IMPORTANT BUSINESS RECOMMENDATIONS

Buying Commission Report Would Have Commission Controlled Business

Government Appointed
Boards Would Direct
Operations Covering Wide Scope—More Intense Interest in Company Financing, Employer - Worker Relations and in Labor Itself Among Recommendations.

It remains to be seen just how popular, or unpopular, the recommendations made by the mass buying and price spreads committee and to be tabled in the House of Commons this week will be. It is liable to cause considerable debate both in the House of Commons and in the country. While it is contended that certain regulations should be made regarding different lines of business it is doubtful whether the public will be prepared to go as far as is recommended by the Commission. The recommendation asks for more strict control over all business and all industry in Canada, more intense governmental interest in company financing, in the relation between employer and worker and in labor itself are among recommendations made in the report of the mass buying and price spreads committee which will be tabled in the House of Commons this week, probably Thursday or Friday.

The Canadian Press learned last night that the report deals with virtually every phase of Canadian business and industry and seeks to set up government-appointed boards to control and review operations along a wide front.

Following are 13 major points contained in the report:

1. Reduction in the standard hours of labor, not to exceed 44 hours a week as a maximum, but flexibility in the administration of such laws, permitting long hours when necessary with time and a half and double time for overtime.
2. More complete organization of employers' association and workers' trade unions.
3. Requirements that a company's annual statement, together with the auditor's report, should be published in the daily press in "such a way as to insure the widest publicity", and in The Canada Gazette.
4. That it should be made illegal for directors, promoters, etc., to issue fully paid-up shares unless the company receives for these shares adequate consideration in cash, property or services.
5. Amendments to the Dominion Companies Act, one of which would be the abolition of shares of no-par value.
6. Establishment of a Federal Trade and Industry Commission to consist of five members, appointed by Governor-in-Council, to "supervise generally or co-operate in the administration of existing laws relating to merchandising and business practices for which no other agency exists".
7. Creation of a Consumer Commodity Standards Board, as a section of the Federal Trade and Industry Commission, to establish consumer standards and specifications, and to enforce such standards.
8. Recommendation that penalties for breach of the Weights and Measures Act should be more severe, but that the principle of net weight be modified to permit the inclusion of (Continued on Page Four)

Tourist Accommodation

Our Governments are spending money to bring in tourists. Our hotels, summer camps and boarding houses are already getting ready to entertain these summer guests.

The impressions of the province will be formed largely according to the treatment our summer guests receive at our places of accommodation. This accommodation consists in giving those who travel by car or otherwise good beds, and good menus consisting of our native foods, fresh fish in season, native berries and fruits, vegetables, lamb, chicken and maple syrup. It has been pointed out that many visitors have arrived in this province expecting that a sufficiency of properly cooked and properly prepared native dishes will be available to them. They all expect this and they should not be disappointed.

To many persons much of the thrill to be derived out of travelling is contained in the discovery of right things to eat and in being served the native foods of the country visited. These may be suggestions regarding menus that will be of value to those not yet fully experienced in catering to summer guests. If people are given good food they will come back. If they are starved out they will stay out. Sometimes the proprietors could provide meals cheaply for tourists from just native foods, but they do not realize the fact that these are just what guests want. The writer travelled along the North Shore a few years ago. There was not a hotel after one left Bathurst and until you reached Tracadie that served a bite fit for any person to eat. The proprietor thought that the grub was great. It was terrible! The reason was that they tried to cook special dishes and did not know how. At the same time they were throwing out lobsters, in season, and other sea food that the travellers would have been delighted to have had. At that time five or six years ago the hotels had succeeded in driving tourists and other travel away from one of the finest Shore drives in New Brunswick just because they did not know enough to serve foods which the good Lord had sent to their own Shore.

Two or three years ago we stopped at a wayside inn in Kings County. It was only a few miles from one of the most important towns in the Province. It was an inn which advertised extensively all over New Brunswick. They charged four of us sixty cents each for a little fruit salad and some other mess made out of stale bread, and made an apology that they were unable to get anything from town. Why did they not serve us native dishes, or let us go along, explaining that there was nothing in the house to eat? No! They wanted our money. They never expected to have us stop again—and you can bet that they never will—so they soaked us $2.40 for about 30 cents worth of grub. During the last few years these rotten "holdups" and bad service by unqualified summer hotel people have been discontinued almost entirely. It has been a survival of the fittest. The importance of proper preparations, the need of courtesy, hospitality and utmost cleanliness are fully stressed and should be carried out by people if they wish business in the tourist line.

The Tourist Associations, Boards of Trade and other similar organizations should take the matter of proper accommodations in hand—booklets issued should contain only the names of those hotels, camping places and wayside inns where decent accommodation may be provided, so that the tourist will not have to carry canned beans and condensed milk in the back of the car.

ALBERTA TO RAISE TAX ON BIG INCOMES

EDMONTON, Alberta, April 9—Paving the way for heavier levies on higher incomes in Alberta, the Government introduced a resolution in the Legislative Assembly to provide for a bill to amend the Income Tax Act.

