BIG FEET

Paralleling what seems to be a natural tendency, this country needs to revise its notion of foot beauty. The ideal "tiny" foot, perhaps influenced by the foolish practice of foot-binding among Chinese women, is becoming a thing of the past because of modes of living and recreation which will not be given up easily.

There is authority for the observation. Ruth Kerr, of New York, the only woman in the United States who styles shoes for both men and women, says shoe sizes are getting bigger continuously. "The average woman's foot has expanded from 5 1/2 to 7," she says, "and the average man's foot size is now 10 1/2 as compared with former 9 1/2."

Now for a campaign of education to increase esthetic appreciation of big feet. That would be much more sensible than to multiply cripples by crowding No. 7 feet into size 5 1/2 shoes.

SALESMAN, KNOW YOUR GOODS

A customer walks into a place dealing in garden supplies and asks for a roll of mulch paper, a material known by name at least to everyone experienced in gardening.

"And what," asks a handsome young woman behind the counter, as she raises a slightly incredulous eyebrow, "is mulch paper?"

It takes several minutes of detailed explanation to convince her that there is indeed such a material, and several more to establish that the place has it in stock.

The shopper wants some finish for an unpainted chair. He locates what he wants and notices on the label, "Unless used on close-grained woods, a filler is essential." So he asks the attractive miss in attendance, "Is oak a close-grained wood?" "Oh, yes," replies the lady, brightly.

The shopper drops into a stationer's and wants some steel pens, giving the name and number. There is quite a search for the pens, before the well-roomed saleslady concludes that the store has none of that type, if in fact such a type exists. The customer, who has been staring for some time at a box of the pens he requires, snaps out of it long enough to point at the same—probably an ungallant thing to do.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gregg MacGibbon, of New York, has lately been giving advice through the papers, to the working girl in matters of deportment in the business field. She suggests neatness without gaudiness, affability without exuberance, a touch of rouge in preference to an invalid pallor, self-containment and other counsels—all very sound.

To which we can only add that an employee who knows what her employer is selling, who has some genuine understanding of what the transactions in which she participates are all about; in short, who knows the job, and the goods and their comparative merits and the uses to which the merchandise is put, is a very jewel, to be sought after and cherished and abundantly rewarded in this busy and impatient world.

SNAPSHOTS

Fairness in all their dealings is the key-note of smooth travelling in the path that follows. This applies to public as well as private life.

Sweeps are supposed to be illegal in Canada, but not Liberal sweeps apparently.

A contemporary hears that "wherever six economists gather, you will hear seven opinions". The seventh, no doubt, is that of a mere newspaper man who is hanging around to get a report of the other six.

If an amusement tax were levied on provincial elections, Mr. Bennett certainly couldn't be called upon to pay. He would have to say, as Queen Victoria did one memorable occasion: "We are not amused".

The New Brunswick elections were a sort of a postscript to a series of earlier provincial victories for the Liberals—a sort of N. B. as it were, it were.

It should be unhealthy for motorists when pedestrians are in a rundown condition.

A politician, to be successful, should have liquid, fluid and solid qualities; a liquid voice, a fluid tongue and a solid platform.

Ship Sails Seeking Lusitania's Gold

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 15—The lure of the treasure in the strong-room of the S. S. Lusitania, torpedoed by a U-boat in 1915, called the S. S. Orphir to sea yesterday.

She was manned by a crew of 29 including three survivors of the ill-fated passenger vessel. They will try to recover the specie and valuables, which were known to have been aboard the Lusitania.

After tests of instruments and gear in the Firth of Clyde, the Orphir will head for the Irish Coast Sunday. Included in the gear is a metal deep-sea diving outfit.

Love Blamed For Jamaican's Death

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 16—Believed to be the victim of a love quarrel, Cyril Clunis, 20, a native was found dead on the sidewalk of a Kingston suburb. His head had been crushed in by a steel bar, police said. They claimed to have the case well in hand but refused to disclose further details.

WATER SPORTS LOOM

The A. & B. Club water sports and regatta which are to take place on Thursday afternoon on the water front of the club house are being looked forward to with great anticipation by residents here. The committees in charge are making the usual elaborate preparations for the event and are rounding out a fine programme for Thursday afternoon and evening. The cruise of the Saint John Power Boat Club has already been started from Saint John with fifteen boats comprising the squadron. Alfred C. Clarke is commodore of the club. The squadron left Marble Cove on Saturday afternoon at about three o'clock and proceeded to Oak Point. On Sunday the squadron reached Belyea's Cove, Washademoak Lake, and Cambridge. Yesterday it was at Gagetown. The squadron, which is enjoying itself with sports and fun en route, is expected to arrive here on Wednesday evening and will be entertained by the A. & B. Club here.

