PRESS COMMENT ON THE ARTHABASKA ELECTION

Inflammatory Appeals Made to French Canadians by the Nationalists--Workers in Bye-Election Tell of Women's Frenzy When Navy was Mentioned--Borden Scored by Montreal Newspaper.

Montreal, Nov. 4.—Liberal organizers coming in from Drummond and Arthabaska tell harrowing tales of the way in which popular feeling has been aroused to the highest pitch against the navy in those parts. Especially is this the case amongst the women folks.

For a Liberal worker to enter a house and endeavor to talk navy was the sign for an uproar, punctuated by a copious outpouring of twears on the part of the women folks. To them the navy was nothing more or less than the arm of a cruel government snatching their husbands, sweethearts and sons from them so as to provide an additional supply of "food for cannon."

Mederic Martin, M. P., for St. Mary's, nud-battered and exhausted, drove in this morning, and told of one case which he had witnessed at St. Albert. Here a woman at whose house the Liberal workers had called, grew hysterical when the navy was broached.

"Pas de marine! pas de marine!" she screamed, dashing herself into a terrible fury, and afterwards lapsing into a state of unconsciousness. So grave was her condition that a doctor and a priest had to be hurriedly summoned.

"That is what we have been up against," said Mr. Martin. Mr. Gilbert, the victorious Nationalist candidate, says:

"I am satisfied. The result will show the Laurier people that the country wants to be consulted on the navy. It will further show that Quebec is against the adoption of the naval bill, at the present juncture. The people want, to examine the ingredients of the 'marine pill' before swallowing it."

Tancred Marcell, at the opening of the campaign, said that in event of a victory such as was polled yesterday, "the shots of Ste. Eustache would receive their answer. The blood of the martyr patriots, who were hanged, would be avenged."

MONTREAL HERALD'S COMMENT

The Montreal Herald, the chief government organ in the province of Quebec, has a long editorial entitled, "Arthabaska and After." It says in part:

"It would be unfair to Sir Wilfrid Laurier to attempt to conceal from his friends elsewhere the significance of what has happened. Nobody knows so well as he the history of his province. Nobody knows so well as he how difficult it has been and must be for a Quebec statesman of the elder generation to keep in perfect touch with wave after wave of youth. The task is made a hundredfold more difficult if the elder statesman is in office—in opposition it would be relatively easy.

"It will be for those who are sincere in their admiration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statesmanship; for those who see clearly what is the debt of the Liberal party to him, to conscientiously consider whether they have been at all times quite fair in the matter of the burden they have been ready to lay upon him, and the burdens they have been ready to shoulder themselves.

"The result of the election in Arthabaska—it is well to be quite frank about it—is of vastly more significance to Liberals elsewhere than to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. If he chose, he could follow the example of his prototype, Lafontaine, accept the intimation that a new generation proposes to be master of its destinies, and retire from public life with such a record of honor and service as no other Canadian has ever had to his credit. What that would mean to the Liberal party it is needless to say.

"What Liberals ought to do to avert it there is no difficulty about saying. Hereafter, in this affair of the navy, which raises issues that cut clear across present-day politics and go clear to the roots of national consciousness, they should take off their coats, and do their share of the work they have hitherto left it to him to do.

"Sir Wilfrid can accept this defeat, as he has so many victories, in the tranquil assurance that his policy is right and best for the interest of his fellow countrymen wherever found. And what may seem to be lost, there is yet ample time to make up, and ample devotion to him and to the cause he so ably leads to make it up and have plenty to spare.

THE WITNESS ON THE RESULT.

The Witness says:
Mr. Bourassa jubilant with the victory of the anti-naval-la-marine de guerre—it sounds worse that way—candidate, and with the cheers of the Laval students ringing in his ears, is reminded of "Le Brav General," and Boulanger, who was once the idol of the more effervescent part of the French populace because of his flowery flow of eloquence and his melodramatic poses.

"There is nothing so good or so bad as we expect," is the conclusion of one of the books of the day, and one fly does not make a summer, although many often act as if it did. "Still it would be foolish to minimize the importance of the volte-face in Drummond and Arthabaska. Mr. Bourassa now proclaims: 'You must not think that we have been waging an anti-British campaign. Far from it. I tell you and I tell the people of the provinces where the English predominate, we are just as loyal to the old land as they are.' Words are cheap and the words are politic even if they do not convince.

The election in Drummond and Arthabaska have been won largely by frightening the voters into the belief that the able-bodied among them would be dragged off to fight in Britain's wars by land and sea. In a sense, however, the victory of Messrs. Bourassa, Monk et al, may do good all around. It may bring the Conservative party to a graver sense of its responsibilities. It may, and this is most of all to be desired, teach our 'Imperialists' not to be so shrill especially those whose 'imperialism' is suspected of being largely sham."

TORONTO GLOBE

Toronto, Nov. 4.—(Special)—Today's Globe says: "This is the year of the big wind in Quebec. A storm of Nationalist and Conservative oratory has blown over Drummond-Arthabaska, and carried all before it. The election of Gilbert who is opposed to the spending of a dollar on naval defence, is a fact that must be faced. It means that the Bourassa propaganda has made more progress than had been imagined, and the most vigorous steps must be taken toward putting actual conditions as to naval defence before the electorate all over the province.

