SEA CAPTAIN GOES TO CANNIBAL ISLES TO GET HARDWOOD

Will Take 250 Men With Him to Awe the Natives of the New Hebrides—Can Get Valuable Woods For the Cutting.

Staking his life with cannibals against a big fortune, Captain W. J. McDonnell is soon to leave Seattle at the head of a big expedition with the Old Glory of the Seas, an old-time sailing vessel, for the savage islands of the South Seas. Here lie virgin stretches of hardwood timber to be had for the cutting and the payment of small amounts in trade stuffs to the tribal chiefs. Money is unknown and the privilege of cutting the hardwood will be purchased by beads, paint, cloth and trifling jewellery. The hardwood can be readily sold in both Europe and the United States. Captain McDonnell traded in the South Seas for a decade, for five years living among the natives without a white companion, and while the islands are still populated with ignorant blacks to whom cannibalism is a religion, Captain McDonnell has little fear of his expedition failing. He will take 250 men aboard the Glory and proceed to the Island of Malekula, in the New Hebrides, to get his timber concessions.

It was on Malekula Island that the sailors from the French schooner Qualite were last year eaten by the natives, and it is not long since a couple of overzealous missionaries venturing on the shores fell victims to the same fate.

While Captain McDonnell's mission is one of peace, he will be prepared for trouble with the natives and the band of 250 which he will take aboard the ship will be suitably armed to prevent interference with his lumbering operations.

THE FRENCH ARMY

Colonel Gadke, a well-known German critic, who was present at the French Army manoeuvres, publishes some interesting observations on the French Army. He says—"This army deserves in every way our greatest respect and our most earnest attention. We can learn from the French at least as much as they can from us." First, Colonel Gadke desires to correct the popular German error that the French people take no intimate share in the proceedings of the army. On the contrary, he says, the manoeuvres are as much a popular festival in France as they are in Germany. In spite of there being no such special attraction as that provided by the Emperor, the crowd of spectators was at times as large as at the German manoeuvres, while maps, picture postcards and other souvenirs were even more popular than in Germany. Speaking generally, Colonel Gadke does not think that any fresh ideas were discovered, but such as there were seemed to be carried out in a very interesting manner. He notes in passing that, in the French as in the German army an important part in the education of a leader, namely, the sharpening of judgment and of the feeling of responsibility, never really finds expression. Notwithstanding the mist, which especially impeded the cavalry he noticed remarkably few unnatural situations. The scouting was excellent. On the whole a proper respect was shown to the enemy's fire, and the artillery and machine guns were employed in the most suitable manner. The military airship, La Republican, could not go out on account of the fog before noon on the first day, but by three p. m. she is said to have determined the position of all the enemy's columns except one cavalry brigade, and was returning to the shed. "If during the last two days of the manoeuvres," says Colonel Gadke, "one had suddenly put the French Army into Prussian uniforms, one would have seen a picture not differing in any respect from that presented every year by our manoeuvres." Except on the last day, the infantry acted more in accordance with the requirements of real war in the matter of cover than does the German soldier. The artillery also took pains to hide itself, but sometimes was too close to the enemy's infantry. There was no great cavalry attack, but the French showed that they understood how to attack, when necessary, with their full strength.

NORMAL SCHOOL STUDENT PRESENTS HIS VIEWS

To the Editor of The Mail:

That citizen who contributed to the columns of your paper "A Citizen's Opinion" surely had little regard for the reputation of a citizen of Fredericton as regards fair-mindedness at least.

