

A MAN WHO KNOWS

Says GIN PILLS Are Good For Pain In The Back

WHEN your grocer tells you he uses a certain tea in his own home, you feel pretty sure it's good tea.

And when a prominent druggist takes GIN PILLS for his own Back-ache, you can feel quite sure there is nothing else quite so good.

Winnipeg, May 10th, 1912.

"In the autumn of 1911, I suffered with a continual pain in the back. As a druggist, I tried various remedies without any apparent results. Having sold GIN PILLS for a number of years, I thought there must be good in them, otherwise the sales would not increase so fast. I gave them a fair trial and the results I find to be good."

GEO. E. ROGERS.

GIN PILLS have well earned the confidence which druggists, as well as the public, have in them. For years they have been relieving the pain of Rheumatism, Lumbago and Kidney Troubles generally, and changing tortured cripples into strong, supple men and women.

Why should you go on suffering when there is a remedy so easily obtained and so reliable? GIN PILLS cost but 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Money back if they do not help you. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

"I know you have not any son and if you wish to have me under your auspices as a lad I shall be glad to offer you my services," reads a letter which has been received by Vice President-Elect Marshall from the Philippine Islands. The letter is written in English and is signed by "S. Viterbo Villaueva, Box 75, Iloilo."

The Enfield Society for the Detection of Thieves and Robbers held its 90th annual meeting last week at Thompsonville, Conn. The society is merely a social organization now, but in 1823, when it was organized, the purpose was to chase horse thieves. There were similar organizations at that time in every town with modern police forces they have all disbanded. The Enfield Society thought to be the only organization of this kind in existence today.

FLORENCE FAIRBANKS ON FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, Jan. 18.—The recent cold snap has had a decidedly invigorating effect upon the fur market and has brought out an incredibly large number of fur garments and accessories of every description. It is quite safe to say that not for many years have furs been so much in vogue as they are this season and it is equally safe to make the assertion that the prices of furs of every kind have never been so high as they are now. And this does not apply merely to the rarer kinds of pelts. Fur-bearing animals are becoming exceedingly scarce and some of them, once quite beautiful, have become almost extinct. Their skins are almost worth their weight in gold and only the very wealthiest of women are in a position to afford them.

But the rapidly increasing scarcity of fur-bearing animals has long ago led to the utilization of the furs of animals which, fifteen or twenty years ago, no fur dealer would have offered at that time. It was sheer necessity which led to the extensive use of the skins of rats, cats, moles, squirrels and other small animals which formerly were not hunted for their skins, at least not to any great extent. It is true that the skins of squirrels and moles have been used for trimming purposes and for small fur neck-pieces, etc., for a great many years, but not until in comparatively recent years did anybody ever think of fashioning entire full-length cloaks and coats from these small skins.

There is a great deal said and written about the high cost of living, but it is a remarkable fact that notwithstanding the tremendous increase in the cost of furs, even of the commonest kinds, furs are used by women of the present day more than ever before in the history of fashion. The price paid for a full length coat of good quality sealskin twenty-five years ago would not buy a shot jacket of skunk at the present time. Yet one may see fur coats of every length, size, description and pelt everywhere, even on women who do not impress one as being particularly blessed with the riches of the world.

Many women, who wish to follow fashion to a reasonable extent, but are wise enough to realize their financial limitations, make a compromise with fashion by wearing coats or cloaks of some rough and heavy material for protection against the cold and to gratify their desire to be in the swim, trim their protecting garments with any one of the handsome furs which may be had in the form of strips for the specific purpose. This economic use of furs materially reduces the cost of outer garments and yet permits them to be quite handsome and attractive and in keeping with the dictates of fashion.

For outdoor use, especially where good service is required, long coats of heavily corded English corduroy or some of the heavy blanket materials are excellent and if trimmed with some rough kind of fur, they are quite handsome. For more dressy occasions such coats may be of velvet, velour or the finer grades of corduroy and trimmed with more dressy furs and passamante.

Of course, women who need not be economical in buying their winter outfits, have a large variety of the most beautiful furs to choose from. For long coats they do well to select some of the lighter furs, like mole skin, while for short coats, the weight of which need not be considered, some of the heavier pelts may be used.

The tendency to extravagance which is so clearly manifested in the extensive use of costly furs, also manifests itself this season in the materials used for gowns and suits in the trimmings employed and the accessories required to complete a stylish outfit. Some of the new materials are extremely beautiful and many of them at least, quite serviceable.

