resent a fine type of New Brunswick citizen.

Mr. Doone formerly belonged to Devon and is a brother of Mrs. A. J. McEvoy, wife of Mayor McEvoy, of Devon. Mr. Doone after graduation from the local High School pursued further studies at the University of New Brunswick and at St. Francis Xavier, Antigonish. After being admitted to the Bar he opened a law office in St. Stephen, but closed it up in 1914, when war broke out, and went to the front with his regiment. On returning home he opened an office at Black's Harbor and also became connected with the executive staff of Connors' Brothers, wholesale fish dealers and exporters of Black's Harbour. Mr. Doone was for a time on the staff of the Daily Mail in this city. Besides being an eloquent speaker he is a writer of more than ordinary ability both in prose and poetry and his articles have appeared in many leading Canadian magazines.

WANTS HIS OLD CAR AS SUMMER COTTAGE

REGINA, Sask., June 29—First definite offer to purchase one of Regina's disused street cars has been received by Ald. T. G. McNeil, chairman of the street railway committee.

It came from Jimmie Raven caretaker at the city hall, who wants one for a summer cottage on his property at Regina Beach.

But there is a stipulation attached to the offer. Mr. Raven wants car No. 9.

The reason: In 1913 Mr. Raven joined the street railway service and for several years was conductor of No. 9.

Old Times Recalled

The following article in regard to the old New Brunswick Yeoman Cavalry appeared in an issue of the Fredericton Capital, December 1902:

The Yeoman Cavalry

At Confederation, while there was not any cavalry organizations in this county, nevertheless several of our citizens held commissions in the New Brunswick Yeomanry Cavalry, which then consisted of two Troops, one at Sussex and the other at Hammond River, in Kings county.

This corps was the nucleus of the present 8th Princess Louise New Brunswick Hussars. It is a very remarkable fact, that at the organization of the 8th Hussars, in the same year that the 71st was enrolled, viz., in 1869, its first commanding officer, Lieut. Col. John Saunders, was a native of this city, and that at the present time its commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Montgomery Campbell, is a native of this city. This interesting and unique feature is increased by the fact that the Hon. John Saunders, the first Chief Justice of this province, was, previously to his appointment on the Bench, cavalry officer, as the following inscription on his monument in the old Protestant burial ground in this city, testifies.

"On the commencement of hostilities between Great Britain and her American colonies, relinquishing the academic studies of his youth, he in the estimation of our citizens than did the York Rifles, in 1845, its command officer then being Major L. A. Wilmot, who was the first Lieutenant Governor of this Province after Confederation. Its other officers were Captain William McBeath, a well known citizen, for many years the secretary of the old Central Fire Insurance Co.; Captain John Simpson, Queen's Printer, Mr. Penety's predecessor, and Lieut. F. E. Beckwith; N. Akerley, S. D. McPherson, long prominent as a temperance worker; Thomas Bowden, and William Watts, the latter being at his death the editor of the "Headquarters." Previous to Confederation the best drilled of our local volunteer corps were the Fredericton Rifles, under Major Wilmot, and the Victoria Rifles, under Captain Simonds and Captain Hewitson, the latter company being the foundation of the 71st Regiment.

The Fredericton Capital conducted by the late Major H. A. Cropley has this account of that Saunders family:

Lt. Col. John Saunders

Being subsequently transferred to the Queen's Rangers, he was engaged during the whole of that unhappy conflict in the most arduous and dangerous service, in which he was twice severely wounded, was present at most of the general battles, and the cavalry and flank companies of the detachment being placed under his command performed numerous brilliant and successful achievements."

Judge Saunders was the great-grandfather of Col. H. Montgomery Campbell, referred to. From this it will be seen that the influence of the New Brunswick militia is a source of pride to our citizens. The officers referred to, in addition to Colonel Saunders, were Captain Edward W. Miller, Captain H. Fairweather, Lieutenant Wm. Segee, Cornet John H. Reid and Quartermaster Samuel A. Akerley.

The Hon. John S. Saunders gave the land on which St. Anne's Parish church was built in 1846-1847. If the Geographic saw this article they might think more of Judge Saunders, whom a local writer "roasted" because a street was called after him.

Previous to this (in 1845) the officers of another local cavalry corps, viz., the York Light Dragoons, consisted of Lieutenant William Fraser, Cornet Beverly Robinson, Cornet Robert Parker and Quartermaster Daniel Duff.

