SKATING TRAGEDY TAKES TWO LIVES

ST. BONIFACE, Man., Nov. 5 — First skating tragedy of the season here cost the lives of two teen-age boys while a third narrowly escaped a similar fate.
Plunged into the icy water of the Seine River near its junction with the Red River separately Winnipeg and St. Boniface, Robert Collins, 17 and Raymond Burns, 15, drowned Saturday afternoon. Pete Semonyk, 14, narrowly missed being plunged into the water as he skated with the pair.
Semonyk, risking his own life, crawled to the edge of the hole and tried to pull Collins and Burns from the water but cracking ice forced him to crawl back.

DIONNE QUINTS ARE WORTH NEARLY $400,000

It Costs Them Nearly One Thousand Dollars Per Month to Live

(MacLean's Magazine)

It costs the Dionne quintuplets nearly $1,000 a month to live, but young as they are, the famous five not only earn that sum but a great deal more. This statement is made by Claire Wallace in an article entitled: "What's Ahead for the Quints?" in the November 15 number of MacLean's Magazine, in which she tells not only the present huge earnings of the Famous Five but also points out what they are likely to earn in the near future. The article states in part:

"If the famed daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dionne had been born as two, three or even four, their lives would have gone on very much as other children. Being five, that is impossible. Being five, they are worth a great deal of money, and will be worth more every day they can remain five. As their health is so important to their money-producing possibilities—if one died or was discovered to be not quite normal, their pictures would not be in such demand and their earning power would be cut considerably—they cannot be brought up as other girls, allowed the freedom of mixing with other children and taking chances on getting ordinary colds or childish diseases.

"Money-making and upbringing, the rocks upon which the relatives and guardians have split. Here they have not yet been able to reach an agreement, and only time will solve the difficulties. Oliva Dionne believes he should have control of the babies' accumulated funds. While the first board of guardians was in existence—consisting of Oliva, his father Oliver, who has since dropped out of the battle and is living quietly in Callander, W. H. Anderson, G. K. Morrison and Dr. Dafoe—the quintuplets' bank account mounted to $28,000, which, Oliva thinks, was pretty good. When the Government stepped in last spring to take charge and appoint its own board of guardians, the latter accepted contracts for the quintuplets that would bring them $200,000 in the course of a few months or a year. Thus the Government is satisfied with the present situation financially, and looks forward to doubling and trebling the babies' wealth within a short time.

"The present financial position of the 18-month-old babies is that, by the spring of 1936, they will have taken in $200,000 in cash on contracts signed since the Government made them its legal wards. Most of the money has already been turned in; and within a few months all will be placed to their credit. By that time, it is probable that another $100,000 will be added to the sum, particularly if the children enter the motion-picture business.

"Their money has been made by endorsing foods they use, and by allowing their names and pictures to be used for advertising purposes. Early in the life of the quintuplets, the Newspaper Enterprises Association stepped in to capture all photograph rights. It is said they will pay the quintuplets $50,000 for this privilege, and a royalty on all photographs published. From the N. E. A. the Toronto Daily Star acquired rights to handle all pictures published in Canada, settling with the N. E. A. but also adding many thousands to the quintuplets' bank roll.

"Syrup, milk and cereal firms add now to the income; and as the needs in food and clothing grow greater, it will be possible for the five to endorse more articles and make more and more money.

"Many offers deemed unfair financially or unwise from a health standpoint, are turned down by the Government and board of guardians. Some times several a week are refused, for always the health and safety of the babies are weighed before any contracts are undertaken.

"Early in May of this year, the quintuplets' estate was valued at $150,000, gathered from such sources as the following:

"Pathe Pictures, for making two two-reel films, $7,974 paid and a balance of over $82,000 to come.
"N. E. A., for photograph rights, $3,650 paid, with more to follow.
"Toronto Daily Star, for Canadian photos, $1,598 more to follow.
"George S. Dingle, for quintuplet tea service, $15,000.
"Alexander Doll Company, for quilt dolls, $2,500.
"G. V. Thompson music publisher for quintuplet lullaby, $500.
"Carnation Milk, for testimonial $2,000.
"Lehn and Fink, for Lysol testimonial, $1,000.
"Merrill Publishing Company, $100.

Since then Pathe have made another film of the very young ladies, adding several thousands more to the swelling fund.
"Until the quintuplets were nearly a year old, their expenses were a small matter. Nurses were furnished free of charge by the Red Cross; doctors all over the world offered to assist Dr. Dafoe without fee; clothes and jewelry poured in from sympathetic and interested members of the public. (There are several hundred dollars worth of gold and silver bracelets, rings and necklaces in the guardians' safekeeping, all donated by the generous public).

"Now, as they grow older, expenses are increasing. The children pay for nurses, housekeeper and maid, two policemen, all food and clothes, as well as supporting their parents to the extent of $100 a month. The itemized account of these expenses has never been made public, and Dr. Dafoe, who has charge of it with Judge Valin, intends that it shall not be given out. Asked if it were true that the nurses are paid nearly $100 a month each, the doctor said he did not think it fair to divulge the amount of their earnings.

"They receive good money", he said, "but they have very responsible positions which keep them busy all day and a good many nights. The nearest I can say is that in wages to the staff and upkeep for their home, it costs the quintuplets nearly $1,000 a month to live. Sometimes it is a little less than that, but not often."

LORD TWEEDSMUIR

Lord Tweedsmuir will be Canada's fifty-third Governor-General, and Champlain, who ruled under the French regime from 1608 to 1635, was the first. There is a distinction, however, between Canada and the Dominion of Canada. It was Lord Monck who called upon Sir John Macdonald to form the first Dominion Government. Baron Lisgar was his successor in 1868. The Duke of Connaught, the King's uncle, was Canada's war time governor. The Duke of Devonshire served from 1916 to 1921. He was followed by Viscount Byng of Vimy, 1921-1926; Viscount Willingdon 1926-1931; and the Earl of Bessborough, 1931-1935.

In choosing the title of Tweedsmuir John Buchan paid a tribute to the border country with which he has long been associated. The silver Tweed is not a stream of commerce, like the Clyde and the Thames. He has climbed the hills and explored the remotest glens on the upper reaches of this stream, which flows down to become the boundary between Scotland and England for sixteen miles. Tweedsmuir is an upland parish in the sheep country and, like the neighboring parishes, is gradually being depopulated. The new Governor-General is a son of the manse. His mother still lives in Peeblesshire, the source of the Tweed.

Peebles is proud of the Buchans. A brother of the Governor-General is Town Clerk and his sister, who writes under the pen name of O. Douglas, has written most of her stories there. Lady Tweedsmuir also is an authoress. She has written several books for children, a play for children and also a biography "Lady Louise Stewart, her Memories and Portraits."

FALLING INCOME BIG PROBLEM AT MCGILL

Lower interest rates have reduced the income from funds invested by McGill University from 5.9 to four per cent, George C. McDonald, one of the governors of McGill told the members of the honorary advisory committee on agriculture at dinner at Macdonald College.

This question of falling income has been one of the most vexing problems that college trustees have had to deal with in recent years. The income on
