PRACTICAL JOKER
MADE WOMEN WEAR
FURS ON HOT DAY

Women Thought They Could Pass U.
S. Customs But Officials Said
"No."

New York, Sept. 29.—While the tariff has been denounced as the mother of trusts and its iniquities have been held up by Democrats and Republicans, until yesterday no one ever was in a position to declare that the tariff would make a woman wear a fur coat on a summer day. But yesterday a lot of them were wearing winter furs as they came from the Kaiser Wilhelm II. when she docked in Hoboken.

Muffled as if it were the coldest day in winter, comforted and soothed by the erroneous belief that if they wore their furs they could escape the payment of duty, a half dozen or more came down the gangplank only to find that some one had been playing a joke on them.

Some practical joker had circulated the report aboard the steamer that all a woman had to do to escape the payment of the duty was to wear her furs. It worked beautifully, but came near being the death of the fat press agent of the line, who was unable to stand the sight and the heat at the same time. When the news spread about the ship, the women who had purchased coats abroad and had no one to tell them differently proceeded to imagine that it was cold.

JUST LIKE A TURKISH BATH.

"It's awfully chilly this morning, don't you think so?" asked one woman of another, and then to show how chilly it was, wrapped herself in a Persian lamb coat that caused her face to break out in perspiration as though she were in a Turkish bath.

In a few minutes there were a dozen women parading the deck in furs. The show was so queer that when the Customs Inspectors boarded the ship and had the passengers sign declarations they mopped their foreheads and talked about the indications of an early winter and asked if the weather coming over had been very severe.

By the time the boat landed there was a fine assortment of fur-clad women ready to come down the gangplank.

"Beg pardon, but how about this Persian lamb coat?" inquired a customs officer of Mrs. Julia Steinberg, Mrs. Steinberg is stout. Her face was red and she was decidedly uncomfortable with her new next winter's wrap under the close sheds of the pier in the July heat of yesterday.

"IS IT WARMER, ISN'T IT?"

"I am wearing it," said Mrs. Steinberg, "though I do think it's warmer here than it was this morning."

"Well, you didn't declare it," said the inspector.

"Why should I? I am wearing it, can't you see?" replied the passenger, who was slowly melting.

Then she was made to understand that she must pay duty on it. The coat cost $220 and the duty was $111.

It became noised around that Mrs. Steinberg had to pay for her coat, and others sat up and took notice. Mrs. W. Newgold had declared stuff to the value of $37. A Persian lamb jacket that had cost her $80 fell under the ban. She was allowed to pay the duty on it.

HAD TO PAY $130 IN DUTY.

Mrs. Samuel Weinburg was another who fell under the eye of the inspectors. She was perspiring some, waiting for the examination of her baggage. She admitted that her Persian lamb coat cost $300, so she had to pay $300 in duty.

In addition to these there were other women who came ashore with furs which they insisted they had taken abroad, and there was no way to disprove it. Some wore their steamer rugs for shawls.

The sight was too much for the fat press agent who was standing around to see justice was done to the news of the day. When the fourth or fifth fat woman, muffled in furs in the hope of escaping duty, passed, he was in a fainting condition.

MATRI-MONIAL EVENT AT McADAM JUNCTION

McAdam, Sept. 28.—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. William Baker, on Highland Ave., at 5 p. m. The bride was a vision of loveliness in an artistic gown of panella and the bridesmaid was dressed in a gown of old rose. The groom was ably supported by William Gehan, also of the C.P.R. The bride and groom took the Montreal train for Montreal, Toronto and Niagara Falls. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents, a very appropriate one coming from the friends of the groom on Vinegar Hill.

SAVED HIS LIFE BY NEEDLE AND THREAD

Cobalt, Ont., Sept. 30.—(Special.)—Bleeding to death from a fearful gash which had almost severed his foot, and lying alone in the woods far from human aid, Victor Hannan, a prospector, staunchly the flow of blood as best he could, and then, with a needle and thread, coolly stitched up the wound.

Hannan went away in the bush unaccompanied, last week and while hard at work chopping timber, he struck a heavy blow on his foot with the axe utilized. The wound was a severe one, but instead of fainting away, as might have been expected, he set to work and acted as his own surgeon. He recollected that among his goods were a needle and some

DETROIT UNITED RAILWAY TO ISSUE BONDS

f a Million and a Half Can be Raised
Road Will Resume Its Dividends

Detroit, Mich. Sept. 29.—The news that the directors of the Detroit United Railway have under serious consideration the issue of new bonds to the amount of $1,500,000, and will use the money, if obtained, to retire the gold notes soon to become due, was received in Detroit today. The information, however came not from the headquarters of the company in this city, but from Montreal, where the recent activity in D. U. R. is causing many surmises.

Inquiries here as late as Friday last elicited no information from the officials. President Hutchins was out of town and nobody apparently had any inkling of the new financial plan which even then had been sent out to the shareholders in the form of a circular letter. The bonds, to the amount of $1,500,000 are now held in the treasury, and are offered to shareholders, provided they are underwritten at a price to net the company $24.

The intention is to obtain a loan on the bonds and underwriting for one year from February, 1911 which will provide for the payment of the $1,500,000 balance due on the $3,000,000 gold notes. The price at which the bonds are offered will yield the investor a return of six per cent.

"If this amount can be provided for," says the circular, "the company will resume dividends on the stock, and the co-operation of the shareholders is asked for this purchase."

While it is not expressly stated, the impression among the brokers here is that some hesitancy will be shown by the Canadian market in absorbing the issue.

The earnings of the Detroit United Railway for the second week in September were $218,433 showing an increase of $21,474. The total earnings from January 1 were $6,503,394 an increase of $974,461.

black thread. After staunching the excessive flow of blood as far as possible, Hannan coolly threaded the ordinary sewing needle and with a fortitude to be marvelled at, placed three stitches in the wound.

Knowing full well that this could only be temporary, and realizing also that he ran great chances of blood poisoning, Mr. Hannan made a brave effort and with the aid of an improvised crutch and stick, hobbled by degrees to the Porcupine camp, where the wound was dressed.
