

Had a Dry, Tickling Sensation In Her Throat.

COUGHED ALMOST ALL NIGHT.

A bad cough, accompanied by that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat, is most aggravating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is rich in the healing virtues of the Norway Pine tree, and for this reason it will quickly stop that tickling in the throat which causes the dry hard cough that keeps you awake at night.

Miss Margaret MacDonald, Port Hood, N.S., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. I took a severe cold, coughed almost all night, with that dry, tickling sensation in my throat. The first bottle did me so much good, I thought I would try a second one, which I am pleased to say resulted in a complete cure. I can strongly recommend it to any one suffering from a cough or any throat irritation."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper, 3 pine trees the trade mark; price, 25 and 50 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Spike Kelly's defeat of Ray Brown in Memphis the other night, has boosted the stock of the Chicago boxer quite some.

AN OHIO RAILWAY UNDER THE HAMMER

Springfield, O., Jan. 22—The receiver's sale of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad, which was to have taken place here today, has been postponed to February 5 by order of the Federal court. With the postponement has come a revival of the rumors that both the Pennsylvania and the Norfolk and Western roads will bid for the property when it comes under the hammer.

The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton road extends from Detroit to Iron and possesses valuable terminal right on both the Great Lakes and the Ohio river. The great coal fields in the vicinity of Jackson, O., are among its most important traffic assets.

The Norfolk and Western is believed to desire the property chiefly because the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton owns valuable dock property at Toledo, the acquirement of which would mean much in the development of the coal and ore handling interests of the Norfolk and Western.

If the Pennsylvania gets the road at the receiver's sale it not only will furnish that system its coveted entrance into Detroit but, when the Pennsylvania carries out its proposed plan of extending its Toledo division west to form a main line between Toledo and Chicago, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton would give it direct entrance to Toledo for an enormous amount of coal tonnage brought from the mines of southern Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Elnora picked him up and kissed him. "Billy, are you happy?" she asked. "Yes, and so's Snap," answered Billy. "You ought to see him make the dirt fly when he gets after a chipmunk."

He espied Wesley and ran to show him a walnut too big to go through the holes, and Elnora and Margaret went into the house.

They talked of many things for a time, and then Elnora said suddenly, "Aunt Margaret, I like music."

"I've noticed that in you all your life," answered Margaret.

"I can make a violin talk," announced Elnora, and then in amazement watched the face of Margaret Sinton grow pale.

"A violin!" she wavered. "Where did you get a violin?"

"They fairly seemed to speak to me in the orchestra. One day the conductor left his in the auditorium, and I took it, and Aunt Margaret I can make it do the wind in the swamp, the birds and the animals. I can make any sound I ever heard on it. If I had a chance to practice a little I could make it do the orchestra music too. I don't know how I know, but I do."

"Did—did you ever mention it to your mother?" faltered Margaret.

"Yes, and she seems prejudiced against them; but, oh, Aunt Margaret, I never felt so about anything, not even going to school. I just feel as if I'd die if I didn't have one. I could keep it at school and practice at noon a whole hour. Soon they'd ask me to play in the orchestra. I could keep it in the case and practice in the woods in summer. You'd let me play here over Sunday. Oh, Aunt Margaret, what does one cost? Would it be wicked for me to take of my own money and buy a very cheap one? I could play on the least expensive one made."

"Oh, no, you couldn't. A cheap machine makes cheap music. You ought to have a fine fiddle to make it sing. But there's no sense in your buying one. There isn't a decent reason on earth why you shouldn't have your father's."

"My father's!" cried Elnora. She caught Margaret Sinton by the arm. "My father had a violin! He played it? That's why I can! Where is it? Is it in our house? Is it in mother's room?"

"Elnora!" gasped Margaret. "Yes."

"Mother dearly loves music," said Elnora.

"Not when it took the man she loved away from her to make it."

"Where is my father's violin?"

"Elnora!"

"I've never seen a picture of my father. I've never heard his name mentioned. I've never had a scrap that belonged to him. Was he my father or am I a charity child like Billy, and so she hates me?"

"She's got good pictures of him. Seems she just can't bear to hear him talked about. Of course, he was your father. They lived right there when you were born. She don't dislike you. She just tries to make herself think she does. There's no sense in the world in you not having his violin. I've a great notion—"

"Has she got it?"

"No. I've never heard her mention it. It was not at home when he—when he died."

"Do you know where it is?"

"Yes. I'm the only person on earth who does, except the one who has it."

"Who is that?"

"I can't tell you, but I will see if they have it yet and get it if I can."

"My father's!" cried Elnora. She caught Margaret by the arm.

But if your mother finds it out she will never forgive me."

"I can't help it," said Elnora. "I want that violin. I want it now."

"I'll go tomorrow and get it if it has not been destroyed."

"Destroyed! Oh, Aunt Margaret, would any one dare?"

"I hardly think so. It was a good instrument. He played it like a master."

"Tell me," breathed Elnora.

"His hair was red and curled more than yours, and his eyes were blue. He was tall, slim and the very imp of mischief. He joked and teased all day until he picked up that violin. Then his head bent over it and his eyes got big and earnest. He seemed to listen as if he first heard the notes and then copied them. Sometimes he drew the bow trembly, like he wasn't sure it was right and he might have to try again. He could almost drive you crazy when he wanted to, and no man that ever lived could make you dance as he could. He made it all up as he went. He seemed to listen for his dancing music, too. It appeared to come to him. He'd begin to play and

NEWBURG.

Newburg, Jan. 18—A very sad accident occurred on Thursday evening, Jan. 9th, when Charles Cunningham Jr., of Newburg, was killed.

Mr. Cunningham was driving home from Woodstock with his wood team at about 8.30 o'clock when the accident occurred. It is thought he might have been walking and went to get on the front of the sled, slipped and fell, being dragged some distance. His head was badly bruised, causing his death.

Deceased was thirty-four years of age and leaves to mourn their sad loss his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cunningham three brothers, Joseph, Henry and Thomas; three sisters, Mrs. Frank P. Gallagher, Anastasia and Katie Cunningham, all of Newburg, many other relatives and a large circle of other friends, for, as Rev. Father Bradley said, he was a man who, when you were once acquainted with him, became your friend.
