BOUQUETS FOR THE MAIL

Our friend Bro. C. C. Avar of the Sackville Tribune does not always agree with this paper, but we appreciate the following bouquet regarding The Daily Mail, which comes to us today in his bright journal. We appreciate it all the more because it comes from one who has long been considered as one of the brightest journalists in the Eastern provinces and whose various publications at Sackville are always read with interest. Mr. Avar is a hard hitter at times as was demonstrated in the recent provincial election campaign when he did wonderful service for his party. Mr. Avar's own front page articles in The Tribune are features in Maritime Journalism. They are the first thing which we read when the exchanges come in. Therefore bouquets from Mr. Avar are all the more appreciated.

Under the heading, "Jimmy" Has Infused New Life Into The Daily Mail. The Tribune says:

"Since taking over The Daily Mail, of Fredericton, N. B., Mr. J. L. Neville—better known as "Jimmy"—has infused new life into that publication. Mr. Neville, who has had many years of newspaper experience, writes well. You may not always agree with him and at times you may feel like "snatching him bald headed," but upon later reflection you will likely conclude that Jimmy's caustic pen had struck a sore spot, which needed drastic treatment. More people are reading The Mail today than ever before and I am willing to stake what little reputation I have that The Mail will continue to grow in circulation and influence.

"In his newspaper work Mr. Neville has had the valuable assistance of Mrs. Neville, who in addition to looking well to the ways of her household, is able to gather social news, which the people of Fredericton and vicinity read with unusual interest.

"Go to it, Old Boy, I like to read your front page editorials."

NO DICTATORS ALLOWED

The most promising political note from Ecuador in 10 years was that which resisted the ignominious outcome of an attempted coup d'etat by President Juan Ibarra.

This gentleman was elected in 1933 following the revolutionary disturbances of 1932 and the subsequent deposing of President Martinez Mera. His term normally would have run until 1938, but, for some reason unfathomable at this distance, and with the information now at hand, he preferred to venture the attempt to make his tenure permanent. He dissolved Congress, in defiance of the Constitution, and declared himself dictator.

The new regime appears, however, to have lasted just about 10 minutes. The Army, prompted presumably by congressional leaders, poured into Quito, brushed aside the police, who had supported the coup d'etat, and threw Senor Ibarra into his own jail, where he now is.

It is not easy to interpret political, or other, news from the Equatorial Republic, where they make the so-called Panama hats, call them Jipijapa, and, on top of that, pronounce it Hee-yeh-hoppa. However, what seems promising in the incident just reviewed is the fact that the overthrow of the attempted dictatorship seems not to have been the work of the usual rivalry in a ruling clique, but rather the product of genuine popular insistence on the right to popular government.

No rival candidate for the office of president is mentioned in the dispatches, but it is related that after the Army had done its good work, the people of Quito filled the streets, shouting "Viva la Constitution." If Ecuador continues to treat its over-ambitious Presidents as it has treated Senor Ibarra, the Constitution really will Viva.

DEAN POUND ON THE BAR

On behalf of the United States law schools, Dean Pound of Harvard confesses their failure to contribute to a needed improvement of criminal law and its administration. To the American Bar Association at Los Angeles, the Dean pointed out that every influence in legal education steers the ambitious and superior student to commercial or business practice.

The ablest professors cluster in these courses, the distinguished writers of textbooks devote themselves to the law's civil side. The schools, says the Dean, do virtually nothing to develop leadership in a department of the law in which it is sorely lacking, and thus have assisted it to become a wayward sister of the profession, scorned by the laity and the "respectable" bar.

It may be that something helpful would grow out of ceasing to suppose that the "respectable" bar is unanimously and invariably respectable. Such a notion is contrary to the experience and observation of intelligent laymen. The histories of many a receivership in recent times, the organization of unsubstantial companies the stretching out of utility rate litigation over unconscionable periods of time suggest to the onlooker as low a conception of ethics and the pursuit of justice as the criminal bar is apt to produce. Sometimes there is not a great deal to choose between civil and criminal trespassers on the rights of others, nor between their apologists in the law.

