

Revival of Agriculture Stimulates Other Trades

In countries where agriculture is predominant, other industries respond sympathetically to any rise or fall in the former. This is clearly shown in the case of Australia where steady clearances of primary products, such as wool, wheat and butter have stimulated the retail trade and secondary industries, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

CANON SHATFORD'S DEATH A NATIONAL CALAMITY TO ALL

(Frederic Yorston, Editor-in-Chief, The Montreal Standard, in the Halifax Herald...)

"The news of Canon Shatford's death flashed over the Dominion caused something like consternation. It was in the nature of a national calamity."

"Nova Scotians can hardly realize the large place this valiant and good man held in the big heart of Canada's metropolis."

"Years ago Montreal took this warrior for righteousness to her heart and year by year his fame steadily increased until today many thousands will mourn with wet eyes the passing of this courageous philanthropic messenger of God."

"The news of his illness, which spread about the city early this summer caused general grief and a vast concourse of well wishers sent him personal letters of love and encouragement. All hoped that his indisposition was but temporary and his recovery would be speedy. It was felt that if he could get to his beloved Conquerall Bank all would be well."

"This little man Canon Shatford had a curious grip on men's affections. His labors were enormous. No cause ever asked him for assistance in vain. His purse was ever at the service of the city's poor."

"This little man Canon Shatford had a curious grip on men's affections. His labors were enormous. No cause ever asked him for assistance in vain. His purse was ever at the service of the city's poor."

"Hee lifted up his voice at all times for the needy and the submerged."

"Like David of old he battled the Goliaths of a great city's vice, and wickedness. He asked no reward but that of his conscience. In him, all the great service clubs had a strong and able champion. Kiwanis, Rotary, Lion's clubs all called on him year after year for help and never in vain."

"The Masonic Order loved and revered him."

"The sailors of the port found in him a true friend, the Roman Catholic Church admired and respected him. The Salvation Army found in the little canon a worthy fighter who loved to battle their cause."

"In curling circles he was known and revered especially at the board of the famous Thistle Club he was wont to entertain the members with his wit, learning and eloquence."

"In the beautiful Church of Saint James the Apostle he was idolized. He held forth Sunday after Sunday to vast throngs of devout worshippers and when the canon asked for a big collection the many plates overflowing with bank notes were always there to rejoice his heart. At Eastertide his services were an institution in the religious life of the community."

"The packed church could never hold the people eager to get his message and the congregation filled overflow meetings and spilled out on the street to the very curb stones."

"It is a tragedy that Montreal will never more hear his nervous, earnest, high-pitched voice as he pled for the underdog whose champion he ever was."

"His yearly vacations to Nova Scotia were as the very breath and strength for the heavy duties of his parish work from the strong Atlantic air and it was his great pleasure to tell his people of his holiday in magnificent discourses, redolent of vibrant sea life, the crash of Atlantic rollers, the brilliant sunshine and the cries of the sea gulls."

"Callers at his residence will not soon forget this extraordinary little minister as he paced his study floor busily memorizing a discourse that was soon to electrify his congregation."

"In the pulpit he was original and convincing, taking his smiles and metaphors from everyday life and from nature of which he was ever a devout, a penetrating and reverent student."

"Few in this sorrowful hour will question the statement that he was Montreal's best beloved pastor and in the love of his own people and of all classes of the community he reigned supreme."

"He passed at Conquerall Bank which he so greatly loved. Nova Scotia mourning today a son of whom she was justly proud, and in the long, long list of those men whom she has given to service in other parts of the Dominion the name of Canon Shatford will ever shine brightly as an inspiration to others."

Japan's Chemical Industry Inter-Related With Textiles

The textile and chemical industries of Japan have become interdependent, due to the requirements for caustic soda in the manufacture of rayon. Any setback in the output of rayon is reflected in the chemical industry. Rayon manufacturing in Japan recently suffered a depression which in turn has curtailed the soda industry in that country. Japan's rise as a chemical producing nation has been phenomenal. In 1931 she imported nearly 100,000 tons of soda ash and caustic soda with no exports, whereas last year imports had been reduced by more than half and, in addition, 28,000 tons were exported, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

BEYOND IMAGINATION

A bulletin issued by the National Museum of Canada says that "field work during the year was featured by the collection of two incomplete skeletons of mosasaurs dug from clay beds northwest of Morden, where they lay buried for an estimated period of 60,000,000 years."

Figures like that make the average man feel like an insect. But scientists claim that the earth has existed as a planet for from 1,500,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 years. These are meaningless figures. Such a period of time transcends the imagination. Even the poet who "saw eternity the other night as a great ring of pure and endless light" would find himself baffled by such an estimate of time.

Astronomers must sometimes feel like insects, too. Certainly laymen do when they read that the nearest star is perhaps 25,500,000,000,000 miles away. In fact the favorite units for measuring star distances are "light-years"—in terms of miles a six followed by twelve zeros; and "parsecs" a 1 followed by twelve zeros—or over 200,000 times the distance of the earth from the sun.

There are said to be perhaps 50,000,000,000 stars in our galactic system and this system is merely one among millions of such which form the universe.

No wonder it was exclaimed of old, "What is man that Thou art mindful of him?"

It pays to advertise in The Daily Mail.
