TREAT TOURISTS FAIRLY

In line with a recent editorial in The Daily Mail re tourists, we print the following from the Financial Post: "Not long ago a party of French tourists, returning from Italy, were asked by Italian officials at the frontier if they had been satisfied with their tour. They replied that they had been delighted with it but thought that they had been over-charged at some of the hotels. The officials took the addresses of the hotels and a few days later the tourists received a letter from the Italian State Tourist Office stating that their complaint had been justified and that they were being refunded a certain sum.

"It is hardly to be expected that Canada's new federal tourist bureau is sufficiently well equipped to investigate all complaints of this type and obtain refunds for tourists. Nevertheless, it is in this spirit that the bureau has been organized and will operate. Already representations have been made to hotels, railways, shops, and others coming in contact with tourists to treat them fairly, hospitably and honestly.

"The dissatisfied tourist can, by his conversation and his own resentment, do a great deal of harm. If we are going to continue to make the tourist industry a major source of revenue we have to ensure that each traveller who comes here at our invitation finds conditions at least equal to what we have promised and that he goes away singing the praises of Canada."

HONEST COLLEGIANS

Are college students more honest than they were a generation ago? The result of ballots cast by the senior class of Princeton would indicate they are.

Noel Coward was preferred to Shakespeare as a playwright, 135 to 107. That is beyond a doubt an honest verdict, no matter how it may reflect on the judgment of the Princeton upperclassmen.

Their favorite poem is Kipling's "If," which speaks poorly for class appreciation of poetry, but much for ambitious youth.

McClelland Barclay, magazine cover illustrator, was given the verdict over Rembrandt as the favorite artist of the seniors, who will have to live about 40 years more before they grow up to Rembrandt. Apparently no vote was taken on favorite composers, but this class, so free from hypocrisy, would certainly not have rated Beethoven, Bach and Brahms over Jerome Kern.

The boys voted Katharine Cornell their favorite stage actress and Ginger Rogers the preferred movie actress; it is a question of taste. "Anthony Adverse" is their favorite novel, which is a question of bad taste. But the vote, all the way, was the expression of youth, and incorruptible youth.

Princeton boys are not taking anyone's word; they are finding out for themselves. Ten years hence they will look back at this election and grin, for those who do not become bond salesmen will by that time have learned a lot.

SUCCESS PHILOSOPHY

Big business men are sometimes thought of as pessimistic, hard-boiled, grouchy drivers.

Charles M. Schwab is known as "the smiling optimist of steel." Mr. Schwab claims that his expectant, intuitive philosophy has greatly helped him reach the top of what he considers the United States' greatest industry. If this statement were made by one born in wealth, we would take it with several grains of salt. But, when it is realized that Schwab was once as poor as the poorest boy in his country, and has probably labored as hard with hands and back as 99% of the men in his section, it is a thought worth serious condition. Mr. Schwab says the depression will disappear and usher in the world's greatest period of prosperity.

GRADUATES WHOSE KNEES TREMBLE

Valedictorians and salutatorians whose knees threaten to applaud their graduation speeches need not feel that they are alone or insignificant because of their stage fright. When Dr. Albert Einstein was recently presented with the Franklin Medal, the program said he would make a speech of acceptance. He couldn't do anything but grin. The chairman eased him down by saying to the audience, "An address is not only a matter of good-will; it also rests on the knees of the gods!"

SNAPSHOTS

Some of these board committees that are paid by the day have a great time meeting and adjourning. Easy money, Eh!

The Local Improvement Committee has one member who has had considerable experience ordering pretty trees demolished along the public highway outside of the city. Hope he tries another tack inside the city.

The Daily Mail is interested in seeing the abattoir proposition go through. We would hate to see any individual be allowed to spoil something which is in the public interest.

Watch Fredericton's good looking Girl Guide band their smart looking leaders as they march through the foggy city tomorrow. Baden Powell will say that they are the best he has yet seen.

The two girls who won the watches at Shute's will each have a good time going home.

Television is reported near. This means that we may soon be able to fix the responsibility for some of those performances.

Women may fancy that they have equal rights—but you've never seen a pair of women's slacks that had as many pockets as a man's trousers.

Mrs. Emma Slipp, Sister of Maj. Good, Dies in Maine

Word has been received by Major F. A. Good of the death on June 29th at Solon, Maine, of his sister, Mrs. Emma Slipp, widow of Isaac Slipp (who was a son of Elsie Slipp of Hampstead and who afterwards settled at Jacksonville).

Mrs. Slipp was born at Jacksonville, Carleton county, daughter of the late James and Sophia Good. She spent her youth and the early portion of her married life there, but in 1913 the family removed to North Anson, Me., where she lived until recent years. Electric District Commissioners, the having resided with her daughter Mrs. Harold Starbird, of Solon, Maine.

