SEA SENSE

By

Ven. Archdeacon H. A. Cody

(Thomas D'Arcy McGee, in advocating Confederation, told his fellow Canadians that in uniting with the Maritimes they were about to recover one of their lost senses—the sense that comprehends the sea. This, then, is the first contribution of the Maritimes to the Dominion.)

"The Heritage of the Maritimes," by D. C. Harvey in "The Dalhousie Review.")

'Tis true we have never yet lost it, That mystical sense of the sea, The throb of something eternal That beats in the souls of the free, The spirit of kinship with vastness, And promise of wonders to be.

The sense of the ocean is ours, The spirit that heartens and thrills, The surge and urge of its daring, More potent than prairies and hills, The salt and the tang of its faring, That harden the nerves and the wills.

The vision of oneness is ours, And clear through the spume and the foam We sense the seaways of commerce Wherever the lordly ships roam, And view the whole world as our neighbor, At one with the port we call home.

The echoing beat of the ocean Sounds inland o'er valley and plain, And land-girt hearts of lone dwellers Respond to its mystic refrain, And sense the true spirit of kinship With men of the sea-faring strain.

of honor at a surprise party last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. P. Farrell, York street. Miss McCann who had been out to supper with friends, upon returning home was greeted by about fifty friends who had assembled to extend best wishes to Miss McCann prior to her departure from the city, for many years of enjoyment of a well earned rest. Bridge was played at twelve tables, the prize winners being Miss Cecil Gallagher, Mrs. J. M. Carten, Mrs. J. Miles Gibson and Miss Margaret Carten. At the conclusion of play delicious refreshments were served following which Mrs. F. G. Foster on behalf of the C. W. Bridge Club read an address to Miss McCann and which was accompanied by a presentation of a handsome travelling bag. At the close of the schools Miss McCann expects to leave for Deep Brook, N.S., where she will be the guest during the summer of Mrs. Ed. Powers at her summer home.

Women Writers Have Busy Day

OTTAWA, May 31—The newspaper as a cultural element was strongly emphasized to the seventh triennial convention of the Canadian Women's Press Club here this afternoon.

In a paper Miss Isabel C. Armstrong Ottawa, stressed the fact that truth involved "appreciation as well as blame."

"If honesty demands adverse criticism," said Miss Armstrong, "it should be made with sincerity, constructiveness and courtesy."

This afternoon delegates were the guests of P. D. Ross, president of The Journal Publishing Company at luncheon. This evening a reception was arranged by Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, at the Dominion Archives.

Earlier in the day the 200 delegates were received by the Governor-General and the Countess of Bessborough at Rideau Hall.

One of the speakers at the luncheon given by Mr. Ross was Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader who welcomed the press women to Canada's capital.

The convention heard J. F. B. Livesay, general manager of The Canadian Press, in a brief address on co-operative news gathering this morning

City To Proceed With Queen Street Extension Paving

The Roads and Streets committee of city council held a brief meeting this morning in the city hall with Ald. G. Willard Kitchen, chairman of the committee, presiding. Decision was made to go ahead with the paving of Queen St. from Westmorland St. to the Victoria Public Hospital, which is a "through" highway. The city council is awaiting word from the provincial government regarding this paving program, as the government is to bear part of the expense. No definite date has been set for the commencement of this work.

ors to New Brunswick in quest of sport and plan to return in July. On their recent trip they landed a number of salmon, some of which weighed in excess of twenty pounds.

Big Money In It

Mr. Manderville estimates that close to two hundred Americans have fished at different sections of the Miramichi this spring, between Boiestown and the mouth of the Renous, and have distributed a good many thousands of welcome dollars among the people. He is certain that no other section of the maritime provinces has fared so well from the tourist industry so far this season as has the Miramichi area. Mr. Manderville has catered to no less than twenty-seven anglers himself and he has more parties booked for sea trout and salmon fishing. "Northumberland County has not escaped the depression," said Mr. Manderville, "but we would be much worse off but for our sporting attractions and the enormous amount of money invested in our county by American millionaires, such as the Hills, Colgates and Pratts, who have a fondness for high class sport, and are willing to pay well for it. In this respect I can truthfully say that no county in the maritime provinces has anything on the big county of Northumberland."

HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA PRESENTS MUSICAL CONCERT IN AUDITORIUM—REPEAT TONIGHT

Small Audience Hears Well Trained Youthful Musicians Present Works of Famous Composers—Home and School Association Made Presentation To C. B. Burden, Director—Several Vocal and Instrumental Solos.

The High School Orchestra, under the direction of C. B. Burden, presented a musical concert last night in the spacious auditorium of the High School. Just a fair-sized audience heard the orchestra play various selections from the works of such famous composers as Tchaikowsky, Gluck, Wagner, Mendelssohn, and others. Each selection brought thunderous applause from the well-pleased listeners. Several vocal and instrumental solos and duets by the youthful artists brought much applause also. It is hoped that more will attend the concert when it is repeated tonight.

The program was made up of two parts with an intermission between. During intermission the girls of High School sold candy. Immediately following the close of Part I C. B. Burden, the director, was presented a cheque from the Home and School Association for the work that he has done in connection with the training of the orchestra. The presentation was made by Mrs. A. E. Mathewson, on behalf of the association. Mrs. Mathewson paid high tribute to the director saying that he is doing a great work for the school and the community in bringing the students along in such a capable way. She paid tribute to the orchestra and expressed the hope that it would continue to remain in existence in the High School. Mr. Burden generously turned the cheque over to the orchestra toward its maintenance fund.

The Program

The program opened with "O Canada" rendered by the orchestra. Following the opening number the orchestra played the march, "Tannhauser" by Richard Wagner, and the overture "Garden of Eden" by George D. Barnard. George Little, the piano soloist of the evening, gave a splendid presentation of the sprightly "Butterfly" by Lavalley. Other soloists were Miss Dorothy Thomas and Miss Kaye Horwood. Miss Thomas, who possesses a very fine quality contralto voice, sang "Who is Sylvia" by Schubert and "Because" by Tschernacher. Miss Horwood who needs no introduction as a violinist played first the beautiful Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet and the light "Norwegian Dance" by Edward Grieg. A clarinet duet "Mariment Polka", rendered by Reid VanDine and Wilfred Smith brought much applause from the inspired audience.

Other renditions by the orchestra, included "Youth Triumphant", by Robert W. Gibb, "Sullivan's Operatic Gems", "Sounds from England", "I Would That My Love", "Spirit of the Age", "Selections from Faust" by Gounod, "Coronation March" by G. Meyerbeer, "The Heavens are Telling" by Haydn, and in conclusion a medley by Irish Melodies arranged by Al. Hayes. The string ensemble of the orchestra played "Chanson Triste" by Tchaikowsky and "Danse Musette" by Gluck.