NO CHANGE TODAY

There was slight change today in the condition of Allen Delong, who is seriously ill at his home with double pneumonia this week. Mr. Delong's condition is causing relatives and friends much anxiety.

over the Hydro Commission which requires less time and will pass over the Agriculture to Mr. A. C. Taylor of Westmorland County. Mr. Taylor is a new man who has never previously been in the Legislature. Mr. Pirie is a fighter. For several sessions he with Mr. Anderson of Northumberland and Messrs. Doucett and Richard of Gloucester and also Gill and Tweedie of Northumberland have kept the camp fires burning.

There has been a question regarding Mr. Anderson of Northumberland County. He did not seem for a time to want a Cabinet position. It is understood that at the last moment he was urged to take the Lands and Mines Portfolio.

There is regret expressed that some of those who have given valiant service to the party in the Legislature were not taken into the Cabinet but with forty three men to provide for and all sections looking for recognition it would be impossible to please everybody.

Many friends of A. J. Doucett M. P. P. of Gloucester County have been urging his appointment to the Cabinet. Mr. Doucett is one of the best educated, as well as one of the best informed members of the Legislature and has worked hard in the house both for his County and for the Party. He has worked day and night on the Committee. He is particularly strong in Gloucester and Westigoche, where he has business and domestic connections that are influential. It is understood however that Mr. Doucett will before many months be a Candidate for the Dominion House and that his friends would like to see him take this step.

H. F. G. Bridges of Campbellton and J. J. Hayes Doone of Charlotte County both of whom are former Fredericton men were in the City this week. They each defeated Cabinet Ministers and their respective Counties were asking for recognition in the Executive. Either of these newly elected representatives may be speaker. This office of course will not be filled until the opening of the next session of the Legislature which will be well along in the winter.

Charlotte County supporters of the Liberal Party have been pressing for Mr. Doone as a member of the Cabinet. Mr. Doone claims it is he who originated the idea of a Minister of Federal Affairs as an assistance to the fish industry of Charlotte county.

Peak Is Blown Off By Alaska Volcano

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, July 15—Augustine volcano, at the mouth of Cook Inlet, active for several months, has blown off a section of the top cone, with steam and smoke being hurled high into the air and lava running down its sides.

Berry, Cook Inlet fisheries warden, arrived here on the patrol motorship Teal.

WAS BANNED FOUR TIMES

HEIDELBURG, Germany, July 16—The ultra-exclusive "Saxo Borussia" students corps was banned for four terms because its members showed disrespect to Adolf Hitler.

Students themselves were permitted to remain at the university, except one, who was expelled. All members of the corps were severely rebuked.

The banning of the famous corps was due to two incidents. First, it was charged, the students entered a restaurant noisily, while patrons were listening to a broadcast of a speech by Hitler. On a second occasion, it was alleged, they loudly discussed also in a restaurant, the correct way to eat asparagus—especially "how der fuhrer eats it."

The corps is one of the three most exclusive in Germany. Its members are scions of the nobility, and many of its alumni are notables.

Authorities suspected that the loud discussion of the proper manner of eating the dish, and the inquiries as to how Hitler ate it, were not actually serious.

Two years ago members of the Saxo Borussia corps came into conflict with authorities for refusing to expel certain "non-Aryan alumni."

FRENCH PARTY GET RELICS OF ESKIMOS

SAINT SERVAN, Brittany, July 16—France's most famous scientific research ship, "Le Pourquoi Pas?" sailed yesterday for Greenland to bring back the greatest collection of Eskimo relics ever gathered by any single expedition. Jean Baptiste Charcot, foremost French explorer and geographer, headed the expedition, which will bring back four French scientists who spent the winter studying Eskimo culture.

YOU CAN'T FOOL NATURE

Thousands of years devoted to study and experimentation have revealed to medical men only five true specifics. With the exception of these, there are no cures.

The greatest of 16th century physicians said: "I sew them up and God heals them." And the best of modern physicians might say as truly: "I can relieve and strengthen the patient and let nature cure him." There is no artificial method of doing nature's work.

What is true of medicine is equally true of man-made laws.

There are certain simple things that laws can do. They can hinder evil men and anti-social schemes, and they can enforce the will of the people within the limits fixed by common sense.

But they cannot change the processes of nature, nor make the wheels grind faster in the mills of the gods.

All experience has shown that it is man's nature to improve himself and his civilization. When men reconcile themselves to evil by saying that we cannot change human nature, they lose sight of the fact that evil is no more natural than good.

Since it is man's nature to improve, it is obviously natural for him to grow in wisdom, righteousness, mercy, justice and honor. And it is equally natural for him to mend the ways of his civilization.

But this natural growth must come in a natural way, and there is little that laws can do to hasten it.

Each of us had said to himself, at some period of his growth: "If I were a king, with absolute power, I would do this and that to make the world perfect." But as the years bring greater understanding they also bring the realization that a king's fiat cannot replace natural laws.

Prohibition failed because it attempted to make the behavior of people more virtuous than their hearts.

Idealistic economic reforms will fail as completely when they ignore the ways of nature.

Abolish money and property, and penalize enterprise as you will, the ablest and shrewdest men will still somehow profit by their advantage.

Fix prices, grant monopolies, prevent competition, limit production—do
