CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES FOR ENGLISH RUGBY IS NOW PROPOSED

Parties in Manitoba and British Columbia are endeavoring to arrange for a series of games that would determine the English Rugby championship of Canada. The proposition is to have the teams of eastern Canada play a series, the winner thereof to meet the winners of a like series among western Canada teams. The final game would take place in a

RUGBY IN ENGLAND DEVELOPES THE INDIVIDUAL PLAYER

Good Team Play is Secured Through Selection of Good Individual Players Instead of by Mechanical Training as in American Football—First Trial Match.

The tendency of English Rugby to develop the perfect individual player and thus obtain perfect team play, in contradistinction to the American system in which individuality is made subordinate to mechanical team-play at all times is well illustrated by the system by which the International teams are selected in the British Isles. At the conclusion of the selections teams representing England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales although composed of players from widely separated clubs, play Rugby at its best. In the United States the nearest approach to this is the choice of the All-American team by the newspapers a team however which exists only on paper.

One of the earliest selection matches in England was that between the Army and the Universities. The teams representing the services (Army players, although picked from various clubs and playing under adverse weather conditions, played great Rugby. The London Daily Mail, concerning the match, says:

The first of the English Rugby trials at Twickenham on Wednesday was robbed of much of its value owing, in the first place, to the numerous changes in both teams, and in the second place to the weather conditions, which were execrable.

The ground at Twickenham had been carefully covered with straw to protect it from the effects of the hard frost. In the morning the frost gave way to fog. For a time it appeared likely that the fog would prevent play, but just after noon rain began to fall, and it fell in torrents throughout the match. It was bitterly cold into the bargain, and consequently any attempt at skilful passing was out of the question. The Selection Committee may have gained some useful hints as regards forward play in the mud, but otherwise there was little chance of learning much about the players.

As it was, the backs on both sides were wet through and chilled to the bone. After half time they seemed quite unable, owing to numb hands to field or pass the wet and slippery ball. Indeed, on one occasion, from a cross-kick, all that Coates and Poulton had to do was to pick up the ball and carry it over the line, (there was no one in front of them), but though each in turn attempted to pick up the slippery ball with his frozen hands, they failed utterly, and the easiest try of the day was lost.

SPLENDID GAME.

In spite of all these disadvantages, however, the game was a splendid one to watch—hard, fast and clean; and on the day's play the Services just deserved to win, as they adapted themselves to the conditions better, than their opponents and by their kick-and-rush tactics frequently upset the defence.

At the start the Service forwards had the better of the game and kept the 'Varsities hemmed in their own "twenty-five." Coates, who was playing on the left wing, was forced to touch down. Then Philby made a splendid opening for Campbell, who, showing a fine turn of speed, scored right behind the posts. Harrison converted.

After this reverse the 'Varsity forwards showed up to more advantage, and a fine bout of passing between Stoop, Poulton, and Watson set the latter going for the line. He did not get over, for Lyon came across and Watson made the acquaintance of a real "Lyon tackle."

However, the 'Varsities were soon attacking again, and the prettiest bit of play of the afternoon followed. Bussell, securing the ball, swung it out to Stoop. Stoop passed to Poulton, who broke through towards the left and handed to Tarr; the latter passed to Coates, who ran right up to Lyon before passing in again to Poulton for the latter to score behind the posts. Lagden converted, and the score stood five points all.

In collaring Peet, who tried to jump him, the 'Varsities' full back got a nasty kick on the head and had to leave the field. Tarr went full back, and for a time the 'Varsities played with only three three-quarters. As a result of a smart cross-kick by one of the Services, Campbell, who was practically unmarked, dribbled over and scored an unconverted try.

EXCITING FINISH.

L. R. Broster, the half back, came out and played full back for the 'Varsities, thus enabling Tarr to go back into the three-quarters line. Lagden and Roberts were next conspicuous with a splendid dribble from their own "twenty-five" line almost to the Services' goal line. The Services relieved, however, and Pym dashed over and scored. Harrison again converted, and the scores at half time were 13 points to 5 in favor of the Services.

The 'Varsities' forwards showed up much better in the second half, and had not the halves and three-quarters been so numbed with cold they must have won the game. But every bout of handling failed, and no one could gather the ball or deliver a pass. Lagden again broke away with a fine dribble, and Poulton dashing up, touched the ball down. The shot at goal failed. The 'Varsities still continued to press, and must have scored if either Poulton or Coates could have picked up the ball from a fine cross-kick by Stoop.

Gardner, the Services' half back, was hurt, and Brown came on in his place. The 'Varsities' forwards continued to press, and the Services had to save by kicking the ball into touch-in-goal. Then Poulton broke away with the ball at his feet, and, beating Lyon for pace, kicked it over the line, and Stoop dashing up, scored a try, which Lagden converted the scores standing at 13 points all, with two more minutes to go.

From the kick-off the Services' forwards simply rushed the ball down the field, and on the stroke of time, Brown scored a try, and this gave them the victory by 2 goals and 2 tries to 2 goals and 1 try.

