A GIRL
THE LIMBERLOST

BY GENE STRATTON PORTER

"I seriously doubt that," said Elnora. "But I am perfectly willing that you should make the test. I will call him." "Stop!" commanded Edith Carr. "I told you that it was you I came to see."

"I remember," said Elnora. "Mr. Ammon is my betrothed," continued Edith Carr. "I expect to take him back to Chicago with me."

"Then it is untrue that you twice rejected his ring, repeatedly insulted him and publicly renounced him?" "That was through you!" cried Edith Carr. "I realize the spell of this place for a summer season. I can see just how you have worked to ensnare him!"

"I want a minute with you," said Miss Carr.

"Men would call that lying," said Elnora calmly. "The second time I met Philip Ammon he told me of his engagement to you, and I respected it. When he left me I did not hope or expect to see him again." Elnora's voice fell soft and low. "And, behold, you sent him—and free!"

"You exult in that!" cried Edith Carr. "Let me tell you he is not free! If he married you before a month you would read heart hunger for me in his eyes. He could not love me as he has done and give me up for a little scene like

"You killed his love everlastingly when you disgraced him in public," said Elnora. "Killed it so completely he does not even feel resentment toward you."

Edith Carr stood truly regal and filled with scorn. "You are mistaken! Nothing on earth could kill that!" she cried, and Elnora saw that the girl really believed what she said.

"You are very sure of yourself?" said Elnora.

"I have reason to be sure," answered Edith Carr. "We have lived and loved too long. I have had years with him to match against your days. He is mine! His work, his ambitions, his friends, his place in society are with me. You may have a summer charm for a sick man in the country. If he tried placing you in society you would put him to shame in a week."

"I hardly think I should follow your example so far," said Elnora dryly. "I have a feeling for Philip that would prevent my hurting him purposely either in public or private. As for managing a social career for him he never mentioned that he desired such a thing. What he asked of me was that I should be his wife. I understood that to mean that he desired me to keep him a clean house, serve him digestible food, mother his children and give him loving sympathy and tenderness."

"Such vulgarity!" panted Edith Carr. "How can a man like Ammon endure it? You know perfectly that if your puny hold on him were broken, if he were back in his home among his friends and where he was meeting me, in one little week he would be mine again as he always has been."

"That will do!" said Elnora. "I shall not act until I know there will be nothing to regret. I have decided on my course. You may return to your friends."

"What do you mean?" demanded Edith Carr.

"That is my affair," replied Elnora. "Only this: When your opportunity comes, seize it! Any time you are in Philip Ammon's presence, exert the charms of which you boast and take him. Take him to Onabasha and to Chicago with you. Use every art you possess. If the old charm can be revived I will be the first to wish both of you well. Now, I must return to my guests. Kindly excuse me."

Elnora turned and went back to the arbor. Edith Carr followed the fence and passed through the gate into the west woods where she asked Henderson if the car was ready. As she stood near him she whispered, "Take Phil back to Onabasha with us."

"I say, Ammon, can't you go to the city with us and help me find a shop where I can get this pinion fixed?" asked Henderson. "We want to lunch and start back by 5. That will get us home by midnight."

Philip went into the arbor.

"Elnora," he said, "Henderson is in trouble with his automobile. He wants me to go to Onabasha with him to show him where the doctor lives and help him get fixed so he can start back this evening. It will take about two hours. May I go?"

"Of course you must go," she said, laughing lightly. "You can't leave your sister. Why don't you go back to Chicago with them? There is plenty of room, and you could have a fine visit."

"I'll be back in just two hours," said Ammon. "While I am gone you be thinking over what we were talking of when the folks came."

Elnora offered her hand to all of them, and when she came to Ammon she gave him one long steady look in the eyes, then shook hands with him also.

When Philip returned to the Limberlost Elnora was gone. There was a note for him, saying that even her mother did not know where she had sought refuge. On or before the 1st of September, she wrote, she would let him know where she was and her decision. Philip, deeply disappointed, returned to Chicago. There Edith Carr, in a meeting at which Philip's father was present, begged his forgiveness, told him she had always loved him and asked for his love again. But he told her any love he had ever had for her was dead. He was going back to the Limberlost, he said.

The Kidneys
Are To Blame
WHEN A WOMAN'S BACK IS NOT STRONG.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The kidneys are overtaxed,—given more work than they can possibly do—then they cry out in protest through the pain in the back.

When the back aches and pains it is almost impossible to do her housework, for every move and turn means pain.

On the first sign of backache Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken so as to avoid all this suffering. Mrs. Harvey W. Brownell, Northport, N.S., writes:—"I now take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad at times I could not sweep my own floor. While looking through B.B.B. Almanac, I saw Doan's Kidney Pills were a great kidney remedy, so I thought I would try a box or two. I did so and found great relief. After using five boxes I was completely cured, and I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Price, 50 cents a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct, specify "Doan's."

FARMERS OF CANADA NEED WIDER MARKETS

(Toronto Globe)

The Premier of Saskatchewan, Hon. Walter Scott, is too well acquainted with public opinion in that Province to misapprehend it, and too careful in his public utterances to misrepresent it. When he says that the West is more firmly convinced that wider markets are a necessity and more resolutely determined to have them it would be well for the opponents of freer trade with the United States to give heed to his assurance on this point they will ignore at their peril a truth that many others have discovered for themselves. Time will always be on the side of those who desire to have perfectly free exchange of natural products across the international boundary from ocean to ocean.

At the present time in this connection it is particularly interesting to note that a Montana speculative trader in live beef cattle is shipping from Toronto animals of that class to be consumed in the city of Vancouver. It is so great that transportation by rail will add to the cost of the beef and lower its quality. With free trade in food stuffs of all sorts the natural tendency would be for producers on each side of the boundary line to export their surplus to the nearest consumers on the other side, with the least possible amount of loss on account of either tariffs or transportation. It is quite possible that Canadian producers may at times be unable to keep their own cities supplied with beef but generally the American market is advantageous to the Canadian farmer, and as cities increase in population it will certainly become more so.

THE MISSES YOUNG

SLAUGHTER OF CALVES

ernment is buying up quite a lot of finer grade cattle, especially Short-horns, for shipment to the west and New Ontario. Only recently more fine Short-horns were purchased by a special Government agent.

In Chicago prices for good cattle ranged from $9 to over $10 per hundredweight, alive, during last year.

South America is the world's chief live stock exporter now, and Europe has to look there for most of her supplies in the near future. Some years ago Argentina passed laws forbidding the slaughter of female cattle under six years of age, under heavy penalty. The result is that Argentina has plenty of veal now, because her stocks of breeding cattle have been replenished, and she ranks first as an exporter. The report of Swift Company urges the adoption of some such regulations regarding the slaughter of calves as exists in the United States, as the most effective means of reducing market values of meats for the consumer. The same principle applies to the live stock situation in Ontario.