The Nationalist-Conservative ultramontane coalition has won a victory that will in the end prove to be its undoing. The most indefensible position is that of the Conservatives, who in their eagerness to aid Bourassa's candidate have gone to lengths in arousing hatred of Great Britain that will shock the country when fully disclosed."

After quoting the utterances of the Bourassa crowd the Globe continues: "Borden knew what they were saying. He knew, too, that papers like the L'Evenement and L'Echo were asking their readers as Conservatives to vote with the Nationalists against this tyrant England that proposed to send French Canadians to fight her battles, while her own sons remained at home.

BORDEN SCORED

In the face of this infamous campaign he remained silent. Instead of indignantly repudiating the actions of Monk and Blondin, and telling the Blues of the constituency that these gentlemen did not speak for Conservatives, he advised Conservatives to vote as their conscience directed. His culpability is but little short of that of Monk, Bourassa and Blondin.

"The electors of Drummond-Arthabaska have condemned the spending of Canada's own money on her own ships and men. What would they have said to Borden's policy of sending a huge sum of money to Great Britain to be spent on construction of vessels over which Canada would not even have nominal control?

Liberal leaders in Quebec are courageous and patriotic men. They will not become weathercocks because the wind blows high. With patience and firmness they will set themselves to the task of showing their fellow countrymen that the defence of the coasts and commerce of Canada is as much a national duty as the defence of her soil. And they will succeed in the end, for the French-Canadian is at bottom chivalrous and generous, even if he is too susceptible to the Bourassa type of oratory."

SOUTH AFRICAN PARLIAMENT OPENED

Capetown, Nov. 4.—As the representative of his nephew, King George of England, the Duke of Connaught today formally opened the first parliament of the Union of South Africa.

The occasion was made a general holiday, and the troop-lined streets were packed with cheering citizens as the Duke drove through them in state, surrounded by an escort of Colonial cavalry, from Government House to the meeting place of the new legislature. Bands played the National Anthem and the soldiers presented arms as he passed.

At Parliament House, the Governor General, Viscount Gladstone, Premier Botha, his ministerial colleagues, the governors of the various states, and the newly elected senators and representatives awaited the Duke.

The ceremony of opening the session was much like that of opening the English parliament. The Duke, gorgeous in his Field-Marshal's uniform, and wearing his state robes, read the royal speech from a temporary throne in the Senate, concluding with a special message from King George, who would have opened the session himself but for his father's death, and his own succession to the throne, wishing the new constitution good luck and thanking South Africans for their loyal greetings.

LEMIEUX'S TRIBUTE TO GREAT BRITAIN

Cape Town, Nov. 4.—At the Government banquet last night, Dr. Jameson stated that if the solution suggested for the impasse in Great Britain was successful, they might anticipate the first step towards the union of the Empire's five states. He eulogized Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux's settlement of the Asiatic difficulty in Canada.

Mr. Fisher, Premier of Australia, said that nothing had occurred in the world's history in recent times which would have a greater effect than the union of South Africa. They now had five nations willing to co-operate in common affairs, united by unseen bonds to see justice done to all peoples.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux aroused great enthusiasm by an eloquent speech. Mr. Lemieux sent a message to the people of Great Britain that in South Africa as in Canada, England had been great and generous, and, knowing that a brave foe makes a staunch friend, had granted equality and freedom of self-government. The two races in Canada had been welded into one by goodwill and mutual forbearance. The obstacles could be as successfully overcome in South Africa, which was bound to play a brilliant part in the history of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE

The proprietors of Zam-Buk have reason to believe that certain unscrupulous dealers are attempting to hand out to some customers who ask for Zam-Buk some preparation other than Zam-Buk, but on which their profit is greater. At least one case has been brought to light where one of these harmful substitutes—with nothing in the least resembling Zam-Buk in its composition—when used by the purchaser, set up acute irritation; and blood-poison was only averted by applying the genuine Zam-Buk.

This dangerous practice of substitution will be rendered impossible if purchasers will be sure to see the name Zam-Buk (protected by law) on each box before buying, and will refuse to be led astray by plausible talk about something else being "just as good and cheaper" or "practically the same thing," etc., etc.

issue is not indicative of the real feeling of the province, will open up another riding by the resignation of the incumbent, and test the feeling of electors in another by-election.

While no official verification of the story can be obtained it is understood that the new contest will take place either in Beauce or in Kamouraska. Dr. Beland and Ernest Lapointe, who represent these constituencies at Ottawa, are both popular in their ridings, and they claim that an appeal to the people would mean the return of a Liberal candidate.

EXCITEMENT KILLS WOMAN

Victoriaville, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Massiotte, daughter of Paul Tourigny, the great Liberal leader and mayor of Victoriaville, dropped dead at 10 o'clock last night of heart failure, supposed to be due to excitement caused by the election. When he learned of her death, Tourigny said: "It has been a terrible day, I lost my election, and my daughter."