While we admit that that particular portion which formed a very small proportion of the student body did wrong, or to say the least acted without due thought in destroying, in any degree whatever, public property and thus meanly repaying what ever kindness the students have received from the citizens of Fredericton, intense indignation is felt throughout the whole student body that any citizen could be so unjust prejudiced, partisan, or whatever as to charge one who has always taken the deepest interest in the moral welfare of his students and who by his own exemplary character has instilled into the hearts of his students in general a love and admiration for the right for all that is good and true and beautiful in life, together with the staff of our Principal, who share with him the highest respect of the students body, with the actions of one or two young and foolish members of that student body, which members no doubt realize now since their exuberant spirits have been somewhat calmed, that they were thus being disloyal to the principles which Dr. Bridges and his staff have always tried to inculcate in the students and to that kindly advice which our loved Principal ever with a due regard to their reputation, gave our boys before the Normal Closing severed the tie which bound us together in the relation of Principal and student. If our boys by their unthinking actions have made a base return for the kindness shown them by the citizens of Fredericton much more have they basely returned the kindness of him whose sympathetic interest in them should have elevated them to a plane from which they would scorn to act in any way which would reflect on those who can with pride claim Dr. Bridges as their Principal. And how it is possible for any citizen of Fredericton to allow himself to become so biased as to hold the Principal and his staff responsible for the actions of one or two foolish students in this age, when having passed the years of childhood, one is supposed to possess a judgment at least sufficient to enable him to distinguish between right and wrong, is indeed past my comprehension.

"Citizen" reminds us of the gratitude we owe to the Fredericton people, which gratitude in a great many cases, is well deserved, for the Fredericton people, speaking generally, have been courteous and hospitable to us, and just here let me say that they have our deepest gratitude; but when "Citizen" speaks of our being "boarded for a miserable weekly pittance it can be hardly surprising that we should stand on our dignity and squarely refute the statement. The students pay without demurring whatever price the Fredericton boarding mistresses are pleased to ask which is for rooming alone not less than $3.25 so far as I know and to my certain knowledge as high as $5 and doubtless in some cases more per week. Taking into consideration that a very large proportion of your private citizens depend entirely for a living on the board money received from the students we notice that this miserable weekly pittance furnishes a very good living to the said citizens; and since "Citizen" has reminded us of what we owe to the Fredericton people, may I be pardoned for reminding the citizens of Fredericton that a body of three hundred and sixty-seven students aids very materially the merchants, the churches and their various societies, as well as the private citizens of your fair city of Fredericton. I have very often heard it admitted by your citizens that times are somewhat dull during holidays, and this is not difficult for the majority of people at least to understand.

For whatever benefit we have reaped from coming in contact with your people in the way of civilization, we are also duly grateful, and yet it must be admitted that so-called civilization has not yet attained to perfection even in the "Celestial City" and here as elsewhere may be found some few dark spots which mar the perfect purity of a civilization whose foundation is righteousness.

Also in my humble opinion the so-called "Hoodlums" and "ragged Willies," as "Citizen" has so courteously described our students, can compare very favorably even in the rudimentary stage of civilization in which our boys appeared last fall to offend the delicate sense of refinement, culture, and "civilized" courtesy of the author of "A Citizen's Opinion," with the conduct of some of those Fredericton gentlemen(?) who are permitted to crowd around street corners making remarks, as ladies pass some of which could not but cause your self respecting citizens to blush. It is hardly becoming while such a thing is permitted for any citizen of Fredericton to make depreciating remarks about those who in all their 'freshness' are at least respectable.

Further let me say that it ill behooves anyone to lightly or unduly

PREMIER BOTHA ADOPTS AN UNWISE COURSE IN ELECTION CONTEST

English Papers in South Africa Denounce it as a Wanton Provocation of Racial Animosity—Movement to Form a Separate Party.

Johannesburg, June 12—Premier Botha's determination to fight Sir Percy Fitzpatrick in Pretoria is the sole topic of conversation. Moderate feeling has undergone a strong revolution. The English papers, which were decidedly pro-Botha a fortnight ago, denounce the contest as a wanton provocation of racial animosity and feeling. Such a movement to form a separate party will probably be harmful. Natalians will follow the lead of Jameson.

Sir Percy Fitzpatrick was the Honorary Secretary of the Reform committee in the Transvaal before Jameson's raid. Botha's decision to enter Fitzpatrick's riding in the coming election is the cause of the present excitement.