Mrs. Slipp had a host of friends in this locality who remember her for her unfailing kindness and who most sincerely regret her death.

Besides Mrs. Starbird she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Leslie Severance, of Lynn, Mass., and a son Byron, of North Anson, Me. Major F. A. Good, Mr. Allen Good of Jacksonville, and Mrs. Chas. Comben, of Woodstock, are the surviving brothers and sister. of the government by conducting propaganda throughout the country pretending that devaluation cannot be averted.

Herriot also upheld Flandin in the chamber, pleading that extraordinary powers over currency were necessary to avert imminent disaster.

Paul Reynaud, former minister of finance and oftentimes spokesman for France's devaluationists, urged reduction of the value of the franc, emphasizing that "foreign speculators" are being lured by the French.

"Devaluation would not chase gold from the country," he said. In proof of that thesis he cited the case of Belgium, to which money returned after the belga was devalued.

Conservatives See Victory in the June Elections

SAINT JOHN, May 31—Premier Tilley spoke of his long association with the public life of New Brunswick and mentioned the large majorities which his party had obtained in previous elections. He spoke of the enthusiasm shown at recent Conservative conventions in Kings county, Albert, St. Stephen, Newcastle and other centres. He paid tribute to the calibre of the Conservative candidates.

Discussing the debt situation, he stated that all the provinces had great financial problems during the depression years, and that New Brunswick's deficit of $875,000 was much lower than those of Quebec and Nova Scotia.

He spoke of the part he had played in advocating a larger federal subsidy for the province, and stated that as a result of the White Royal Commission report, New Brunswick had received an increase in subsidy of $300,000 annually.

Dr. White stated that great savings had been effected by the various government departments. He paid tribute to the work of Premier Tilley before the White Commission. He spoke of the administration's efforts to improve conditions in the lumbering, fishery and agricultural industries.

Mr. Harrison expressed his confidence in victory for the Tilley party and instanced several of the accomplishments of the administration. He spoke of the Grand Falls development and stated that a Conservative government had been responsible for getting an American company to spend $23,000,000 in this and affiliated developments.

Commissioner McInerney discussed Old Age Pensions and pointed out that these would cost the province $425,000 yearly and could not be borne under present conditions. He stated that the real debt of the province was $40,000,000 and not $65,000,000 as was claimed by the Liberals.

The largest items in the imports of paints and varnishes in April were valued at $25,595, of which $23,367 worth came from France and $2,228 from the United Kingdom. Imports of ungummed cigarette paper in rolls was valued at $8,947, of which $8,260 worth was from the United States and smaller quantities from Italy, United States and France.

P. J. Hughes, K. C., is for the defendant.

In the case of Minnie Bell Noble married life there, but in 1913 the widow of Leighton A. Noble, vs. the family removed to North Anson, Me., Bath, Bristol and Florenceville Hydro where she lived until recent years. Electric District Commissioners, the having resided with her daughter Mrs. Harold Starbird, of Solon, Maine. Circuit Court before Mr. Justice C. D. Richards and a jury. A verdict was entered for the plaintiff for $9,000.00. Leighton A. Noble died of an electric shock from the current supplied by the department to the Noble house. From this verdict an appeal was taken to the Court of Appeal and was heard before Chief Justice Barry of the King's Bench Division, in April, 1935, and a jury. In this hearing the jury fixed the compensation at $9,504.00.

The grounds for this appeal are that the finding of the jury was perverse contrary to the judge's charge and the decision of the Court of Appeal, that the amount of damages was excessive, and that the verdict was against the evidence. Jones and Jones, Woodstock are for the defendant and P. J. Hughes for the plaintiff.

In the case of Albert Roy Fawcett et al, executors and trustees of the estate of Wm. B. Fawcett, deceased and the Acadia Products Company vs. Fred T. Tingley, action was commenced for a decree to compel the defendant to execute a certain lease as Lessee of certain lands in the county of Kings in terms of a certain indenture. The defendant did not defend the action and a judgment by default was obtained against him. The respondent, Tingley defended as to liability on the guarantee for payment of rent. P. J. Hughes, K. C., is for the

THE MACPHAIL INQUIRY OPENS AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, May 31—Miss Agnes Macphail, member of Parliament for Southern Grey, will be allowed the widest latitude in her attempt to prove that Inspector J. D. Dawson of the penitentiary branch used abusive language about her in conversation with a convict at Kingston penitentiary, Judge J. E. Daly ruled today. The judge began his inquiry as a royal commissioner into the truth of the allegation by ordering the penitentiary officials to allow Miss Macphail and her counsel to read departmental files.