The bar associations have aimed strong talk of late at the lawyer-criminal, and it is hoped this crusading spirit will not stop with resolutions. But the plaintiff at equity is expected to appear in court with clean hands. The case of the respectable bar would have more weight with the judiciary if it abandoned the assumption that the only shysters are those confining themselves to criminal practice. The shyster mind can be seen at work in larger legal matters than the defense of a thoroughly guilty hoodlum.

Dean Pound's plea for more leadership in the law's criminal side recognizes a deficiency in legal education. But any real improvement in the quality of justice will not stop with one set of practitioners. It will entail a new spirit in many in the "respectable" bar and in the public that retains them.

SNAPSHOTS

Speaking about rake-offs, who gets it in the oyster industry?

It must be just pure cussedness that prompts people to chop wood at midnight.

The monument to the old 104th N.B. Regiment, to be unveiled here next month, is not to glorify war but to honour heroes who DEFENDED our Country against invaders.

Christmas is less than four months away.

Fish prices are excessive because there are too many men who run no risks, physical or fiscal.

Good brakes prevent bad breaks.

It is only natural that sweatshops should be in bad odor.

The vigilant who reported the lady driver for passing a vehicle on the bridge, might give attention to more serious things such as speeding illegible number plates, "one-eyed" cars, etc.

Sea fishermen do not net the gross proceeds of their catch.

The Sheffield youth who drives a truck should be careful when pulling out from the curbs. He shot out from the side of Queen Street today without warning and came near doing considerable damage.

Those who expected to wake up the morning after the provincial election and find free school books on the doorstep will have to wait until the government gets around to it. They can't do everything at once. Give them a chance.

HOLLAND TAKING MORE GOODS FROM CANADA

Holland took from Canada more wheat, buckwheat, oats, flour, fresh apples, undressed furs, salmon, bronze and used bags for the first six months of this year as compared with last, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Decreases are recorded in fish meal, automobile tires, linseed cake, building board, sulphite pulp, copper, soap, pitch pine, unexposed photographic film. There was a total increase in imports from Canada as between the periods mentioned of 13.2 per cent. Principal exports from Holland to Canada in point of quantity are rope, twine and sisal; paints (dry and paste); linen and cotton rags, plants, dextrine. Canadian figures show a substantial increase in imports into Canada of goods from Holland.

TO BE HERE FOR PICNIC

It was learned here today that J. L. Isley, K.C., M.P.P. of Nova Scotia, will be here next Monday to attend the monster Liberal picnic at Maple Glen Farm. Mr. Isley is now practicing law at Halifax and is well known in this city.

Each ceremony is carefully planned and intelligently administered. And each service is a fair-minded business arrangement. We believe that no tribute should be exacted from those who grieve.

OUTSTANDING IN DRAMATIC EFFORTS IN CANADA

It is of special interest to note that in the list of names singled out as outstanding in their effort on behalf of drama in Canada appear the names of two popular and well known citizens of Fredericton. The name of Mrs. T. C. Barker has been closely associated with dramatic art ever since she came to Fredericton as a bride at the close of the war. Mrs. Barker previous to her marriage was a student at the London School of Dramatic Art under Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree which numbers among its graduates Sir F. R. Benson, well known Shakespearean actor, and Matheson Lang who completed two Canadian tours and found favor with Canadian audiences.

Since coming to Fredericton Mrs. Barker was instrumental in producing twenty-one plays including three musical comedies, the proceeds of some of which paid for the portable X-ray for the Victoria Public Hospital and generous assistance was given to the Hospital Aid as well as to Saint Andrew's Presbyterian Church. During the war Mrs. Barker as a member of an entertainment company, devoted her talent to the hospitals in England for the entertainment of wounded soldiers.

R. E. D. Cattle holder of the chair of Classics at U.N.B. has long been a promoter of dramatic art in the Capital. On several occasions he has produced Shakespearean and other classical productions and has in many ways given of his talent and knowledge for the betterment of the student body and others in the city.

