Tablecloths, napkins, and towels should be darned neatly on the wrong side as soon as they become thin and worn and before the thread breaks. It will make them last much longer and look better.

If the lamp smokes or gives a poor light it may be merely dirty. Take the lamp apart, boil the burner in soda water and pour scalding hot water through the tubes and connecting rods.

Bananas are nourishing, but many children cannot eat them without prolonged indigestion. If they are mashed with a fork and beaten to a cream they will not harm the smallest child and can be eaten with a spoon.

Small white spots on the finger nails may be removed by bandaging them at night with a lined cloth spread with a mixture of myrrh and turpentine. In the morning bathe the fingers in olive oil.

STUDENTS START TO WRECK THEATRE

Winnipeg, Nov. 1.—(Special).—During their Halloween frolics, students of Manitoba College took possession of the Empress vaudeville theatre stage and started a show of their own. When they threatened the safety of the scenery they were ejected, but returned, armed with rocks and clubs and the police officers fired several shots into the air before the boys dispersed. Two policemen were slightly injured.

A HAZEN MIRACLE.

(St. John Times New Reporter.)

"The age of miracles is not past," said Mr. Peter Binks this morning. "Look at the miracle of the apples, performed by the Hazen government. There were no apples in New Brunswick prior to March, 1908. In that year the Hazen government came into power. During the summer of 1908 Mr. Hazen selected orchard lands, and in the spring of 1909 the orchards were planted. Now, in the fall of 1910, a little over a year later, there is a magnificent display of fruit in St. Andrew's rink, gathered from the orchards planted by Mr. Hazen and Dr. Landry a year ago last spring. In any other country it would take trees several years to bear fruit, but the Hazen government performed a miracle. I heard a man argue today that every apple shown was picked from trees planted before Mr. Hazen became premier, but that is absurd, sir—utterly absurd. Behold a miracle."

Doctor Told Her She Did Not Have a Pint of Good Blood in Her Body

Mrs. Dosithe P. Cormer, Middle Sackville, N. B., says:

"In the spring of 1897 I was all run down, and the doctor told me I had not a pint of good blood in my body. I took different remedies from doctors, but they did not seem to do me any good. After having taken a lot of different other kinds of medicine, and they did not seem to benefit me, I was almost in despair and did not know what to do until my husband met a lady and told her about my sickness, and she told him to try Burdock Blood Bitters as she had received the greatest benefit from using it. My husband went and bought me a bottle and after having taken it I felt better, so I kept on using one bottle after another until I had taken six in all and then I was strong and well. I am positive that my being alive today is due to the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. One spring since then I was not feeling very well and had a lot of work to do. I thought I would procure a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and after I had taken two I was able to do a lot of hard work all the summer, and I never felt better in my life. In the winter of 1906 I had pneumonia, and it left me with a severe pain in the left side. Every morning when I would get out of bed I had to sit down for a while it was so painful. After I had used Burdock Blood Bitters the pain disappeared completely. It has also cured me of bleeding piles. I have received so much benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters that you may publish this as it may help others as it has me."

A HAZEN WHARF.

The Hazen Government lately constructed a wharf at Upper Maugerville, which is said to be considerable of a freak. A gentleman who lately made a trip down river on the Str. Hampstead had his attention attracted to the structure in a forcible way. The boat had pulled into the structure and there were four ladies who undertook to disembark. They made several attempts to reach the wharf and failing, they were obliged to go to the upper deck, from which they managed to transfer themselves to the wharf pier, and then climb down a distance of four feet. A male passenger was compelled to crawl up the gang plank on his hands and knees. As one passenger was heard to express it, "the Maugerville wharf is a monument to the Hazen Government."

LORD ALVERSTONE AND CRIPPEN'S CONDEMNATION

Nothing so strongly grips the popular imagination as one of those big murder stories which from time to time are added to the ever lengthening list of "historic crimes." Such a murder was that for which the American doctor, Hawley Harvey Crippen, was sentenced to death by the Judge's entrance the jury is empanelled, the prisoner is arraigned and the clerk reads the indictment to Crippen, who pleads not guilty.

—Mr. Muir, says the Judge, and the leading counsel for the Crown stands up and begins his statement of the case for the prosecution in calm, passionless language, without a gesture, without the slightest attempt at rhetoric, with no trace of feeling against the prisoner, frequently even pointing out facts which may tell in the prisoner's favor. In eighty minutes counsel gives a lucid masterpiece of narrative, throughout which he confined himself to the admitted facts of the long story of the relations between Crippen and his wife and his mistress.

Once only in the four and a half days did the counsel protest at anything that happened. This was done by counsel for the defence, who objected to the introduction of a crown witness after the case for the crown had been closed. The judge said: "I will admit the evidence so far as it is justified by the prosecuting counsel's opening statement." Counsel for the defence remained standing a moment in further protest.

"I will take care of you, Mr. Tobin," said the judge. Counsel bowed and took his seat. The incident occupied hardly a minute.

Not a single witness was examined or cross-examined by counsel on either side without the judge's intervention, sometimes requesting counsel to make his question clearer, sometimes helping the witness to couch his answer; always making every effort to save time. It mattered nothing whether it was a crown or a defence witness, when counsel had finished with him or her, the judge would say: "Now I want to ask a few questions." Then in three or four lucid questions he would elicit in plain, concise form what counsel would take twenty minutes and innumerable questions to get out. Then the judge would ask a few questions always straight to the point, which counsel had overlooked or did not desire to put.

Three loud knocks behind the Judge's seat warned the court of the Chief Justice's entrance, preceded by a mace bearer and accompanied by the officials already mentioned. The Judge and the standing court exchanged bows, and forthwith the trial begins. Twelve men file into the jury box and are sworn one by one to see justice between "Our Sovereign Lord the King" and the prisoner. Three Lord Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, is the most impressive and dignified figure on the British bench. Robed in ermine and scarlet, and attended by the Lord Mayor and sheriffs wearing their official robes and gold chains of office, he is the personification of judicial strength, of which the black and gold scabbard sword is the emblem. Beneath him sat the black gowned, white wigged clerk, and in the well of the court between him and the prisoner's dock where Crippen's dapper, insignificant figure was dwarfed by the burly forms of three warders, sat gowned and wigged counsellors at a large table, at which the instructing solicitors with books and papers were also seated.

TOOK CASE IN HIS OWN HANDS.

A good example of the manner in which Lord Alverstone took the case into his own hands was his dealing with the medical witnesses for the defence. The identification of the mutilated remains apart from the fragment (Continued on page six.)
