Many Graceful Tributes Paid To The Late Lieutenant Governor Fraser

Nova Scotia Mourns the Death of One of Her Most Gifted Sons--
A Man of the People, He Was a Popular Governor in the Best Sense--Tributes by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Mr. Fielding and Others.

(Halifax Chronicle)

Every one of our readers who knew the late lieutenant-Governor of this Province, the Honorable Duncan Cameron Fraser, will join in the widespread and genuine sorrow that such a personality has been removed from our midst. He had been for so long so outstanding and interesting a figure not only in our Province but in the national life of Canada, that his death will be very deeply felt. None of the many distinguished sons whom Nova Scotia has contributed to the public life of the nation enjoyed a wider acquaintance and none knew the Canada that he loved so warmly better than the big-hearted, loyal Nova Scotian, who passed to his eternal rest at Guysboro yesterday morning.

He always stood out for what was upright and commonsense and just. Throughout his career—as student, lawyer, legislator, Judge and Governor, he never changed from the big-hearted, genial Scotsman; full of commonsense and humor, despising show and sham, and able to pass everywhere as the genuine metal. The humor of the late Lieutenant-Governor was one of his most marked characteristics; he was known as a good story-teller from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and some of his best stories were told at his own expense. One of the best hustings-orators in Canada, his memory is still green in constituencies all over the Dominion.

Lieutenant-Governor Fraser, like the majority of his fellow countrymen, got his early education as a result of personal sacrifices hard work and determination. On the foundation acquired at Dalhousie College he kept building all his life and he was one of the most widely read men in the Province, having in his later years at the Government House and in such retirement as was possible, kept adding to his well-stored mind. His contact with men and affairs had been close and extensive. He was a broad-minded and charitable—an intensely human man. While never bitter as a politician, he was extremely decided in his views, and no man could ever mistake the side to which D. C. Fraser was allied. As a Governor, no man could tell that he had ever had political leanings. When he left, the political arena for a higher and more detached sphere, he dropped his politics completely; and though there is no question that he followed the course of affairs with intense eagerness all his life, it was as one withdrawn from the field who watches the struggle from a neutral territory.

The Lieutenant-Governor was democratic to the hilt, and it was as such that he made his deepest impression on the public mind, and left his greatest mark on the life of his native Province. His tenure of the office of Lieutenant-Governor wrought some pronounced changes in Government House, which few will be found to say were not for the better. Probably no man has ever held the office in this Province who had a closer sympathy with the people, who understood them better, or whose passing was more sincerely regretted.

Duncan Cameron Fraser has gone to his reward in the very plenitude of his mental powers. He has passed away in the enjoyment of the highest honors that his native Province could bestow upon one of her sons. He has left behind him a record of which Nova Scotians are justly proud. He gave of his best to the State, in the halls of Parliament, in the law Courts and in the Government's Council. A son of the farm, he rose by sheer force of native ability and exceptional gifts to the highest post in the gift of his countrymen.

In Church as in State he took his part, not as a sectarian—although none was more loyal to the Church of his fathers—but as one who recognized that true religion rose above the narrow bounds of creed. As Lieutenant-Governor, he commanded the esteem and the affection of the whole people, but it is as Duncan Fraser, the man, that his memory will be cherished by Canadians far and near.

To Mrs. Fraser, who shared so graciously with the Lieutenant-Governor the honors of Government House, and their family, the sympathy of the whole Province will go out in generous measure. Their loss is Canada's loss.

SIR WILFRID GRIEVED

Ottawa, Sept. 25—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was notified this morning by telegram from Halifax of the death of Lieut. Governor Fraser. The Prime Minister received the news with the keenest regret and expressed heartfelt sorrow at the loss of one of his oldest and best friends of the Liberal Guard. The Lieut. Governor and Sir Wilfrid were always warm personal friends from time the former first entered Parliament. While the Premier following his invariable rule declined to give out for publication any set tribute to his deceased colleague in Parliament, he privately declared his sincere grief at the loss of a big hearted and always lovable friend of many years standing. The late Lieut. Governor was one of Sir

Wilfrid's colleagues during his tour of Western Canada in 1894 and the intimate relations between them during the old days in Opposition and continued ever since were feelingly spoken of today by Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Similar expressions of regret at his death, of appreciation of his compelling qualities both of head and heart were made by Hon. Wm. Pater-son, Sir Frederick Borden and others of his old associates in Parliament.

MR. FIELDING'S TRIBUTE.

Hon. Mr. Fielding wired the following to the Halifax Chronicle from Newcastle on learning of Governor Fraser's death:

"On my way to Ottawa, I have received the sad news of the death of Lieut. Governor Fraser. It was unexpected, because, although when I visited him at Guysboro on Tuesday last, I realized that he was very ill, I found him so cheerful and hopeful that I thought he would probably be spared for a little longer time. His death is a great loss not only to his immediate family, but to an exceptionally large circle of personal friends to whom he was much endeared. To me the loss is a personal one, for I had been intimately associated with him for the greater part of my life. Few men who have engaged so largely in the strife of politics have been able to pass through it with so many friends as D. C. Fraser. His opponents, no less than his friends, were won by his frank and genial manner. Enemies he had none. Those who were brought in contact with him whether in private, political or personal life were counted his friends. In the field of politics, he was a tower of strength to the Liberal Party. This was shown on many occasions, but particularly when many years ago he accompanied Sir Wilfrid Laurier in a tour of the Western Provinces, only less notable than that which Sir Wilfrid has recently concluded. In the Provincial Government and Legislature, where I had the pleasure of being one of his colleagues, and in the House of Commons at Ottawa where I again found myself associated with him, he rendered valuable service to the State. When he withdrew from the activities of party he served the State no less faithfully in the offices of Judge and Lieutenant Governor. In his travels abroad as well as at home, he was always marked by his fervent patriotism and his devotion to Nova Scotia and to the Dominion. No man who has passed away in our time was more widely or more sincerely mourned than Governor Fraser will be."

formed on general civic matters. Quiet and reserved he was, but he nevertheless found opportunity to do much good. Mr. Bowden married Miss Phoebe Comerford, daughter of Mr. Patrick Comerford, the first shipping master of St. John. Mrs. Bowden has been for some time in the west with her two daughters, Mrs. E. D. Ressler, wife of Prof. Ressler of the State College at Corvallis Oregon and Miss Florence. She is not very robust in health and so will not likely return to St. John. Mr. W. C. Bowden the well known musician, of this city is the only son. The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock on Saturday from the residence of his son, 74 Sydney street.