Professor Cattley was one of the sponsors of the Classical Organization which met for the first time in Fredericton last month. The list which was chosen by the British Columbia Drama Festival Association Inc. includes The Earl of Bessborough, Margaret Anglin, of Ottawa; J. A. Aylen, Ottawa; Mrs. Theodore Barker, Fredericton; Prof. R. E. D. Cattley, Fredericton; Joseph Dassault, Quebec; Omer Godbout, Quebec; Hon. Vincent Massey, Toronto; Roy Mitchell, Hart House, Toronto; and Lady Tupper of Winnipeg.

NEEDY TO BE PAID TO ATTEND SCHOOL

WASHINGTON, August 27—The Youth Administration will pay bright boys and girls six dollars a month to go to high school.

Regulations outlining the kind of part-time work to be provided more than 200,000 U. S. high school students beginning September 1 were issued yesterday.

"In return for high school assistance, these students benefitting by the program must do socially desirable work which could not otherwise be performed, such as clerical work, library assistance, etc." it said.

The regulations required that beneficiaries come from families on relief in May.

PRIMITIVE INDIANS HAD "DICE" GAMES

LINCOLN, Neb., August 27—A primitive cry such as "papoose needum wampum" probably rang over the plains of prehistoric Nebraska long before ivory dice rolled into the lives of civilized people.

A. T. Hill, field archaeologist for the Nebraska Historical Society, reported the finding of plum stones with markings like those on dice while excavating Indian relics. He believes that they were used in an ancient game of chance.

He also found peculiarly shaped rocks which apparently were hurled at targets in a game similar to horseshoes.

Returning prosperity is ironing out any problems which South Africa may have had with regard to her railways. Earnings for the four weeks ending June 22nd increased approximately $661,480. Earnings for the period amounted to approximately $10,586,980.

OUR MAIL BAG

U. N. B.

Editor, Daily Mail,
Fredericton, N. B.

Dear Sir:

Some person here tells me that The Daily Mail has recently discussed military training at U. N. B. would you please send me the papers in which you refer to this matter.

Is this a good college? Is it a fact that there is compulsory military drill at U. N. B.? What do you think of U. N. B. as against a denominational colleges?

Yours Truly,

FATHER.

Moncton, N. B., August 25, 1935.

NOTE: (In reply to the above—We cannot supply you with the papers in which The Daily Mail discussed this question. These issues have been sold out. Re compulsory military drill at U. N. B.—Yes it is absolutely true that students are required to pass in military drill for at least two years of their undergraduate course. (See regulation IV page 23 U. N. B. Calendar 1935). College professors are paid officers of the militia Dept. of Canada and the uniforms and other equipment are furnished by the Militia department of Canada.

The University of New Brunswick is a splendid old institution with a competent faculty and has an excellent record as a college. This applies to every professor including the president who is counted as an expert teacher in mathematics.

In comparison with denominational colleges this is a matter of personal opinion. Acadia, Mount Allison, Saint Joseph's and Saint Thomas are all excellent denominational institutions. If the University of New Brunswick had a master of discipline, who would keep a more strict watch on the students than seems possible to do at present it would be an ideal place. Another improvement would be some one to boost the college in the press and elsewhere. Courteous treatment from the business office towards those who are seeking information is always a factor which is cultivated in institutions of this kind. Universities now-a-days need boosting, courtesy, and business methods as well as any other concern. Modern methods prevail in modern institutions. On the whole The Daily Mail is pleased to recommend U. N. B. You can make no mistake in this college. — Ed. The Mail).

GERMANY CHIEF SOURCE OF SUPPLY FOR FRANCE

Germany has ousted the United States as the chief source of supply of goods to France. The United States takes second place with Great Britain third, Belgium and Luxembourg fourth, Australia fifth, principally wool. Imports from the United States dropped over one-third for the first six months this year as compared with last. Canada rose from 17th position to 13th and registered the greatest increase as regards any nation, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Of 39 countries listed, imports from 31 decreased and only 5 countries registered an increase.
