RECIPROCITY FOR DOCTORS

Physicians of Ten Years Standing can Practice in any Province

New Regulation Goes Into Effect on July 1st--Must Pay a Fee of $100

Ottawa, June 19--The Dominion Medical Council, which has been in session here for the past three days, concluded this afternoon. The organization under the Dominion Medical Act was completed, and by-laws and regulations were adopted for submission to the government, whose approval is necessary.

Arrangements also were made for the first dominion examinations. They will begin at Montreal on October 7. The dominion register will open at Ottawa on July 1, which is not only Confederation Day, but also marks the confederation of the Canadian medical profession. The first annual meeting will be held here on June 16 of next year, the council, which embraces thirty-two members, representing the provinces and universities, are all medical professors.

The final establishment of the council marks the completion of the scheme of medical reciprocity which has long been advocated. The moving spirit in it was Dr. T. G. Roddick, of Montreal, the president. Heretofore there have been a series of provincial councils whose license held good only in the province where they were issued. The provincial councils are not abolished, but a medical graduate who now passes the dominion council, without further examination, practice anywhere in Canada upon registering with the provincial body.

Physicians of good standing for ten years before October 1912 may procure the diploma without examination upon payment of a fee of $100. For a medical graduate who locates in any province and intends to stay there, the dominion examination will not be necessary. He cannot, however, practice in any other province on the strength of the provincial license. This privilege is granted only to those who pass the federal council, or register without examination after having practiced ten years.

STOCK MARKET WANTS A REST

The Sagging Tendency Looked for by Experienced Observers

Many Features of the New United States Currency Bill are Endorsed By Bankers

New York, June 20--The recent development of dullness and a slightly sagging tendency of business in the stock market fulfills the expectations of the majority of experienced observers. A period of rest and digestion would be the best thing that could happen in the long run and there is nothing in the situation to suggest that the present will prove an exception to the rule. The attention of the financial community was absorbed yesterday by the draft of the new currency bill. It was certain that the opinion of the bankers and business men would be divided as to the merits of this or any other currency measure, but while these are not enthusiastic there are many features which can be unreservedly endorsed. The final situation will likely differ in many important particulars from the present bill but the prospect of currency reform a long and reasonable whatsoever is a passing one.

CHARGES OF CORRUPTION WERE PROVED GROUNDLESS

British House of Commons Exonerates Chancellor of Exchequer and Attorney General--Collapse of the Marconi Scandal--Hon. A. J. Balfour Admits That There Was no Question of Dishonesty--Tory Motion Voted Down

London, June 19--"That this house after hearing the statement of the attorney-general and the chancellor of the exchequer in reference to their purchases of shares in the Marconi company of America, accepts their expression of regret that such purchases were made, and that they were not mentioned in the debate of October 11 last, and acquits them acting otherwise than in good faith and reproaches the charges of corruption against the ministers, which have been proved to be absolutely false."

With this substitute motion, proposed by William Ryland Dent Atkins, adopted by a vote of 346 to 268, the house of commons tonight officially closed the Marconi affair. The prime minister, Mr. Asquith and the secretary of foreign affairs, Sir Edward Grey, in behalf of their colleagues under investigation, and A. J. Balfour, and Andrew Bonar Law for the Conservatives--led the defence and attack.

The proceedings were judicial and solemn, the assembly might have been mistaken for a church congregation, so profound was the decorum throughout the greater part of the debate.

The vote on Sir William Atkins' amendment was strictly on party lines. The Laborites and Nationalists supporting the government, although a few Liberals and Laborites abstained from voting. Afterwards the House adopted it as a substitute for the resolution introduced yesterday by George Cave, in behalf of the opposition, without division.

Mr. Asquith, whose statement was eagerly awaited, as his attitude was calculated to sway the votes of the independent Labor members and of a number of Liberals, expressed keen regret at the decision of the Tories. He said he had hoped that after the speeches of the ministers concerned some general agreement would have been reached by the House but that hope now was shattered.

MINISTERS 'FOULY TRADUCED'

Mr. Asquith, who spoke with evident emotion, said he had never risen with greater reluctance to address the House of Commons or under a stronger sense of personal responsibility. He agreed that the cabinet ministers would have been better advised to have told the whole story in October, during the debate on the Marconi contracts. It would have saved an enormous amount of time and trouble. At the same time, however, he did not hesitate to say that the terms of the motion introduced by the opposition were not only inadequate but in the highest degree ungenerous.

The parliamentary investigation, having proved that the charges had been conclusively disproved, it should have put in the forefront of its resolution an explicit finding that the cabinet minister had been foully traduced.

