NEW OFF SIDE RULE FOR HOCKEY

Port Arthur, Feb. 26—Believing that the interpretation of the existing hockey rules make of the refereeing a far too predominant feature of the games, and very often stop play at its most exciting moments, rob it of its most exciting moments, rob it of many of its spectacular features and tend to discourage team work, Mr. Hugh Gawley a prominent hockey enthusiast of Port Arthur is out with a brand new suggestion for their revision.

Mr. Gawley would practically eliminate the off-side rule as far as it affects play in mid ice. His plan is to have dark lines made across the ice, twenty, twenty-five or thirty feet in front of the goal net, and remove the application of the off-side rule between those two lines.

"The intention of the off-side rule," said Mr. Gawley, in explaining his plan, "is to prevent loafing off-side and to keep players from standing in front of their opponents' net for a chance or intentional forward pass so that they could slap the puck into the net. The enforcement of the rule for off-side passes immediately in front of the goals may be all right, but I see no reason why it should be so strict for mid-ice play. Not a game is played but very many fine passes and spectacular rushes are broken up by the referees' bell, when the spectators would be much more delighted to see the players continue their dashes down the ice.

"Often players skate directly opposite one another and are stopped for what are called off-side passes, though it is a fact that when two men are going ahead the puck must also go ahead at the same rate when being passed from one to another. To carry out the spirit of the rule to prevent loafing, or taking deliberate off-side passes, I would have the referees instructed to impose penalties to players who persisted in remaining off-side deliberately participating in off-side passing.

"If we could cut out from fifty to seventy-five per cent. of the amount of refereeing that goes on in the hockey games of today the game would be more pleasing to the spectator, more spectacular, and show more team work. It would be fifty or seventy-five per cent. better all round. The people want to see more hockey and less refereeing.

DIAMOND DUST

Danny Shay, the former big leaguer and more recently manager of the Kansas City team, has signed to manage the Helena Union Association team.

Manager McGraw has given Jim Thorpe permission to go to Denver where the Indian champion will take part in the big athletic carnival to be held in that city this month.

The Chicago White Sox are going to be pretty swell guys during their stay in California. Instead of carrying only two sets of uniforms, as is the custom, Callahan's men will have four.

Pitchers James and Noyes, the two leading twirlers in the Northwestern League last season, have signed with the Boston Nationals. James comes from the Seattle team and Noyes from Spokane.

The veteran pitcher Tom Hughes says he is in tip-top condition and ready to do his share in helping the Washington team cop the American League muslin.

Part Tooley, whom the Brooklyn Superbas turned over to the Newark Club, is the only member of the Newark Indians who has not sent in his signed contract.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

"You are the powers, you shall not!" swore the man. "You have done enough. I will smash that thing!" "Oh, no, you won't!" cried the girl, clinging to his hands. "I am not big enough yet, Hart, but before I leave this forest I shall have grown to breadth and strength to carry that to her. She needs two of each kind. Phil only got her one. You may watch me deliver it!"

"Phil may be there by now." "I hope he is. I should like him to see me do one decent thing by which to remember me."

"I tell you that is not necessary!" "Not necessary!" cried the girl, her great eyes shining. "Not necessary? Then what on earth is the thing doing here? I just have boasted that I would change; that I would be like her; that I would grow bigger and broader. As the words are spoken, God gives me the opportunity to prove whether I am sincere. Help me, as you always have done!"

Henderson clinched his teeth and held her hand. The moth had emerged too recently to be troublesome. It climbed on her fingers quietly and obligingly clung there without moving. So hand in hand they went down the dark forest path. A strange excitement took possession of Edith. She began to feel proud of the creature.

"Do you know," she said to Henderson, "this is growing easier every step. Its clinging is not disagreeable, as I thought it would be. I feel as if I were saving it, protecting it. I am proud that we are taking it to be put into a collection or a book. It seems like doing a thing worth while."

"Edith, if you don't stop," said Henderson. "I will take you in my arms and kiss the face half off you, here on the avenue. You are adorable!"

"There's the place, and, thank goodness, there is a crowd," she said. "Hello, every one!" she cried as she came on the wide veranda. "Only see what we found up in the forest. We thought you might like to have it for some of your collections."

She held out the moth as she walked straight to Elnora, who arose to meet her, crying, "How perfectly splendid! I don't even know how to begin to thank you."

Elnora took the moth. Edith shook hands with all of them and asked Philip if he were improving. She said a few polite words to the O'Mores, declined to remain on account of an engagement and went away gracefully.

"Well, bully for her!" said Mrs. Comstock. "She's a little thoroughbred after all!"

"That was a mighty big thing for her to be doing," said Freckles in a hushed voice.

"If you knew her as well as I do," said Philip Ammon, "you would have a better conception of what that cost."

"I have to take care of this," faltered Elnora, hurrying for the door to hide the tears which were rolling down her cheeks.

"I must help," said Ammon, disappearing also. "Elnora," he called, catching up with her, "take me where I can cry too. Wasn't she great?"

"Superb!" exclaimed Elnora. "I have no words. I feel so humbled!"

"So do I," said Ammon. "I think a great deed like that always makes one feel so. Now are you happy?"

"Unspeakably happy!" answered Elnora.

THE END.