The inquiry arises out of statements made by A. G. Hall, an ex-convict, who said Inspector Dawson told him "Aggie made a G....d.... fool of herself in the House of Commons."

No witnesses were called today but J. C. McRuer, counsel for Miss Macphail, made an unsuccessful attempt to widen the scope of the inquiry to all circumstances surrounding and leading up to the alleged statements. The judge said he would only concern himself with the truth of the statement.

No Other Witnesses

"Was this statement made in the presence of anyone else?" asked the judge.

"No," said Mr. McRuer. "I want to give Miss Macphail every opportunity to prove her allegation," said the judge, "but it seems to me to be going pretty far to call a lot of witnesses here who did not hear the conversation."

Mr. McRuer said he had to examine the files to obtain full information so that he could examine the witnesses as to the credibility of the two principal witnesses, Hall and Dawson.

"What have the files got to do with who is telling the truth?" asked the judge.

"The minister of justice said they were relevant," said Mr. McRuer, "and I have to get all the information in my mind."

"My whole duty as I understand it," said the judge, "is to find out which of these people is lying."

At the suggestion of R. H. Greer, K.C., commission counsel, the judge ruled Hall should not be allowed to use the files. He would not agree with Mr. Greer that Mr. McRuer should be bound to destroy any extracts he might make from the files after the inquiry ended.

"I ask leave to withdraw," said Hall. "There is no use in my attempting to go on if I am to be impeded at every step. That is the only decision a sane man could come to."

Judge Daly reminded Hall he had been subpoenaed as a witness and would have to give evidence. Apart from that it did not matter what stand he took.

Counsel for Miss Macphail after the inquiry adjourned revealed they intended to call 12 witnesses apart from Miss Macphail, Inspector Dawson and Hall. They are former warden W. B. Megloughlin and Mrs. Megloughlin; the Catholic and Protestant chaplains at Kingston penitentiary; three convicts in the penitentiary. Charles McRae, John Ison and Charles Baynes; James Tweedie, chief trade instructor at the prison; L. H. Millard, chief clerk at the prison; Guard Sands; Henri Smith of Toronto and Miss Isabel Cummings of Ottawa.

plaintiff to support appeal from decision of Chief Justice Hazen.

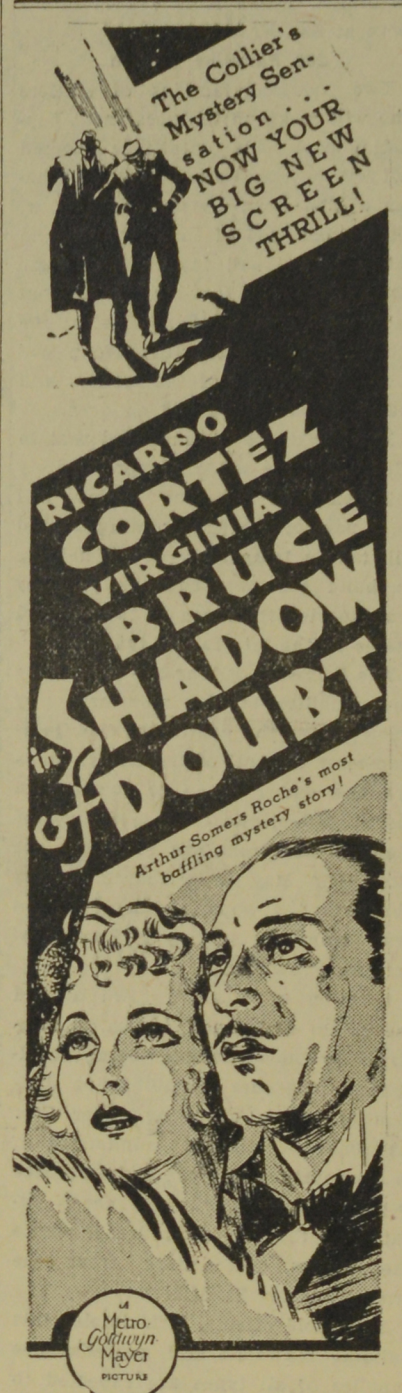

In the case of Reuben Vender vs. the town of Edmundston, a judgment was given for the defendant with costs by the learned judge of Madawaska County, the case involved the seizure by the defendant of the plaintiff's goods for payment of arrears taxes. F. Dodd Tweedie is for the plaintiff to support the appeal from the Madawaska County Court.

In the case of the King vs. Leo LeBlanc an appeal is entered against connection of the accused under the intoxicating liquor act. J. A. Creaghan is for the accused, in support of the appeal from conviction before the Police Magistrate for the town of Newcastle.

In the case of Algernon E. McSweeney, ex parte, T. T. Goodwin is for the Board of Assessors of the city of Moncton to show cause against an order nisi for mandamus.
