Crippen Acts Like a Man Who Knows He Will Go Free

So Says Governor Morin, of the Provincial Jail, After Close Scrutiny of His Prisoner---Dr. Crippen Appears Care Free and Cheerful---Shows Himself a Man of Iron Nerve if Frail of Body---Has He a Secret Back of it All, is Asked

ETHEL LE NEVE OFFERED $20,000 FOR A VAUDEVILLE ENGAGEMENT

Quebec, Aug. 6.—Has Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen something up his sleeve?

In the cellar of his London home, burned beyond the semblance of humanity by quantities of quick-lime surrounding, is found a mass of boneless human flesh. His actress-wife, Belle Elmore drops from sight. Dr. Crippen, under the shadow of police suspicion, breaks faith with Scotland Yard, flees the country in company with his girl stenographer, disguised as his son, the most dramatic chase of modern times ending in a sensational capture incarceration and forth coming trial.

Yet in the face of all knowing that one of the world's greatest detective forces is striving with every energy with every ounce of the tremendous powers behind it to weave about him a mass of evidence that may ultimately lead to the tightening of the hangman's noose about his neck, Dr. Crippen is calm, cool, and collected, almost to the point of indifference.

PHYSICALLY PUNY, MENTALLY STRONG

The wild trans-Atlantic flight, or the sensational arrest, with its dramatic settings, might well have wrecked the nerves of a man much stronger than Dr. Crippen appears to be from a physical standpoint. But almost frail as he appears to be from the physical standpoint, the man who led the police of England such a desperate chase must have concealed beneath his almost delicate exterior an iron will and a nerve of steel.

He did not flinch when, with the goal almost in sight, the unexpected and unlooked-for police net suddenly tightened its coils about him.

He was calm, much more collected perhaps than his captors when they rushed him from the deck of the Montrose through the crowd of wild-eyed spectators at the local docks, and with dramatic effect literally tossed him into the narrow confines of the stone-walled cell.

His nerve did not desert him when with his hands manacled, he was lattered through a crowding throng of spectators to be given a brief preliminary hearing. He was cool and deliberate in choosing his answers to the routine questions asked; prompt and decisive in stating, "I am not guilty" to the query, "Are you guilty of being a Fugitive Offender?"; undisturbed when hastily rushed back to the prison cells.

Nothing has yet occurred to shake the calm and confidence displayed by the undersized man who is accused of one of the most brutal murders in the criminal annals.

WHAT IS BEHIND IT?

And what is back of it all? Rushed into his cell in the dark hours of night, Dr. Crippen sat down on the edge of his cot, chuckled to himself, then burst into laughter. Had he in his mind some plan of turning the tables on his captors, despite the fact that the mass of circumstantial evidence now so easily apparent, is pointing an accusing finger against him from which he can scarcely escape. The laugh may, perhaps have been the hysterical jangle of nerves taxed beyond their farthest limit, or the laugh of a man whose brain had been unhinged by the nerve-wracking episodes which, more than sufficient to last out an ordinary lifetime had been crowded into a few weeks and hours.

NERVES ALL RIGHT

But if Dr. Crippen's nerves are unstrung when after his dramatic capture he was ushered into the dimly-lighted cell, they have recovered from the shock and as with perfect health and collected thoughts he paces up and down the narrow corridor of his jail today he can view in their relative light, and invest with their true significance the events which will form a large part of the circumstantial evidence Scotland Yard is bound to use against him. And evidently the outlook has no terrors for Crippen.

Untroubled, apparently and with a bearing that indicates as plainly as words his belief that his fight for life will have a successful culmination, he reads the literature provided for him by the jailor, or walks quietly up and down the short corridor, which he is permitted to use in the daytime. His bearing, his every movement, seem to voice unspoken words that he is going back to the scene of the crime to fight and fight successfully, against the mass of facts which, at the present time, apparently have but one interpretation.

The gallows seems to be casting its sinister shadow over the man who was the hare in the great chase before the hounds of Scotland Yard. Yet the hare, with every apparent confidence in the outlook, will go back to England to face his trial. He will go without the formality of a fight on this side of the ocean; to all appearances convinced that he has more than a loophole by which he can escape the clutches of the law and the fate which must be his should he fail to do so.

"He is not the kind of man who would commit suicide," says Gaoler Morin of Crippen, discussing with the Herald the fact that the prisoner was not to be shaved by prison barbers with the ordinary razor. "No," added the gaoler, "he acts like a man who is sure he is going to be free."

And seeing more of the prisoner than any other person. Gaoler Morin knows.

GIRL CONFIDENT TOO.

And while Ethel Le Neve's nerves have even yet scarcely recovered from the succession of terrific shocks which came in such rapid succession, the girl's general bearing is one of confidence in the ultimate outcome. To her present position, now that the first shock of being confined behind stone walls and iron bars has worn off, the stenographer-wife of the prisoner, jointly charged with the man whom she claims as her husband in the ghastly crime, is self-possessed, and has a confident bearing, much the same as that of her fellow prisoner.

Dr. Crippen is a man of mental qualities, of intelligence. Ethel Clara Le Neve has also these qualities. Both know the significance of Belle Elmore's disappearance, the discovery of a charred body buried in the depth of Dr. Crippen's cellar, of the flight which followed when the first finger of suspicion was pointed in their direction.

In face of it all, the prisoners have an air of confidence. What does it mean? No one knows. Until the trial which the people of two continents will follow commences in old London the question cannot be answered. Time alone will bring a show-down, and reveal the secret which inspires the man charged with so calm and confident a bearing.