One of the new materials, which promises a great vogue during the spring season is silk ratine. It is seen in an endless variety of shades and colors and lends itself wonderfully well to the making of gowns and frocks. There is every probability that silks of every description will be highly fashionable during the coming spring and summer seasons and the importers and dealers are preparing to place an enormous quantity of silks, many of them washable, on the market. Crepe de Chine, either plain or brocaded, is also highly fashionable at present and promises to retain its popularity through the coming season and perhaps to the early summer, when it will probably be supplanted in the favor of fashionable women by some of the lighter silks.

White is extremely fashionable this winter and so are all light materials. There seems to be no grade between black and intensely dark shades. Black is still worn to a great extent, heavily touched in white, and navy blue is also popular. Yet for effective afternoon functions or for morning weddings nothing seems so pretty as the light tones now in vogue.

Young girls no longer cling as much to pure white as they used to. A debutante wears a white frock to

LA GRIPPE'S VICTIMS

Left Weak, Miserable and Prey to Disease in Many Forms

One of the most treacherous diseases afflicting the people of Canada during the winter months is la grippe or influenza. It almost invariably ends with a complication of troubles. It tortures its victims with alternate fevers and chills, headaches and back-aches. It leaves him an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis and even consumption. Indeed, the deadly after-effects of la grippe may leave the victim a chronic invalid. You can avoid la grippe by keeping the blood rich and red by an occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you have not done this and the disease attacks you, you can banish its deadly after-effects through the use of this same great blood-building, nerve-restoring medicine. Here is proof of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over this trouble.

Mr. Emmanuel Laurin, St. Jerome, Que., says: "I was seized with a severe attack of la grippe. I was obliged to stop work and remain in my bed for several weeks, and while I appeared to get over the first stages of the trouble, I did not regain my usual health. I suffered from headaches, loss of appetite and extreme weakness. I did not sleep well at nights and would arise in the morning feeling tired and worn out. This continued for about two months during which time I was taking treatment, but apparently without avail. When I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got a half dozen boxes. By the time I had taken three boxes there was a decided improvement, and actually before I had completed the sixth box I was enjoying my old-time health. I was strong as ever, could sleep well and eat well, and no longer suffered from lassitude and headaches. I have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the pernicious after-effects of la grippe and can therefore recommend them to other sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the trouble in the blood, which they enrich and make red and pure. These pills cure all troubles due to bad blood and if you are ailing you should start to cure yourself today by taking this great medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mince pies were popular under the name of mutton pies so long ago as 1536.

her first party, it is true, but white self trimmed now looks faded and dry. The tone that young girls now delight in for their first season's wardrobe is red in its different young shades, ruby, watermelon, Chinese rose, in fact, all the soft dyes, absolutely putting aside hard, old shades, such as crimson, vermillion or scarlet. These tones, already light, are still further lightened by being draped over cream or white satin.

Mousseline de soie seems especially to belong to the young girl for the evening, mousseline draped over soft, shimmering silk or satin. For some reason or other older women look better when tulle illusion is employed over satin. Older women, too, are wearing satin brocade a good deal this season, touched in velvet of the same tone if the dress be of color, and if it be white, then a velvet or brocade of a harmonizing contrasting tone is effectively put together.

In trimming young girls' dresses a great many small, colored roses—usually of chiffon—are seen. Bright blue velvet sashes, edged with small silk roses, are used for lingerie toilettes.

The lingerie dresses just beginning to be shown in the shops frequently have the fullness of their skirts taken up in hand-run tucks.

Some of the new square collars on linen dresses are fitted smoothly to the shoulders and the little ties are of linen.

Fashion authorities say that in the spring will be seen millinery flowers of colored tulle, with tiny pearls and stones for petals.

Soft little hand-made hats of Crepe de Chine veiled with net and having brims composed of flowers, will be worn at the southern resorts.

Because of a passage in the Koran forbidding the making of images, Turkish postage stamps have no picture, but bear instead the sign manual of the Sultan, which is, in fact, an impression of his imperial hand. This signature is said to have had its origin with the Sultan Murad I, who, on completing a treaty with the Italian Republic of Ragusa in 1365, a large tablet to sign his name applied ink to his open hand and slapped it upon the parchment.
