THE DERBY MARTYR HAD AN IMPOSING FUNERAL

London, June 15—The body of Miss Emily Wilding Davison, the Derby suffragette, who is called the "first martyr to the cause," was borne through the streets of the west end yesterday afternoon between solid lines of silent spectators. There were a thousand members of the Women's Social and Political Union and hundreds of men sympathizers in the funeral procession.

The cortege reached Victoria Station at 2 o'clock, coming from Epsom. When it departed from the station for its journey to St. George's Church, Bloomsbury, where the service was held, there was some booing from a crowd of roughs, but the majority of the throng silently lifted their hats. The procession was deprived of the leadership of Mrs. Pankhurst, who, when leaving her flat with her daughter Sylvia was arrested and taken to Holloway Jail.

POLICE DIVERTED THE PROCESSION

The Women's Social and Political Union had planned a procession from the station to Hyde Park corner, thence to Piccadilly and Shaftsbury avenue to the church in Bloomsbury, but the police had other plans. On account of the density of the traffic they diverted the marchers into the quiet streets behind the station and around by Parliament square. This caused more confusion than if the women had been allowed to follow their own program, compelled them to travel several additional miles under a hot sun, and gave the ambulance corps additional work. It also caused thousands of people to rush madly across the city in search of the procession, which, for a time, they had completely lost. Another result was that the traffic about Piccadilly Circus was congested until nightfall by crowds who, unaware of the changed plans, were waiting impatiently. The presence of mounted police blocking all the entrances to Piccadilly from the side streets, after the fashion adopted at King George's coronation procession, also tied up traffic throughout Mayfair, besides giving the crowd the impression that the marchers might come at any minute.

The suffrage leaders are bitter in their denunciation of the police, asserting that this is the first time in England that a public procession has been interfered with.

WOMEN DRESSED IN WHITE

The procession was fully three-quarters of a mile long and many of the marchers were young girls. It presented a remarkable sight for the majority of the women were dressed in white with black arm bands, and carried white lilies and purple irises. Several carriages filled with flowers immediately preceded and followed the coffin, which had been placed on a flat tray, covered with a purple pall, on which rested three huge laurel wreaths.

IMPRESSIVE MOTTOES DISPLAYED

Many banners were carried with suffragette streamers bearing mottoes, the first being Patrick Henrie's "Give me liberty or give me death," others were "Thoughts have gone forth whose power can sleep no more. Victory—Victory." "He that looses his life shall find it," and "Duce at decorum est pro patria mort." The Women writers' League and the Actresses' Franchise League were represented, as well as the dock workers and Socialist organizations. From King's Cross station the body was taken to Miss Davison's home in Morpeth, Northumberland, for interment on Sunday.

RESOLUTION OF ADMIRATION

Budapest, Hungary, June 15—Some of the delegates to the Worlds Congress of Women held a service here yesterday in commemoration of Miss Emily Davison. It was attended by about 100 English and American delegates. A resolution proposed by Mrs. Cobden Sanderson, expressing admiration for the "heroic matron" of Miss Davison, who has given her life as a protest against the denial of justice.

ly bright for those industries where in wood enters into the manufacture. Such industries as furniture, carriages, etc., could be most successfully operated in Fredericton, where the raw material is available and the market is also large.

In addition to the new railways, now in course of construction, there is a large amount of other constructional development being carried on, including the erection of a large new post office, new bank building, annex to the Provincial Normal School, as well as scores of smaller contracts.

INTERNATIONAL POLO.

Ever since the matches in 1911 both countries have been getting ready for the series which began today. It is estimated that the preparations have cost a total sum not far from $1,000,000. This money has been expended for ponies, equipment, wages for innumerable stable helpers and grooms, the building of grand stands, etc. Scores of ponies were bought for the tryouts and some of them cost as much as $6,000 a piece. The big clubs belonging to the Polo association stood the expense on the American end. The challenging team has been largely financed by the young Duke of Westminster, probably the most notable patron of the sport in the entire world.

The international cup for which the two teams are contesting is of silver, encircled with the heads of ponies rampant. The cup is three feet high and was purchased by prominent sportsmen on the eve of the first matches in 1886. The agreement stipulates that the international contests must be played according to the rules of the country in which the matches are held.

and I hope he may long be spared to enjoy the honours he has won.

Mr. Fowler: I congratulate the province and the Bench, and the Chief Justice himself upon the fact that His Majesty has seen fit to confer honour upon him, an honour that is well deserved. But I would point to the member for Carleton that the Chief Justice himself is a proof of that fact that it is not necessary for a man to go on circuit to be a great judge.

OPPORTUNITY FOR LIBERALS TO HELP ALONG THE CAUSE

Ottawa, May 7, 1913.

TO THE LIBERALS OF NEW BRUNSWICK:

Efficient organization is the keystone of success in business or politics. The recognition of this fact and the request to their supporters to join in sharing the necessary expense brought success to the Democratic leaders and their party in the United States Presidential elections last year. The funds for legitimate party purposes, such as organization, printing, publicity and travelling expenses, were raised by a popular subscription.

The Liberals of New Brunswick are in need of more thorough organization, of committee work and wider distribution of party literature, for which purposes a considerable sum of money will be required. We believe all loyal supporters of the party will be ready and willing to subscribe to such a fund, and we ask them to do so.

The Liberals are today fighting in the House of Commons for free speech and the people's liberties. We do not know how soon they may be called upon to struggle for their rights at the polls.

We must be ready. The Liberal party must be ready and the only way to be prepared is to organize.

In asking the financial assistance of Liberals, for that purpose we are inviting every member of the party to co-operate and stand shoulder to shoulder with us in this memorable struggle. We neither expect nor desire assistance from the trusts, or wealthy corporations, whose interests may clash with the interests of the common people, and this appeal is therefore made to the masses of the electorate, who desire to maintain the rights of the people. It is far more desirable in the interest of the party that the subscriptions should be general, coming from every parish in the province, in other words, that there should be a large number of subscribers for small amounts rather than a small number of subscribers for large amounts.

Subscriptions for any amount from one dollar and upwards will be received by those in the different polling districts in the parishes who are authorized to do so, as well as by the County Treasurers, who will forward all amounts they receive directly, as well as those from parish collectors, to the Provincial Treasurer who will acknowledge the same.

The funds collected will be expended under the direction of the undersigned Provincial Committee representing the Liberal members from New Brunswick in the House of Commons and subject to the audit of Henry E. Hill, of St. Stephen.

Mr. Carvell: Has not the Chief Justice tried more cases in the last ten years than all the other judges in New Brunswick put together?

Mr. Fowler: He has heard chancery cases, but he has not gone on circuit. Mr. Carvell: But he has had the experience.

Mr. Fowler: He has not had the slightest practice of criminal law or common law, but has been confined to chancery cases. Yet, he has proved a great common law judge as well as an equity judge. With regard to the argument that it would be a great loss to these judges not to go
