SIR WILFRID LAURIER SCORES NATIONALIST

Debate on the Address in Reply to Speech From the Throne Starts in Lively--The Premier in Great Speech Refers to Recent Bye Election Which He Declares was Won By a Disloyal Opposition--Hon. George E. Foster Has Come Back.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—The debate on the address began in the commons today. Mr. McGovern, of Ottawa, moved the address and Mr. Lapointe, of Kamouraska, seconded it, speaking in French. Both made good speeches, and cleared the way for guns of larger calibre.

The leader of the opposition followed and showed flashes of actual fire at the opening but soon got lost in a maze of quotations.

Mr. Borden charged that on his western trip Sir Wilfrid had made promises of public works which amounted to virtual bribes to the electors for their votes. On reciprocity, he had a good deal of sympathy with the view, that since we are doing so well why should we desire to do more?

There had recently been an election in Drummond and Arthabaska, and defence of the empire, there should be an appeal to the people. That was the policy of the opposition last year and today.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Sir Wilfrid followed, and was in great fighting form. He declared the one question engrossing the attention of Canada today, was the question of better trade relations with the United States. There could be no greater agency for peace than a benefit not only to Canada but to the mother country as well. For years Canada had been seeking better commercial relations with her great neighbor, and now that better agitation, had declared that the negotiations constituted a supreme disregard for patriotism and common sense, and that only two men in Canada were in favor of them, and these men were Sir Wilfrid and Hon. Mr. Fielding. Sir Wilfrid said this only showed the short-sightedness of Mr. Foster, for no man could believe that the whole of eight million people of Canada objected to begin given easier access to the great market to the south which was afforded by a consuming population of 90,000,000 people.

He was surprised that Mr. Foster should prefer that Canadian grain should rot in the bins of Canada rather than be sent to the market of the United States. The present government had been reasonably successful in finding markets for the produce of Canada, and he believed it would be successful in this case.

Beaconsfield had come back from Berlin declaring that he had brought back a treaty which carried peace with honor. Sir Wilfrid believed that Messrs. Fielding and Paterson would come back from Washington able to declare that they had brought back peace, honor and prosperity to their country.

He could say that the agreement with the United States would not involve the abandonment of the preference which Canada had given to Great Britain.

It was true that the government had not followed the advice on the navy which Mr. Borden had given last year, but had followed the advice of Mr. Borden given the year before.

DRUMMOND ELECTION.

The defeat in Drummond-Arthabaska had been referred to. Sir Wilfrid would say that there were defeats in which there was more honor than was won by the victors. This was one. It was not the naval policy of his majesty's loyal opposition which had won the Drummond-Arthabaska victory. It was not the policy of the government which had been defeated there. The victory had been won by his majesty's most disloyal opposition. It had been won by a remnant of the great Conservative party in Quebec and by certain young Liberal reactionaries who had found the Liberal principles too broad and too loyal for them. They had resorted to dishonest and dastardly tactics of misrepresenting the naval program. From the platform and by pamphlets, which they had circulated, they had declared that the naval bill involved conscription which would send the young men of Canada on the ships of the navy all over the world to fight the battles of England in foreign waters.

Sir Wilfrid declared that the doctrine which had been preached by the victors in Drummond-Arthabaska was one which would not be tolerated in Canada, and would not be tolerated in the Province of Quebec. We had a great and growing commerce which we had to make provision to defend, and we have been developing a great nation which had to assume the responsibilities of a nation. The victory in Drummond-Arthabaska he regarded as a blessing in disguise. Today those who had aided to bring about the result in Drummond-Arthabaska were ashamed of their victory, and were apologizing for it.

The debate was closed by Hon. George E. Foster, who declared against reciprocity with the United States, declaring that the time for it had passed and that Canada should build itself up without regard to the United States.

Mr. Guthrie moved the adjournment of the debate.

HOW CONSCRIPTION

wonder that the whispered story of the conscription spread throughout the riding.

"What seemed like confirmation of the dreadful truth that the blood of Quebec must be shed on the battle fields of Europe, was found in the Nationalist pamphlet of which Armand Lavergne is understood to be the author. In the most skillful way it is represented that the navy will cost $200,000,000, and that every inhabitant of the Dominion will have to contribute $5 towards its cost. No more disgraceful campaigning has ever been done in Canada, than was done by the organization that sent out this circular. What could the inhabitants think when, following up the visit of the bogus census takers, came the distribution of a pamphlet saying 'Mais le sang de nos enfants, c'est autre chose. Une marine mange des millions. Mais ça mange aussi de la chair et du sang.'"

"Has the Armand Lavergne who speaks in Toronto tonight anything to say in defense of the Armand Lavergne who raised the spectre of conscription in Arthabaska two weeks ago?"

DORA THORNE

The large audiences at the Unique last night who witnessed Bertha in Clay's story, "Dora Thorne," expressed themselves as agreeably surprised at the faithful reproduction of the play. It goes to show the value of high-class pictures as a medium of placing these well known factors before the public. Same tonight.

RIGHT HON. SIR WILFRID LAURIER

he thought that the prime minister was sorry now that he had not listened to the Conservative advice of last year, that before committing this country to any scheme, involving permanent co-operation in the relations were in sight there were many in Canada, and all of the opposition, who declared that we should not take a step to promote them.

Mr. Foster, with characteristic ex-