ASA AND EUGENE ELDRIDGE, TWIN BROTHERS, PLAYING ENDS ON THE ST. THOMAS' COLLEGE TEAM

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 2.—Perhaps the only team in American football today to have twin brothers playing ends is the St. Thomas College eleven of St. Paul, Minnesota. But the odd part of the affair is the remarkable resemblance of the two boys, Asa and Eugene Eldridge. Even their team-mates cannot tell them apart at a distance of ten feet, except by the fact that Asa plays left end and Eugene right end.

In classes, one of the twins is an exceedingly bright mathematician, while the other excels in the language.

PRESQUE ISLE DROPS BASKETBALL TO PREPARE FOR BASEBALL SEASON

U. N. B. Quintette Will Play Chatham and St. Andrew's and Possibly Eastport in Christmas Season.

The management of the U. N. B. basketball team has received word from Presque Isle, Me., that basketball is dead there this year. "Happy" Smith of that town, replied to the U. N. B. letter, explaining that Presque Isle was going to devote all her energy towards the organization of a champion baseball team next season and expected to have a nine as strong as that of several seasons ago. For that reason basketball had been dropped altogether.

U. N. B. WILL TAKE TRIP.

The U. N. B. basketball quartette will take a trip during the Christmas holidays however, but there is some doubt about the trip to Northern Maine. The College team is sure of a game at Andover and may get one at Caribou, Me. Three games are necessary however, and an attempt will be made to play Ashland and Washburn.

EASTPORT AND ST. ANDREWS.

It has also been announced that the U. N. B. team will play the Shamrocks at St. Andrew's during the vacation and an effort is being made to have Eastport play the Red and Black at that place. A game at Chatham is practically certain. The U. N. B. basketball squad is in fairly good shape and should do well while away.

BOSTON TRAVELLER

HAS GOOD WORDS FOR MICKEY MCINTYRE

Mickey McIntyre, the Glace Bay boxer, evidently got in right at his recent bout in Boston. The Boston Traveller has the following concerning him:

"If the all-star show at the Armory last night did nothing else, it gave one youngster a big life in reputation, and many of the sports who were at the show figured that Boston at last has a youngster who gives promise of breaking into the championship class.

"The youthful aspirant for fistie honors is Mickey McIntyre, the little St. John boy who has been making Boston his home for some time. It was McIntyre's second bout at the Armory, and when the announcement was made that he was to box Johnny Glover, one of the cleverest lightweights in the East, a lot of us felt sorry for Mickey.

"Nothing doing in the sorrow line, however. Mickey put his man down, and almost out, twice in the first round, and undoubtedly would have finished him up in the second had it not been that he injured his hand. Few knew of this however, as Mickey continued the scrap as if nothing was the matter and Glover didn't have much of a look-in.

"The one other time McIntyre fought at the Armory he stopped Joe Murphy, a tough Cambridge boy, in five rounds. His next battle was at Lawrence, where he knocked out Jimmy Quinlan in five rounds. He has been boxing but a year and has everything a champion needs except the experience. This was shown many times last night when he did not take advantage of openings in clinches and breaks, apparently laboring under the impression that he had no right to hit under these circumstances.

"The opinion of many boxing fans is that McIntyre will wear a lot of watching and if he is carried along right, he will soon be able to give the best of them any old game they want."

TWO THOUSAND

DRUNK NIGHTLY

Does one man in every four in Toronto drink?

Are there 20,000 Toronto men in bar-rooms in an evening?

Are there 2,000 men drunk in Toronto every night?

To each of these questions, Rev. B. H. Spence, General Secretary of the Dominion Alliance, answers, "Yes."

Rev. R. M. Hamilton, speaking at Wesley Church in the interests of temperance Sunday night, said that "one man in every ten in Toronto drinks until he gets drunk." A man in the audience challenged the statement. Mr. Spence yesterday came to the support of Mr. Hamilton.

"Mr. Hamilton was away within the mark" went on Mr. Spence, and he proceeded to demonstrate the accuracy of the statement. "There are in Toronto," he said, "240,000 people; 170,000 are under 20 years of age, and half of the rest are women or children. That leaves, say 85,000 adult males. There were last year 8,339 arrested for drunkenness. Some of these were repeaters, but for every repeater I could show you half a dozen who were drunk that were not arrested."

Taking it another way, Mr. Spence referred to the census of the bar-rooms taken by a staff of newspaper reporters at the time of the license reduction campaign. At that time there were 144 bar-rooms in hotels in the city. A man was sent to count the men in every one of these during a half hour in the evening. The time selected was not the busiest, but between 8 and 10 o'clock. From 6 to 8 would be a busier time, so would from 10 to 11. But between the hours chosen, the slowest part of the evening, the men counted 2,039 men who entered the bar-rooms to drink. On the average, they would stay half an hour. Thus the whole lot of customers would change every half hour. So that during the five hours from 6 to 11, even on the basis of that rate of patronage, there would have been in the bar-rooms of Toronto hotels on one evening 20,000 men, or about one in every four men of the population.

"And," Mr. Spence added, "while very few men would stay longer than half an hour, a great many would not stay so long, and so the number of customers would be even larger."

"It would be safe to say, further, that in the average bar-room one man in every four who is drinking becomes tipsy, and at least one in every ten is drunk. That means that there are two thousand men drunk in the city of Toronto every night. And Toronto is a very good city."

which are getting their first lessons on the roads about Baintree. Millard says there is no doubt that this chap will be a fast trotter.
