FOUNDER OF OSTEOPATHY IS 85

Kirkville, Mo., Aug. 6—Many messages of greeting were received here today to remind Dr. Andrew T. Still famous as the founder of osteopathy, that this was his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary. Dr. Still was born in Lee County, Virginia, Aug. 6, 1828. He served in the Civil War as surgeon of a Kansas cavalry regiment and after the war became post surgeon at the Shawnee reservation. It was here that the study of the human bone structure, especially of the spine, was forced upon him by the death of his two little daughters of spinal meningitis. It was in 1874, when living at Baldwin, Kan., that he abandoned traditional medical routine and began to practise osteopathy as it is understood today. He founded a school here to teach the science and has lived to see it taken

MONCTON PAPER WANTS INFORMATION

According to our local contemporary railway men have been telling us that they are well pleased, and especially so the trainmen.

Well, now, of this is true, why all this excitement?

Why crowded meetings in the middle of the week?

Why halls jammed with railway men to overflowing on Sunday?

Why this rushing up and down the line of grand officers of various organizations?

Why these instructions sent out over the line, making preparations for a strike of the employees?

Why this ultimatum sent to Ottawa.

Why the presence of the Deputy Minister of Labor on the one side as mediator and Mr. Gutelius, the General Manager of the I. C. R., and President Mosher, of the C. B. of R. B., on the other.

It is child's play for our contemporary to set up such a plea.

But what about the painters in the I. C. R. shops?

What about the broken schedules?

Why the necessity of a Tory politician going to a railway organization meeting on a Sunday afternoon and knocking at the door and asking for permission to go in?

If there is no trouble, threatening the government, why his presence?

Why did he deem it necessary, when granted by the gentlemen present the courtesy of going into a private meeting and speaking to them, to take advantage of the opportunity to deliberately make false statements for a party political purpose, respecting conditions in the I. C. R. shops?

Did the order to reduce the hours of labor from nine hours to seven in the I. C. R. shops on the plea that there were no cars to be painted come from the so-called Grit officials?

To say so, is nonsense. The man, who stands up before an intelligent body of railway men with a story like that insults their intelligence; and is responsible thereby for a most brazen piece of effrontery.

"Codlin's your friend and not Shortt," says he, but if overflowing gall marks the measure of overflowing friendship for the railway employees, the friendship is undoubtedly there!

CITY CONTROLS RIVER

The dead moose which grounded near the St. Mary's end of the highway bridge some weeks ago, was removed by the City Board of Health.

When the City Council passed the bill in committee last night, members who inquired, were informed that the city controlled and owned the St. John river to highway mark between the Nashwaak and Nashwaaks rivers.

Olga De Baugh as The "PINK LADY"

CITY OPERA HOUSE SATURDAY, AUG. 9th.

THE PINK LADY

One of the most successful musical plays of recent years has been "The Pink Lady," which is to be presented at the City Opera House, Saturday, Aug. 9, by John C. Fisher of Florodora fame and B. D. Stevens, two of the best known of New York theatrical managers. "The Pink Lady" was taken from a French farce called "Le Satyre" was made into a musical comedy by C. M. S. McLellan, who provided the book and lyrics, with music by the well known English composer, Ivan Catyil. In New York it had a very successful run at the New Amsterdam theatre, where it was given for an entire season. It was then taken to London and made a big hit in the British metropolis at the Globe Theatre.

To big receipts "The Pink Lady" is no stranger and it is quite safe to say that no musical play within a decade has been so well received by audiences on both sides of the Atlantic.

The story of "The Pink Lady" is concerned with the adventures of a young Parisian rounder who is about to settle down into the hum-drum life of a married man and who just before his marriage decides to take just one more dip into the gay life of Paris. He arranges to have a last luncheon with a belle of the theatre who is known as "The Pink Lady" and whom he arranges to meet at a quiet restaurant in the forest of Compeigne.

In attempting to deceive his bride-to-be he tells her that he has a business appointment with a friend, to whom he gives the fictitious name of Dondidier. On his arrival at the restaurant he meets "The Pink Lady" but is surprised there by his sweetheart, who has come with an automobile party expressly to see if he had been telling the truth. The young blade is extricated from his dilemma when "The Pink Lady" declares herself to be the wife of Dondidier who has come hither to tell him that her husband is ill and cannot keep the appointment.
