CHATHAM HOTEL MAN MEETS HARD LUCK

Gets Convicted and Fined for an Offence for Which he Had Already Paid the Penalty.

Chatham, May 30—A case for a second violation of the Scott Act against Roger Flanagan, proprietor of the Bowser House, commenced last week and was finished today. The case was a somewhat remarkable one. Robert Murray, K.C., appeared for Mr. Flanagan and argued that Mr. Flanagan had been convicted for a second violation of the act before G. B. Fraser, a parish court commissioner, and that he could not be convicted again on a second offence. R. A. Lawlor, K.C., argued for the prosecution that in a case which had been appealed to the supreme court some years ago the court had held that parish court commissioners had no jurisdiction and that therefore the previous conviction of Mr. Flanagan was illegal. In reply, Mr. Murray argued that the supreme court had previously decided that a parish court commissioner had jurisdiction and that the case, having been made and the penalty paid and that conviction never having been set aside or quashed there should not be another conviction for a second offence.

Judge Connors, in giving his decision, said that the courts had decided that the conviction of a parish court commissioner is not good. The latest decision of the supreme court, ex parte Flanagan, given by Judge Tuck and others, established that point, previous decisions having been therefore overruled. The evidence showed that Mr. Flanagan was convicted and fined by Mr. Fraser and that he paid the fine. The court felt that it would be like highway robbery to collect the fine again, but no course was left to him but to make the conviction and let the inspector suit himself about enforcing it. Mr. Flanagan would have his own remedy after that. A fine of $100 and costs with the option of two months in jail, was imposed.

Germany still mad on dreadnoughts $65,000,000 More Voted for Purpose of Keeping up the Mad Race for Naval Supremacy.

Berlin, May 31—Large increases in the naval and military expenditures, as estimated, were announced by M. Vonn Bilinski, minister of finance, today when he described the future requirements of the service to the finance commission of the Reichstag. The minister said that the reduction of the term for military service with the consequent increase in the number of recruits would necessitate a permanent addition to the military expenditure of at least $18,750,000 annually.

The building of Dreadnoughts to replace old warships would require an outlay of $65,000,000. Provision for the expenditures would be made through loans.

The Engineers' Dance last night at the College Gymnasium was quite up to the standard and equalled the dances of other years. The attendance was large, many graduates of U. N. B., being present. The dance programme provided for eighteen dances and three extras. Refreshments were served in the basement of the gymnasium. The reading room was used for sitting out.

Flags formed the chief decoration of the main body of the gymnasium where the dancing took place. The decorations of the reading room were particularly striking.

The chaperones of the dance were Mesdames Jones, Bailey and Stone.

It is argued by the promoters of the scheme that universal military service is not conscription and that it "would strengthen and consolidate the Empire as nothing else can, and thus make for righteousness and peace."

The fact is disclosed that before the King died a petition was in circulation praying His Majesty to take a stand in favor of universal military service.

Today the Liberal papers hotly denounce this petition, declaring that if the militarists think the quiet mood now prevailing can be utilized to allay the political crisis by forcing the pace in the direction of conscription, they will speedily be disillusioned. The matter seems likely, unless the petition is at once dropped, to provoke a national uproar.

NOVA SCOTIAN'S HORRIBLE DEATH

Caught in a Bear Trap Eighteen Miles in the Woods and Died After Reaching Camp.

Annapolis Royal, May 30—With blood streaming from his mouth, Howard Rorton, made his way to the lumber camp at Eight Mill Stream, and after telling a story of a frightful ordeal, expired. Rorton had left on Friday of last week to go through the woods and collect the traps that he had set during the winter. About eighteen miles from the camp he had a large bear trap. When he came to this Rorton who has only one arm, finding it unsprung attempted to spring it with a stick held in his right hand. He did this all right but was not quick enough in withdrawing his arm which was caught fast in the jaws of the trap, tearing the flesh right into the bone. The harder the wounded man tried to release himself, the tighter the trap clung.

At last Rorton decided that the only thing to do was to try and make his way to camp, although he feared that he would be overcome by the frightful agony that he was suffering. This occurred about seven o'clock Friday evening. The night was cloudy and Rorton found it so dark that he had the greatest difficulty in finding his way. After he had managed to travel about ten miles, he lost his way, and stumbling over the root of a tree, was thrown forward and a sharp bit of wood pierced his throat. In addition to this his leg was broken. Fearing that he would die from loss of blood, the suffering man dragged himself the remaining eight miles to the camp arriving there about seven o'clock Saturday morning. After telling the above story he became unconscious and expired late the same day, death being due to loss of blood. The deceased was about forty years of age and leaves a widow and three children.

RIPARIAN OWNERS ARE PROPRIETORS OF WATER POWERS

Quebec Court Decides that the Provincial Government Can't Sell Power Rights of Non-Navigable Streams.