BALFOUR CLEARS MINISTERS

Arthur J. Balfour, the former Unionist prime minister followed Premier Asquith and suggested that if the government supporters would agree to combine the motion with an amendment the house would be unanimous. He himself, he said regarded all the charges of corruption as absurd but he insisted that the conduct of the two cabinet ministers was of the most vital importance to the public life of the country.

A CRANK AT THE ASCOT RACES

Harold Hewitt Tried to Stop Belmont's Horse and Was Badly Hurt

The Jockey Was Thrown Some Distance But Escaped Serious Injuries--An Exciting Incident

Ascot, England, June 19--The race for the Ascot gold cup, one of the most coveted prizes of the English turf was marred today by an incident similar to that which brought the king's horse down in the derby when Millie Wilding Davison sought and found death in the cause of the militant suffragettes. In this case it was a man, Harold Hewitt, who emulated Miss Davison's feat.

According to the Ascot police Hewitt was not connected with the suffragettes and was of unsound mind, of a type peculiarly liable to be carried away by the imitative impulse. He received the same penalty for his temerity as did Miss Davison--a fracture at the base of the skull. At a late hour tonight Hewitt was lying unconscious in a hospital after undergoing an operation in the forlorn hope that his life might be saved.

King George and Queen Mary, ex King Manuel of Portugal, Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden, the Duke of Connaught, governor-general of Canada, Princess Patricia and a number of lesser royalties were watching the race from the royal stand. Coming down the straight, August Belmont's famous Bolt Tracery, a son of Rockland shot into the lead. He was going like a well oiled piece of machinery and soon had the nearest horse several lengths behind. Seemingly Tracery was assured of an easy victory.

Suddenly a man jumped from the rails waving a red flag with one hand and with the other pointing a revolver at Jockey Whalley, who had the mount on Tracery. He shouted:

"Pull up, pull up, or I'll shoot you."

Whalley did his best to divert the horse's course but failed. Tracery striking the man full on the chest with his shoulder, sent him flying several yards and came down on his nose. Whalley shot clear out of the saddle but being an adept at taking a toss fell on his back and rolled to safety under the rails.

In the meantime the other horses came thundering on, one of them giving the author of all the trouble who lay sprawling, a terrible kick on the head in passing.

Save for some bruises, Whalley was unharmed and when the king sent for him he walked stiffly to the royal box to receive congratulations on his escape.

Hewitt is about fifty years of age. According to the police he is a cultured man having been educated at Harrow and Cambridge and is possessed of independent means.

REGETTA AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Many Colleges are to Be Represented in Great Aquatic Event

Varsity Eight-Oared Contest Will be the Big Event of the Day--Cornell Picked to Win

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., June 20--One hundred and twelve sturdy oarsmen, divided among seventeen crews and representing six prominent universities of the country, have finished their final work of practice and are awaiting the signals that will start them in the races for glory tomorrow in the nineteenth annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association. The universities are Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wisconsin, Syracuse and Washington.

The big race of the day will be the varsity eight-oared contest, in which each of the six universities will be represented. Preceding the big race will be the two-mile race of the varsity four-oared shells, for the Kennedy challenge trophy, and the freshman eight-oared two-mile race, for the Stewards' cup. All six universities will participate in the four-oared race, but Washington will have no representative in the contest of the freshman eights.

Chief interest, of course, centers in the contest of the varsity eights. Cornell's men of brawn, the last crew to be trained by the veteran coach, Charles E. Courtney, are picked to win. In the light of past performances it could not well be otherwise. Of the eighteen regattas held by the intercollegiate association on the Poughkeepsie course the Cornell crew has crossed the line first in thirteen of the varsity eight-oared races. As the Ithaca crew this year is composed of veterans and has the further advantage of having the extreme outside course, the wise ones can see little or no chance for them to lose.

Columbia appears to be the second favorite. Pennsylvania's chances are well thought of by many, while Syracuse, which has sprung more than one surprise in former years, is mentioned with respect. In the many years that Wisconsin has sent her crews to Poughkeepsie the Badger boys have always displayed great gameness and several times have finished well in the running. There is nothing, however, on which to base a judgment as to whether the Wisconsin eight this year is superior or inferior to the crews in former years.

The University of Washington, which is represented here for the first time, is naturally an unknown quantity. The crews have come from the far northwest with the reputation of having cleaned up everything on the Pacific coast, but whether they are of a class to hold their own against Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania can be determined only by the results tomorrow.

The Hudson River course over which the races will be rowed is a straight deep stretch of water beginning three miles north of the Poughkeepsie bridge and finishing one mile south of that structure. The West Shore Railroad will run the usual observation trains alongside of the crews. No vessels will be allowed to follow the oarsmen and this rule will be enforced by revenue cutters.

NO COMMON MOTIONS

There were no common motions made this morning before the Supreme Court and adjournment was made till 2.30 p.m., when judgments were given.
