

W. F. BULL, TRADE COMMISSIONER, IN CITY TODAY

Will Meet New Brunswick Shippers Here Tonight

Addressed Rotary Club

Says Better Quality Essential to Increase Trade

W. F. Bull, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner at Port of Spain, Trinidad, is in the city today for the purpose of meeting New Brunswick shippers in the hope of suggesting to them methods of increasing their exports to the West Indies. Mr. Bull's visit to this city was sponsored by the Fredericton Board of Trade and the trade commissioner will meet the members of the board and shippers tonight at the City Hall. Previous to the meeting in City Hall a banquet is to be held by the local board of trade in honor of the shippers and trade commissioner. Mr. Bull addressed the Rotary Club at its regular luncheon today at noon. He spoke to them of the general trade conditions between the West Indies and Canada. Mr. Bull has been acting as trade commissioner in Port of Spain for four years. Two years previous to that he was assistant trade commissioner in New York. For a year after graduating from Toronto University with a degree in trade and commerce, he remained at Ottawa where he studied in the department of trade and commerce. He visited this city about six years ago for a short time while on his first official tour of the Dominion.

The visitor conferred with newspapermen this morning in the office of G. C. Cunningham, local agent for the Eastern Canada Potato Marketing Board.

In speaking of the export of potatoes from Canada to the West Indies, Mr. Bull stated that Trinidad, Barbados and British Guiana, his own district in the Southern colonies, consume about 20,000,000 pounds of potatoes annually. Most of these are imported from Canada he said. The potato consumption of the people there (Continued on Page Five)

U. S. MOOSE HUNTERS HERE FOR SHOOTING

White Layer of Frost on Ground This Morning in Central N. B.

Expect Good Season

Influx of Sportsmen Hopeful of Great Success

Old Man Weather has come around to the viewpoint of the sportsmen and after distributing warm sunshine around for the past two weeks he has now put that cold tang in the air which all hunters love, and which—believe it or not—seems to add very much to the hunters' surety of aim, and to his enthusiasm generally.

It is a fact that is sometimes disregarded that most of the prize moose are shot during the coldest weather, on days when there is frost on the ground and a nip in the air. Perhaps it is that the "forest monarch" himself likes to take those long loping runs on days like this. Or perhaps it is just in the atmosphere that hunters should hunt moose in such weather, and that this big game animal should choose this time of year to do his strutting and try the sportsmen's skill. Later in the fall of course, the prevalence of snow makes it an ideal time for the hunter to track his quarry and bag a giant moose.

Matter of Taste

While this latter is a commonly accepted time for the hunter to seek out a moose, there are some who abhor such tactics, believing that tracking a moose in the snow and giving the game animal hardly a chance to escape is not good sportsmanship. However that be, it is invariably done and since the moose season extends from October 20 to November 20, there is almost invariably snow on the ground during the last days of the moose hunting season.

It is a fact also that many hunters take advantage of this and make a rush for the woods as soon as the snow has blanketed the earth. It appears to be all a matter of sportsmen's ethics. Some would and some wouldn't.

Aside from the ethics of sportsmanship as regards hunting the season for moose hunting is a lively one for the stores carrying hunting paraphernalia and hardly any of the merchants in the capital will bother to learn of ye hunter's viewpoint on sportsmanship so long as he visits the shop and leaves some of his money. It's natural forgivable fallacy on the part of smaller merchants who are forced to be more concerned with making a living than worrying about the ethics of moose hunting.

At any rate the open season for moose is here and already there has been a minor influx of United States sportsmen bent on getting a shot at Mr. Moose. As the season lasts until November 20 many of the sports are biding their time until later in the season, when less foliage will react to the benefit of the hunter. While so far there has been emphasis on deer and game birds, from now on it will be the monarch of New Brunswick's big game hunting forests that will attract the eye of the sportsmen.

INVESTIGATE CONDITIONS

A committee appointed by the University of New Brunswick Senate to investigate conditions at the office of "The Brunswickian" and also to see about improvements to the Ladies reading room at the college, examined the premises yesterday. It was found that "The Brunswickian" office has now been cleaned up satisfactorily and the intention now is to place fluolium on the floor. Improvements to the ladies' reading room also will be made shortly. The investigation followed upon complaints by the Senate that the facilities of the latter were not up to date, and that "The Brunswickian" office had not been kept in proper condition.