Ottawa, May 31—By a judgment of Mr. Justice Champagne in the Superior Court sittings at Hull this morning, the important principle was laid down that, by Quebec law, property owners along a non-navigable river within the province are legal proprietors of the bed of the river. Consequently water powers are the property of the riparian owners, and cannot be disposed of by the Provincial Government. If this decision is upheld by the higher courts it will have a far-reaching effect on the electric power situation in Quebec.

The case in point was that of David Marshall, a riparian owner along the Gatineau River, against Hanson Bros., brokers, of Montreal, and the Attorney-General of Quebec. Justice Champagne holds that Marshall as owner of the bed of the river, has also ownership of the water powers at that point, and consequently the Provincial Government has no right to dispose of it.

MOVEMENT FOR CONSCRIPTION IN HOME LAND

London, May 31—Intense resentment has been caused in Liberal circles by the revelation that a movement is on foot to exploit the mood of the nation resulting from the death of King Edward in the interests of conscription. The proposal is that the national memorial to Edward VII shall take the form of a voluntary demand on the part of the people for universal military service.

It is argued by the promoters of the scheme that universal military service is not conscription and that it "would strengthen and consolidate the Empire as nothing else can, and thus make for righteousness and peace."

The fact is disclosed that before the King died a petition was in circulation praying His Majesty to take a stand in favor of universal military service.

Today the Liberal papers hotly denounce this petition, declaring that if the militarists think the quiet mood now prevailing can be utilized to allay the political crisis by forcing the pace in the direction of conscription, they will speedily be disillusioned. The matter seems likely, unless the petition is at once dropped, to provoke a national uproar.

WATER POWERS BELONG TO PEOPLE

Hon. Mr. Graham Has Done a Lot of Thinking Over the Problem, and Has Decided to Lease Powers.

Ottawa, May 31—For some time past the Minister of Railways and Canals has been endeavoring to work out the intricacies that surround the developments of waterpowers incident to the construction of the Trent Canal.

The situation is not an easy one to deal with, as the rights of the property-owners along the river vary according to the dates at which their patents were issued by the Government. Under some of these patents the foreshore owners owned the bed of the river, while under others this is not the case. At different points along the river dams have been constructed and owned by private individuals for years, and these vested rights have the first claim on the Government for any extra power that may be developed at the point where their property lies.

Navigation is the first interest of the department, but the Minister has been endeavoring to get the waterpowers in such shape that that particular part of Ontario at least may be enabled to get the benefit of power at low or reasonable rates. The Government policy of private ownership and public control is being given a fair trial in this enterprise—the power being leased at a comparatively low rental, and in every case stringent conditions for development are attached, then the control of rates which will be charged consumers is being placed in the hands of the Board of Railway Commissioners. While this policy will encourage private enterprise, it will also insure to the public cheap power, and it is expected that that part of Ontario which has been comparatively standing still for lack of power will in a very short time have an ample supply at a fair price.

The Board of Railway Commissioners who have done, and are doing so much in the public interest by the control of other public utilities will doubtless bring the same beneficial results to the users of electrical energy.

Newark, N. J., May 31—Mystery surrounds the loss of $1,500 worth of jewelry in the Salisbury & Jacobsen Company's store, No. 883 Broad St. The jewelry hidden strangely, was found in a strange way too, but its owner has not been discovered.

On a table in the store's millinery department lay a black glove, old, faded, much worn. The department manager picked up the glove. Inside it was another, equally old, but not the mate of that which enveloped it. Plainly the second glove was not empty. To her vast surprise, the manager found in it three brooches and a ring set with diamonds, pearls and other gems.

The manager took the jewelry, which, like the gloves, is old and worn, to Carl Jacobson of the firm. She told him she thought the brooches and ring had been lost or mislaid by one of two fashionable Newark women who had bought hats that day.

Mr. Jacobsen assured himself that the jewelry is of finest workmanship and that some of the diamonds weigh two and a half carats. He called the two women on the phone; each assured him she had lost no jewelry. He waited three days for a claimant. None appearing, he advertised in the local newspapers Saturday that the brooches and ring will be restored to their owner on proper identification.

PRESBYTERIANS AND WESTERN CANADA

Edinburgh, May 30—At the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, Dr. Norman McLeod claimed that no finer work was being done than by the Presbyterian Church of Canada in the Far West. He appealed for further help from Scotland.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh agreed, and said the work of the Presbyterian Church of Canada was worthy of the Scottish race.

What was now spent in Canada would be repaid a thousandfold by the loyalty of a great people, who would become one of the greatest nations in the world.

Mr. W. N. Martin addressed the Assembly in respect to the work of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. Mr. J. M. Duncan spoke to the meeting in connection with Colonial missions, with reference to the problem caused by the immigration to Canada.
