STRIKES CLOSE MANY PAPER MILLS

Glens Falls, N.Y., March 10.—The strike at the International paper mill is spreading daily from one mill to another in addition to the shut down of the South Glens Falls plant, the mill at Niagara Falls closed down yesterday and this afternoon the mill at Fort Edward will close making five mills of the company which are not running. Strike breakers were run into the South Glens Falls plant last night but the boss machine tenders at the plant struck today in sympathy with the strikers, which badly crippled the company in starting any of its machines. Thus far no more riots have occurred at Corinth, which is due to the protection given by Company L. of Saratoga. Here at Glens Falls no trouble has occurred.

Guide Braithwaite's Won Out in the Courts

Mr. Henry Braithwaite, the veteran Miramichi guide, whose home is in this city, won a great victory in the Supreme Court here on Feb. 17th, when that body, without a dissenting voice, upheld the order of Judge Wilson, quashing a conviction against him for an alleged violation of the game law. It was certainly a great feat for "Uncle Henry," and a great victory for the guide who has triumphed over his enemies and has been relieved by the courts from the payment of an unjust penalty of $100 and an outrageous bill of costs amounting to $97.

To go briefly into the history of the case, it might be explained that Uncle Henry was accused of having caribou meat in his possession at one of his camps in the Miramichi woods during the close season of 1908. The information was laid by an amateur game warden named Fairley, in the employ of a wealthy New Yorker, who felt that it was up to him to do something to square accounts with Braithwaite for having charged him with shooting cow moose as a sort of pastime.

The charge against Braithwaite was lodged with a North Shore magistrate and special care seems to have been taken to make the bill of costs as heavy as possible. Mr. Braithwaite was in the woods at the time following his vocation as a guide, and the case seemed to be so urgent that the authorities could not wait until he returned home, but must send a constable a distance of over fifty miles into the woods to serve the papers. Neither could they wait until he had completed an engagement with two sportsmen who had come all the way from England to hunt with him, and who were paying handsomely for his services. No, the veteran guide was compelled to break his engagement and present himself in court at Chatham for the trial of the case. A number of witnesses were examined and it was shown that an American sportsman whom Mr. Braithwaite was guiding had shot a small caribou a few days before the season opened. It was further shown that Mr. Braithwaite was some distance away at the time and was not a party to the shooting. When he found that the caribou had been killed, and being unable to bring it back to life, he did what most any other man would have done in his place—he took some of the meat to his camp for food. For this grave offence he was convicted and heavily fined.

His counsel took the case before Judge Wilson on review, and His Honor after hearing argument, pro and con, made an order quashing the conviction. Cases under the game act are supposed to be prosecuted by the Crown Land Department, but in this instance it is pretty well known that an American citizen, prompted by a spirit of revenge, was putting up the cash to keep the machinery of the law in motion, although Surveyor-General Grimmer was a consenting party, and the responsibility is upon his shoulders as he was in a position to stop the proceedings had he desired to do so.

The decision of Judge Wilson was not satisfactory to the eminent counsel retained to prosecute the case and they carried the case to the Supreme Court on certiorari. Ald. J. J. F. Winslow of this city, argued the case for Mr. Braithwaite, and cited authorities to prove that Judge Wilson had jurisdiction to review a case from Northumberland County, and having reviewed and decided it his decision was final. Mr. Winslow was able to clinch his argument by citing a former decision of the Supreme Court.

The costs in the case which will amount to a very snug sum, were ordered to be paid by the prosecution. Mr. Braithwaite is New Brunswick's oldest and best known guide and his reputation as a woodsman and trapper is not confined to one continent. He claims to be the first white man

MINE OWNERS AND MINERS TALK WAGES

Cincinnati, O., March 10.—General discussion of the demands of the miners was continued today at the conference of operators and miners of soft coal in the central competitive field, which embraces Ohio, Indiana and Western Pennsylvania.

The operators, as on yesterday, declared they could not grant the ten cents per ton increase and any of the other demands made by the miners. H. L. Chapman, one of the largest Ohio coal operators, presented figures which he used in support of his declaration that "if present demands of miners are persisted in it will be only a short time till the Ohio coal industry will be a thing of the past. Ohio coal mines will have to shut down and the 60,000 miners and the thousands of other employees dependent upon the coal industry of Ohio will have to seek employment in other states."

The miners, in their arguments, declared that the higher cost of living compelled them to ask for higher wages.

SCORES DIRTY HANDS

New York, March 8.—"Dirty hands are causing more deaths than bullets, poison, railway accidents and earthquakes combined," writes Dr. R. G. Eccles in the February number of the Health Bulletin.

"We cannot call that murder which lacks intent to kill," he continues, "but so near to murder is it that, with increased public knowledge, the time is sure to come when dirty-handed people will have to endure the opprobrium that will make them skulk in shame."

"People who are willing to tolerate the visible dirt are pretty sure to be none too careful concerning the dangerous dirt. The two kinds get blended."

"It is, however, not only possible, but actually probable, that there are foul and filthy hands that are by their owners kept manicured till fingernails shine and every vestige of visible blackness has disappeared."

"They wash as they eat and sleep, under the guidance of a cook. That there is a fitness in time for washing in order to be clean has not dawned upon them."

"It is the unseen dirt that plays the mischief with human life, because it is alive, and can multiply indefinitely."

"It is quite likely that nearly all normal persons wash their hands and faces on getting up in the morning, or after particularly dirty forms of work, but with very many the absence of visible dirt is sufficient excuse for the neglect of washing at all other times of the day."

"Hands that are able to pollute water by a mere touch cannot possibly be shaken without leaving behind evidence of dirt."

