

"In the Case of MY Little Girl—"

In choosing and using a soap for your "Little Fairy" you will find no soap so mild, so neutral, so agreeable to tender skins as FAIRY SOAP.

Being made from products that you could eat, FAIRY SOAP agrees with even the tender skin of a babe.

FAIRY SOAP

is white—pure—floating. It comes in a handy oval cake. We could charge you five times the price asked for FAIRY SOAP and we could add nothing to its quality.

In higher-priced soaps you are paying for high-priced perfume and fancy wrappers—not better soap.

COD LIVER OIL

Is the thing I need but I can't take it on account of its horrible taste. Ever say that? If you did you had in mind the old blue bottle of cod liver oil and its taste and smell really were something to be dreaded.

Nyal's Emulsion

of cod liver oil is a modern scientific remedy palatable and pleasant. You can take Nyal's Emulsion. Anybody can. And everybody should who feels the need of a body builder and strength-giver particularly those who have lung trouble or are in a run-down and weak condition.

Nyal's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil combined with hypophosphites of lime and soda to strengthen the nervous system. If you want to nourish the body and fortify the nervous system take Nyal's Emulsion.

PLEDGE BREAKING TORIES SCORED BY SIR WILFRID

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in closing the naval debate in Parliament last week spoke to crowded galleries, but briefly confined his remarks to the Verville amendment. He said the latter had introduced a new element into the discussion. After quoting the amendment Sir Wilfrid went on to state that the member for Nicolet (Mr. Lemarche) had apparently taken it to mean as referring only to the Borden resolution and not to the Laurier amendment. "It seems to me obvious," continued Sir Wilfrid, "that the amendment was meant to cover the resolution which is now before the House, whether it is voted as if proposed to amend it, or whether it is voted without the amendment. At all events that is the way I interpret the view of my hon. friend from Maisonneuve (Mr. Verville) who moved this sub-amendment. It seems to me it is one which the Government cannot refuse, and which they are bound by their pledges before the election made more than once in the House, to accept now."

QUESTION AS OLD AS DOMINION

"The question of the creation of a Canadian navy is as old as Confederation itself. The idea of the creation of a Canadian navy was introduced into the first militia bill, which was adopted by this House under the leadership of Sir George Etienne Cartier. The question was also taken up in the Imperial Conference which sat in London in 1902, and on that occasion the Canadian Ministers, myself and some of my colleagues, laid before the conference a State paper in which the statement was made in effect that the Canadian Government was prepared to undertake its full share of the naval defence of the Empire in accordance with the development of the Dominion in wealth and population."

VIEWS NEVER CHALLENGED

"This document has been before the Canadian people since 1902. The views which are therein expressed were never to my knowledge challenged in this House nor anywhere else. The views then came before the House in a concrete form in March 1909 and at that time as is well known a resolution was unanimously adopted affirming that the time had come for the creation of a Canadian navy. I confess it did not occur to me then nor did it occur to anybody that the idea which had been set forth in acts of Parliament and which had been reaffirmed by the statement I made on behalf of the Canadian people at the Imperial Conference, needed to be submitted to the people. All parties held that view at the time; no one in 1909 expressed the view that the policy which was then adopted by the Canadian Parliament should be referred to the people, but there came upon the other side of the House a change of heart and a change of tongue, and it was decided that as party tactics there should be a demand that that policy should be referred to the electors."

WHAT PREMIER DECLARED.

"I know what my right hon. friend the prime minister will answer me. He will probably tell me that he has anticipated this very motion of my hon. friend from Maisonneuve in the speech with which he introduced the measure which we are now considering, on the 5th of December last, when he recalled that in a previous speech of his he had stated that he would confer with the imperial authorities, and having conferred with them, he would submit his measure to parliament and if it was defeated by parliament then he would submit it to the people. But in answer to this I have to say to my right hon. friend that he made more than one declaration upon this very subject, he has pledged himself before this House that no measure of this kind should be submitted to parliament until and unless it had been submitted to the people themselves."

TWO THINGS REGRETTED.

"At the opening of the session of 1910-11, in the debate on the address the hon. member for Jacques Cartier (Mr. Monk), moved the following amendment to the address:

"The House regrets that the Speech from the Throne gives no indication whatever of the intention of the government to consult the people on its naval policy and the general question of the contribution of Canada to imperial armaments."

"Mark the words—two ideas are there set forth by the hon. member for Jacques Cartier as to which regret was expressed in the motion; first, regret that the government did not consult the people on its naval policy, and, second, that it did not consult the people on the general question of contribution to Canada."

"Mr. Monk wanted the people to be consulted not only upon the naval policy but upon the general question of contribution to imperial armament, then an amendment was moved by my right hon. friend eliminating the question of contribution to armament and limiting the question to the naval policy only. That latter resolution was submitted to parliament and was defeated."

"This amendment being eliminated, the question then came up before the House upon the amendment of the member for Jacques Cartier (Hon. F. D. Monk) embodying in its turn the desire for a reference to the people not only on the question of the navy but on the general contribution to imperial armament. On that resolution my right hon. friend and his party with the exception of two or three members who I believe are confined to the city of Toronto, one and all adopted the view as expressed in the amendment of the member from Jacques Cartier. That was in the month of November 1910; the elections came on shortly afterwards and each party went before the country with its policy. My right hon. friend went before the electors pledged by his vote on the amendment of the member for Jacques Cartier that we should consult the Canadian people not only upon the question of the navy but upon the question of contribution to armament. I need not recall the fact that my right hon. friend triumphed on that occasion. It was his policy which I had advocated, which had been supported at one time by my right hon. friend, but it was the policy which he had later adopted and which was the last which had been before the people, and which was approved of by the Canadian people."

SHOULD ACCEPT VERVILLE AMENDMENT

"On the face of such a condition of things can my right hon. friend refuse to accept the amendment of the honorable member for Maisonneuve (Verville) if the words and the pledges of men, when they are before the electors, mean anything it seems to me that on the present occasion we have the right to expect that the policy which my right hon. friend laid before the people and on which he triumphed, is the policy which he
