emmerson Skene, chancellor commander, was in the chair and the entertainment proved one of the most enjoyable to be held by the lodge for a long time.

Valuable Prizes Attract Attention of Local Ladies

The second of the series of weekly cooking contests put on by The Daily Mail took place last evening and the weekly prizes were awarded. The competition was very keen and it took the judges over three hours to decide the winners. During this time between seven o'clock and ten o'clock the phones at the Maritime Electric Company's office where The Daily Mail's judging took place kept constantly ringing by people who wanted to know how The Mail Cooking contest was going and who was winning. It reminded one of an election night. There were large numbers in front of the windows watching the ladies inside judging the fine display of cooking and also admiring the handsome and useful prizes displayed in the show windows.

Everybody said that it was the most beautiful display of cooking seen anywhere in years. Every article sent in was of a very high order and there were over sixty entries in last night's contest.

The entries were arranged by numbers, each article being numbered before being passed along to the judges. The judges included Mrs. B. H. Hagerman, H. S.; Mrs. Kenneth R. Brown, B. H. S.; Miss Mary McMullen, B. Sc.; Miss Jean Gillis, H. S. Three weekly prizes were awarded by the judges, each article being judged by points. There were also several honorable mentions. The list of winners were as follows:—

1st.—Mrs. R. C. Cullil, Chocolate Cake.

2nd.—Miss Greta E. Crowdown, 66 Charlotte Street, Scotch Cakes.

3rd.—Mrs. Jas. Kirkpatrick, Lemon Pie.

The prizes this time included two pairs of silk stockings, donated by Fred Barnes, the new dry goods store; large Pyrex pie plate, donated by E. M. Young's hardware; lady's handworked apron, donated by the Novelty Shop.

In addition to the weekly intermediate prizes, given each week the winners of prizes and honorable mention are in line for the grand prizes which will be awarded at the close of the contest. These include an electric cooking range, a case of silverware, a ton of coal, a wrist watch, a permanent wave, an assortment of fruit, and a dry cleaning service.

The contest will be continued each week for twelve weeks. At the close, the grand prizes will be awarded. Any lady, married or single, may enter. It costs nothing to enter and the only thing one has to do is to cook something—anything—and send or bring it to the Maritime Electric Store before five o'clock each Wednesday afternoon. Put your name and address on the parcel. After the articles have been judged you may either have them back or they will be sent to the Children's Home.

Energy and Enterprise
Might Make it Industry
Thinks Local Man

The little acorn grew into a mighty oak, and the little butternut which grows in considerable profusion throughout this part of York County, might grow into a regular industry given a little energy and enterprise on the part of anybody. At least this is the opinion of David Rice, of this city, who sells quite a lot of butternuts in the local market.

Mr. Rice, along with a number of others, have been selling butternuts this fall for 25 cents a peck. But the local man remembers a time when Wilmot Guion of Springhill was well on the way to making butternuts into a "best seller." He used to pay the kids in that vicinity for collecting the delectable nut and then sell them by the barrel to interests in the United States. They went like hot cakes and he got as high as $15 a barrel for them!

The Fredericton man remembers it well for he was one of the youngsters at the time who used to go up in the Guion barn and treat barefoot over the butternuts in the dry-kiln process that was in vogue then.

Used For Dyes

Mr. Rice informs us that while the butternut is one of the most tasty of nuts, its chief value is in its dye properties. The dye from butternut is