Dr. Eccles asserts that dirty hands may lead to plague, cholera, typhoid fever, consumption, diphtheria, scarlet fever and many other diseases.

to guide a non-resident sportsman into the woods of New Brunswick, and there are none to dispute his claim. He is today the best advertisement that the province has for its sporting attractions. His opinion on all matters pertaining to woodcraft are eagerly sought after by scientific men in the United States, and when published are sure to be extensively quoted. No man in this province is better posted in regard to the habits and characteristics of wild animals than Henry Braithwaite and it is not much wonder that sportsmen all over the continent pay homage to him.

The fact that Uncle Henry is the father of the guiding business which now yields the province a revenue of upwards of $30,000 annually, should entitle him to at least decent treatment from those in charge of provincial affairs, and he has not had that during the past fifteen months. His many friends have every reason to rejoice that the attempt to put the old man down and out has so signally failed.

NEW YORK HEARS OF ASQUITH SEPARATION

New York, March 9.—One of the New York yellow journals prints as a special cable from its London correspondent a most sensational and highly improbable story about Premier Asquith and his American wife (who was Miss Dorothy Tennant). The story, given for what it is worth, is as follows:

The report that Prime Minister Asquith and his wife are to seek "judicial separation," is no longer whispered but has become a favorite conversational topic in London Society.

While the news of an actual break came as a surprise to many, it has long been known that the Asquiths did not live happily together. Many thought that for reasons of policy they would not invite the publicity of court proceedings. It is now almost certain that Mr. Asquith will resign the leadership of the Liberal party and retire as Prime Minister. He will be made a peer by King Edward, if the present programme is carried out, and find a scope for his ability in other channels.

A STRANGE TALE.

Within two weeks the Premier is said to have offended King Edward by appearing before him too soon after having lunched well but not wisely. He came to ask a pledge from the King that His Majesty would sustain the government's hand in the matter of abolishing the veto in the House of Lords.

"I will give you no pledge," the King is reported to have said tartly, "but I advise you, sir, to take one." The very fact that Mr. Asquith is to be made a peer is likely to delay the legal steps toward a separation. Mrs. Asquith is entirely too ambitious to lose the opportunity of becoming a peeress.

Many things contributed to the domestic unhappiness of the Asquiths. Matters have reached such an acute stage that no sooner does the Premier arrive at the official residence than the wife packs her trunks and leaves for the country. Mrs. Asquith's eccentricities and want of tact are offset by Mr. Asquith's irritability, and increasing quest for stimulation.

The "great ladies" of the Liberal party attend official functions at the house on Downing street, but they do not call informally on Mrs. Asquith, later. They have learned from experience that she takes no pains to conceal her boredom when she is not with her small and eccentric set. Her friendship for Maud Allan, the dancer has been the cause of more than one family squabble. Miss Allan has a great influence over the Premier's wife and has had her social support despite all frowns from society.

GROUND TO DEATH IN TANNING VAT

Newark, N.J., March 10.—After falling into a vat filled with tanning acid William Karcher was ground to death today by the revolving steel ladles in the leather manufacturing works of Blancard Bros. and Lane. Karcher was superintending the mixing of the acid to tan the leather when he slipped and plunged into the vat. When the machinery was stopped he had been ground to pieces.

IDENTITY OF THE CAPITALISTS IS CONSIDERABLE OF A PUZZLE TO THE PEOPLE IN CANADA.

Ottawa, Ont., March 9.—The question in which all Canada is at present very much interested is who are the American capitalists back of the power project at the Long Sault Rapids of the St. Lawrence River. One answer is that Arthur Davis, the controlling spirit of the Pittsburgh Reduction Company, which owns and controls the entire aluminum production of the American continent, is the most active figure in the scheme. This company, it is pointed out, is in turn practically owned and controlled by the Standard Oil Company.

Here, then, is the organization which Canadians believe is to furnish the many millions of money for the capital of the enterprise, in case the Dominion Government decides eventually to allow the promoters to carry out their great electrical power project. At the present time it looks very much as if such permission, with certain restrictions, will be granted unless the report of the International Waterways Commission is decidedly unfavorable to the scheme.

If the promoters are allowed the charter they ask for, the company, it is said, will be capitalized at about $150,000,000. The amount cannot be much less in view of the fact that the company hopes to finally develop upward of 700,000 horse-power. It is estimated that the minimum cost of preparation for such power is $100 per horse-power. This would mean $70,000,000. It is proposed to develop only 200,000 as the initial production. Mr. Davis has been in consultation with practical river men and engineers in Montreal this week.

Hitherto the scheme has been somewhat shrouded in mystery, as a result of the failure of the promoters to disclose the names of the capitalists backing them in the enterprise, and the question has been little discussed except before the Waterways Commission at Toronto a few days ago. The commission has reserved its decision until the next meeting at Buffalo in March. The Premier of Ontario was very emphatic in his declaration before the commission that if this scheme is put through other schemes of like character will be attempted, and such will be the resulting interference with the rapids of the St. Lawrence River, a national asset to Canada, that Quebec Province also will have to take a strong stand in the matter.

During a seamen's strike a raw Johnnie offered his services to assist on board a ship that was leaving Glasgow. He was accepted. When out at sea one day he was ordered to go out and repair a rope on the boom, but Johnnie said—"Na, na, 'am no' gaun oot there." "Why?" said the mate. "Weren't you engaged to go before the mast?" "Oh, ay," was the canny reply, "but I was not engaged to gang afore the boat."

When cooking milk or soups of any kind, always use a wooden spoon for stirring. Never take a tin spoon for this purpose, especially if the soup contains any acid like tomatoes, as this unites with the tin and forms a poisonous compound.