BIG MERGER OF STEEL INTERESTS

Ottawa, June 11.—Another great industrial consolidation has been effected. The State Department has granted incorporation to the Canada Steel Corporation, with a capital of twenty-five millions, of which ten millions is to be preferred stock. C. P. Wilcox, C. A. Birge and Robert Hobson, of Hamilton; Lloyd Harris, M. P., for Brantford, and H. S. Holt, of Montreal. The head office of the Company will be at Hamilton and the object of the Company is to amalgamate the Hamilton Steel and Iron Company, the Canada Screw Company, the Montreal Rolling Mills Co., and the Canada Bolt and Nut Company. The granting of this Federal charter is likely to be followed by complications, inasmuch as the Dominion Steel and Coal merger, which is to meet next week, proposes to change its name to the Canadian Steel Corporation, by virtue of a charter granted by the Legislature of Nova Scotia.

Already the Hon. A. K. McLean, Attorney-General of Nova Scotia, has protested against the giving of the name to the Western merger, but it is understood that he has been informed that it has been the invariable policy of the Dominion Government since Confederation to refuse to recognize any charters granted by the Provinces which contain either the words "Dominion" or "Canadian." As a matter of fact, the application for the name "Canadian Steel Corporation" by the Hamilton-Toronto and Montreal Companies has been on file since February last.

servingly make derogatory remarks in referring to the members of one of the noblest professions if not the noblest profession in which a young man or woman could engage. You do not need to remind the great majority of us at least Mr. Citizen of our great responsibility with which we find ourselves burdened as we launch ourselves upon the serious work of teaching the young the solemnity of life, of preparing them for a life work, which should in the end make the world purer and better, of creating within each of our pupils a high ideal of duty towards God, towards their fellow-men by recognizing the great fact of the common brotherhood of man and of their duty towards their country; which ideal of our profession our revered Principal and his much respected staff has sought so painstakingly to instil in our minds and hearts.

Normal School galley 2... In conclusion I would say that the conduct of those two or three students, who on Friday night so far forgot themselves as to in any way destroy the public property, we as students deeply deplore and feel it keenly feeling as we do that they have permitted themselves in a thoughtless moment and in a moment when their hilarity had carried them past the stage where they might exercise good common sense and realize their great and solemn responsibility as teachers of the young, to forget their duty towards Dr. Bridges and the other instructors whom even these boys regard with whole-souled admiration and respect; and I feel sure that had they thought for a moment of the consequence of their actions and of just what they were doing, they would never have permitted themselves to do that which, I repeat, is also a base return for the kindness which we, as students, have received from your citizens.

I feel sure that the opinion expressed by "Citizen" in his biased view of the matter is not shared by the fair-minded people of Fredericton to whom we, and I feel certain the student body generally, bear only the kindest feelings as we say Farewell to you and your beautiful little city.

BURTT'S CORNER

June 13—The death of Mrs. Melbourne Haines took place on Wednesday. The deceased lady had been in failing health for some time, but was attending to her duties when she was suddenly stricken with a fainting fit, from which she never rallied. She was seventy-two years of age. The funeral was held at Smith's Corner on Friday. Rev. W. R. Pepper officiated. B. Lawrence had charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. William Pugh is spending a few days with her daughter at Marysville.

The U. B. Sewing Circle was entertained by Mrs. Brooks Edmondson on Thursday afternoon. A pleasant time was spent by all.

Mrs. Edward Jones is visiting at her former home for a few days. Miss Nellie Shepard returned from Fredericton on Saturday.

Children's Day is being observed in the Christian Church at this place a number of children are taking part in the programme, which will make it very interesting.

Miss A. Myrtle Lawrence has resumed her music lessons under the direction of Prof. F. W. Harrison, Fredericton.

Mrs. Laura Stephenson, who has been spending a couple of weeks at the corner returns home this evening.

AS A CULTURE BOOSTER.

"Now that you have taken up your residence in our beautiful suburb, my dear Mrs. Newcomb," said the lady caller, "you ought to join our literary society."

"Do you think so?" quired the other.

"Yes, indeed. It's just too awfully interesting for anything. At our last meeting we took up Carlyle's quarrels with his wife."

"It must have been very entertaining."

"Sure. At our next meeting we are going to investigate the private life of Goethe and his love affairs."

"Indeed!"

"Yes; and we have found out all about Poe's dissipation and disreputable conduct and by and by we are going to thoroughly investigate the immoral doings of Voltaire."

"Are you?"

"That's what. Oh, there's nothing like a literary society to boost one's culture. You really ought to join."