At the time of the Aroostook war (1839) a troop of York County cavalry did most excellent service, especially in carrying despatches to and from Gen. Sir John Harvey, at the front. The Fredericton troopers were employed on the road between St. John, Fredericton and Woodstock, and the Carleton County cavalrymen were employed on similar duties between Woodstock and Grand Falls. The York Troop was under the command of Major L. A. Wilmot and had the following officers and N. C. Officers, viz. Lieutenant Stephen Miller, Lieut. Dr. Fraser, Cornet Beverly Robinson, Cornet Warwick Harvey (son of Sir John), Quartermaster Daniel Duff, Sergt. Major William Segee, Quartermaster Sergt. Samuel Fleming, and Color-Sergeant Zebedee G. Gables. It numbered 35 troopers, among them being Mr. John H. Bird and the late Senator Temple. Mr. Alexander Block enlisted in the troops about this time.

When the Prince of Wales—now King Edward VII—visited this city, August 6th, 1860, a troop of cavalry was organized here as an escort to His Royal Highness. It was commanded by Lieut. Col. L. A. Wilmot. This escort was a very dashing body of horses and elicited the admiration of the future King. Mr. John H. Reid was largely instrumental in the organization of this Troop.

At Confederation there was a 6-pr. Battery of Militia Garrison Artillery in this city, being one of the Batteries of the New Brunswick Regiment of Artillery, Colonel Hayne, of this city, being the Colonel Commandant. Col. Hayne went to St. Helena in 1820 on duty as a Lieutenant in the Royal Artillery, and remained there until Napoleon's death.

Its Fredericton officers were Major J. F. Berton, Capt. Hon. John C. Allen and Lieutenant Alexander Mitchell, Bernard O. Friel, James Moore, Thomas Paisley, J. Matthew Stratton, W. W. Street, and John Allen Jr.

Previous to this, Major George P. Bliss, Captain John Saunders Shore (who was transferred to H. M. 24th Foot and was killed at Chillianwallah), Captain Enoch Wood Chestnut, and Lieutenant Richard Dibblee, Geo. M. Odell, Wm. H. Shore, Edward B. Peters, Donald McLeod, George Clapper Peters, Isaac Nash (the builder of the Cathedral organ) and Dr. Trollderey (surgeon), held commissions in the York County Militia Artillery.

While the rolls of the local companies of the 71st contains many names of eminent men, such as the poet, now Sir Charles Roberts, now Sir Douglas Hazen, etc., and have been unsurpassed in Canada, yet no single organization ever held so high a place academical studies of his youth, he in the estimation of our citizens than did the York Rifles, in 1845, its command officer then being Major L. A. Wilmot, who was the first Lieutenant Governor of this Province after Confederation. Its other officers were Captain William McBeath, a well known citizen, for many years the secretary of the old Central Fire Insurance Co.; Captain John Simpson, Queen's Printer, Mr. Penety's predecessor, and Lieut. F. E. Beckwith; N. Akerley, S. D. McPherson, long prominent as a temperance worker; Thomas Bowden, and William Watts, the latter being at his death the editor of the "Headquarters." Previous to Confederation the best drilled of our local volunteer corps were the Fredericton Rifles, under Major Wilmot, and the Victoria Rifles, under Captain Simonds and Captain Hewitson, the latter company being the foundation of the 71st Regiment.

It might be worthy of notice that the late Col. H. Montgomery Campbell the great grand-son of Judge Saunders, raised and commanded a battalion of infantry in New Brunswick that did service in the Great World War, his only son killed in action.

A brother of Col. H. Montgomery Campbell when home on leave called on Mr. John H. Reid to tell him that when in India a brother officer who had once been stationed in Fredericton asked to be remembered to Mr. Reid and spoke of his as an exceptional exhibition manager and horse race promoter.

WESTERN FARMERS WARNED OF 'HOPPER'

Preparedness Is Urged By Minister of Agriculture in Saskatchewan.

Regina, Sask. — A call to farmers to be prepared to battle with grasshoppers was issued by Hon. J. G. Taggart, minister of agriculture.

"We cannot safely depend upon the most favorable conditions prevailing throughout the next two months. We must make plans to meet the situation," he said.

Mr. Taggart added: "Because of the unusually good rainfall and low temperature which have prevailed this spring, some people believe that the hoppers will not hatch. This belief is not in harmony with experience. As a matter of fact, good moisture conditions prior to hatching helps rather than hinders the hatching of the young hoppers."

Mr. Taggart stated that all arrangements had been made for the distribution of poison bait, and he urged all farmers living in infested districts to be in readiness to combat them.

NEWFOUNDLAND HAS A SURPLUS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 29—A surplus of $406,794 will be shown on the Newfoundland Commission Government's books for the fiscal year ending June 30, Hon. Everard N. Trentham, Commissioner of Finance, has announced.

Tonight the commissioner will deliver his second budget speech before the Newfoundland Board of Trade explaining how he expects to balance accounts for the fiscal year 1935-36, and on Saturday he will announce the eagerly awaited tariff reductions planned by the commission.

Tackling the unwieldy tariff schedules in effect when they took office in February, 1934, the commissioners last year reduced many duties in an effort to aid the overburdened fishermen and farmers. Further reductions to lower the cost of living are expected.