CRIPPEN PAPERS SENT TO MR. JUSTICE GIROUARD.

Quebec, Aug. 6.—All the local documents dealing with the Crippen case have been sent to Mr. Justice Girouard, at Murray Bay, in whom the authority is vested during the absence of the Governor General and Sir Charles Fitzpatrick. All that is required now is Detective Sergeant Mitchell with his papers. Crippen's term here expires on August 15th.

The prison authorities state that instructions have been received not to allow Dew to censor or inspect cables or telegrams which come for the prisoners. This is to be left to the discretion of the governor of the prison. The local cable offices were instructed from headquarters to deliver and accept any messages which Crippen and Miss Le Neve may desire to send to England or elsewhere, collected.

TORONTO WIFE WAS BELLE ELMORE.

New York, Aug. 6.—Interviewed last night, Fred K. Mersinger, of 685 Grove Street, East Williamsburg, Belle Elmore's stepfather, said that his step-daughter and Crippen had lived in Toronto twelve years ago and that so far as he knew they were never separated.

LE NEVE GIRL GETS A BIG OFFER.

Quebec, Aug. 6.—At a salary of $1,000 a week, and a guaranteed engagement of twenty weeks, Ethel Clara Le Neve can step from the prison to the vaudeville stage providing she goes free after being tried on the charge of murder, of which she is jointly accused with Dr. Crippen.

H. M. Korkimer, an enterprising New York theatrical man, last night wired the imprisoned girl, making her this offer, and the telegram will be shown her today, along with several others which are now waiting the return of Inspector Dew.

GREATER QUIETNESS NOW PREVAILS SAN SEBASTIAN

San Sebastian, Aug. 8.—The city continues tranquil, no further attempt at demonstrations having been made since a group of the more hot-headed clerical adherents yesterday gathered in the streets with shouts of "Death to Spain, long live the Pope."

Thetroops, however, will remain in the summer capital for several days. The authorities express the greatest confidence that the fiasco of the anti-government manifestation marks the end of Carlism, of an attempt at a revolution in favor of the pretender, but they are plainly nervous, as they fully realize the blind devotion of the peasant population of the Basque provinces who had been moved on by the priests and the monks. Sixteen priests and monks were among the persons arrested on Sunday on charges of attempting to provoke disorder.

At Pittsburg, Harry Coleman broke his cousin's neck in a wrestling bout, and is in jail awaiting hearing on a formal charge of murder. The cousin, Joseph Smith, died Sunday, after lying unconscious for ten days. The two men are said to have been fast friends, but always disputing each other's prowess. It is expected that Coleman will be released after a hearing.

DR. PUGSLEY INSPECTS KINGSTON DRY-DOCK

Satisfied with Condition of Things---Will Have Timber Wharves at Limestone City Replaced by Wharves of Cement.

Kingston, Aug. 5.—Hon. Dr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, in company with M. B. Hunter, Deputy Minister, came from Brockville today on the Government boat, "Speedy." The purpose of Dr. Pugsley's visit was to inspect drydock leased by the Government to the Kingston Shipbuilding Company. In an interview Dr. Pugsley said: "I wanted to see what was being done in connection with the drydock here, and to look over the buildings being erected for the purpose of repairing boats. I am satisfied with the condition of things." While here the distinguished visitor in company with Hon. William Hartly made a call on Sir Richard Cartwright at "The Maples." He also visited the Locomotive Works, and was astonished at the magnificence of this up-to-date plant. Hon. William Hartly took the Minister to the Royal Military College to look over the property, as it was Dr. Pugsley's first visit to these famous military quarters. He was much impressed, and promised to aid in securing the establishment here of the much-needed dormitories and a drill-house. He will also see that the

INTERNATIONAL ROAD CONFERENCE IN SESSION

Brussels, Aug. 8.—The International Road Conference, which opened its sessions here July 31st, finishes its work Saturday and adjourned, the members remaining for several attractive excursions organized by the Belgian government.

The delegates say that the great lesson of the conference is the showing of the absolute necessity for the introduction of a uniform system of road building in America. Jas. W. Jones, of New York, one of the representatives of the Automobile Touring Club of America, said today that chaos is bound to prevail so long as the idea that local engineers should have full control of road building obtained in America.

"We need," said Mr. Jones, "a system like that in France of National State and country roads decreasing in width according to the importance of the traffic and built at the expense of the national government and the states."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fraser Gregory and the Misses M. O. Murray and M. G. Murray of St. John were registered at the Queen on Sunday.

wharves are renewed by replacing the timbers with cement. Dr. Pugsley and Mr. Hartly left this afternoon, and will go up the lakes as far as Sault Ste. Marie.

BROGAN PITCHED GOOD GAME AT ST. JOHN.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER

Brogan pitched at St. John for the Clippers Saturday, and the Clippers won 5 to 2. If Brogan can produce a similar result tomorrow, Fredericton fans won't do a thing. The Marysville twirler started Saturday's game by passing a man and allowing two hits. Then he settled down and pitched good ball. During the game he struck five men out and allowed but three bases on balls. He also figured in four assists and got one hit and one run.

There was a reception at Battleford at night with a torchlight procession and bands, followed by brief addresses by the premier, Hon. Mr. Graham, Messrs. Pardee and McDonald.

Sir Wilfrid will be joined tomorrow at Lloydminster by Hon. Frank Oliver, who had just returned from a trip to the Yukon, and Provincial Premier Sifton.