Hon. J. R. Love, Provincial Treasurer, told the House that the amending bill which has not yet been printed, would clarify some sections of the present Act. Premier R. G. Reid said the introduction of the amending bill would give the Assembly an opportunity to increase the rates on the higher incomes, as had been suggested by some members in debates, since the session opened.

TABLET GIVEN IN HONOR OF LATE DR. T. C. ALLEN

April Session Supreme Court Opened This Morning

Five Judgments

Six Cases To Be Heard
At This Sitting of the Supreme Court

The April session of the Supreme Court, Court of Appeal, opened today with Mr. Justice Grimmer, Mr. Justice Richards and Chief Justice Baxter presiding.

Judgments were delivered in five cases and the three cases on this month's docket were considered this morning, the case of The King vs. Henry Landry, was set over until Thursday, April 18. The case, King vs. Leo LeBlanc and Reuben Vender vs. Town of Edmundston were set over to the next term of the court. There were no common motions.

Before the business of the court began J. F. Winslow, K. C., presented to the court a tablet to be placed in the Court Room in memory of Dr. T. C. Allen, Clerk of the Pleas 1883-1910 and Registrar of the Supreme Court 1910-1927. Both Mr. Winslow and Chief Justice J. B. M. Baxter spoke briefly on the merits of the late Dr. Allen.

Judgments

In the case of the King vs. the Workmen's Compensation Board, the opinion of the Court was that the application of the petition should be refused. The Chief Justice advised accordingly.

In the case of Frenette vs. Taylor a verdict was given for the defendant with costs, Mr. Justice LeBlanc dissenting. Chief Justice J. B. M. Baxter and Mr. Justice Grimmer were for the defendant.

A new trial was granted for the assessment of damage only in the case of Noble vs. the Bath etc. Hydro Electric Commission. Each party is to bear its own cost.

In the case of Jaegar Company (Canada) Limited vs. Bernard Connors, which was appealed by the plaintiff, judgment was set aside for the defendant.

The case of Cormier vs. LeBlanc was dismissed with costs.

Tablet Presented

J. F. Winslow, K. C., before the business of the court began, presented to the court on behalf of the New Brunswick Bar Association, a tablet in memory of Dr. T. C. Allen, Clerk of the Pleas from 1883 to 1910 and Registrar of the Supreme Court from 1910 to 1927. Mr. Winslow said it was not necessary for him to enlarge on the qualities of Dr. Allen. The barristers feel that the tablet is a sign of recognition of the value of a man to the bar and to the province. In closing, Mr. Winslow, paid high tribute to lovable and courteous nature of the late Dr. Allen.

Chief Justice Baxter

The Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, chief Justice of New Brunswick, stated that the court very gladly gave permission to have the tablet placed there and welcomed the suggestion. He added that the late Dr. Allen's whole life had been connected with the law profession. Chief Justice Baxter paid tribute to the warmth of heart and kindly disposition of the late Dr. Allen.

Chief Justice Baxter ventured to say that if Dr. Allen had remained in a more strenuous field he could have attained a much higher position. In no capacity, though, could he have won more affection and respect of the (Continued on Page Four)

W. K. Tibert, Director of Vocational Education, Tells the Truth About Our Backward Educational Line-up.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., April 9—Every citizen of New Brunswick who has travelled elsewhere or has been in touch with outside system of Education recognizes the fact that ours is "obsolete." This was the word used by W. K. Tibert, director of Vocational training, when speaking to the Woodstock Rotary Club yesterday.

Mr. Tibert said there were 1,100 men in the relief camps, a large percentage of whom had a good academic education, and they had no prospects to look forward to. The professions, he said, were overcrowded, and yet the school system was such as to lead up to these professions rather than to fit the scholars for other callings.

Reports showing the necessity of a change in the existing order of things were now being made in other provinces. Some of these were so radical that a few years ago they would have been stamped as communistic, he said. He advocated giving the scholars an opportunity to say what they wanted to learn. By the time a pupil reached Grade 10 he should be in a position to know, Mr. Tibert said, whether there was any particular subject on the curriculum which he especially wanted.

Vocational education, he said, taught the students to connect education with their hands.

C. F. Bailey, superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Station at Fredericton, was also a speaker. Mr. Bailey, at the request of some of the members, explained the policy which was being followed with respect to pure-bred draught horses. Excellent stallions were being provided, he said, by the federal department of agriculture, for breeding purposes. It was necessary that pure-bred mares should also be obtained and the provincial department was co-operating with the farmers to see that this was done, he said.

Mr. Bailey explained that demand for pure-bred farm horses was so strong in the West at present that it was found expensive to secure mares of the type required, from there, and the department had turned its attention to France and England, where they could be obtained more reasonably. It was proposed, he said, when the policy became well established to hold central sales, where colts could be auctioned, and these would be made sufficiently important that outside buyers would be attracted. Assistance would be given the farmers in getting their colts to these sales, he stated. J. R. Calkin was in the chair.

SHANGHAI, China, April 9—Inaugurating a new Japanese diplomatic policy, consular officials from all parts of China met here today with Akira Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China.

The conference will last three days and was regarded as of great significance.

A Japanese spokesman said policies to be considered could not be discussed.
