Lajoie and Snodgrass Leaders in Stick Work

Jack MacLean Leads Cincinnati Bunch--
All Batting Over 300--Young Newman of Brown's Batting well--Snodgrass is a Newcomer.

Following are the averages of the leading batsmen of the American league who have taken part in nine or more games. Napoleon Lajoie held his own last week, not losing a point from his phenomenally high average. The great second baseman can afford to slump, for the wonderful Ty Cobb, the first man in either league to accumulate 70 hits, is close on his heels. Ty gained 10 points in his average last week, and this against the Washington and New York pitchers, who are rendering excellent accounts of themselves. Schmidt is also batting well for the Tigers, but his throwing hasn't been at all brilliant. Jack Knight took part in Saturday's game, losing 61 points, he having failed to hit safely in any of his four times at bat.

NEWMAN HANGING ON.

Pat Newman, the youngster who has been a great improvement over Abstein at first base for the Browns, hands on to a .300 batting average most tenaciously. Speaker retains a good average of .311, but some of his teammates have suffered losses. Lewis is the notable exception.

Harry Davis, Murphy and Baker of the Athletics are stinging the ball, and as the season progresses all three seem to grow better. It is only two years ago that Connie Mack thought of releasing Davis, but the veteran is putting up a bang-up game at first base. Eddie Collins appears on the list this week. He is going well now and ere long it is expected will be fighting Cobb and Lajoie for the leading berth. The averages:

	AB	H	Av.
Lajoie, Cleveland,	147	62	.422
Cobb, Detroit,	186	70	.376
Schmidt, Detroit,	35	12	.343
Davis, Philadelphia,	140	45	.321
Knight, New York,	25	8	.320
Newman, St. Louis,	41	13	.317
Speaker, Boston,	164	51	.311
Delehautey, Detroit,	165	51	.309
Lewis, Boston,	123	37	.302
Murphy, Philadelphia,	153	46	.301
Baker, Philadelphia,	150	45	.300
Laporte, New York,	146	44	.299
Chase, New York,	182	53	.291
Wallace, St. Louis,	165	48	.291
Lake, St. Louis,	31	9	.290

Oldring, Philadelphia,	159	45	.283

NATIONAL AVERAGES.

Following are the averages of the leading batsmen of the National league who have taken part in nine or more games. A new name adorns the top of the list of 20 this week in the person of Fred Snodgrass, catcher and utility outfielder of the New York Giants, a young man whose hitting prowess was an unknown quality until recently. For the past few weeks he has been alternating with Josh Devore in the outfield, the latter player adorning the bench when a left-hand pitcher adorns the Giants. It was about that time that the ambitious Snodgrass applied for a regular berth on the team. His pleading to McGraw was in the nature of a demand, as he threatened to leave the team unless a place was found for him. McGraw found a half-place for him and has no reason to feel dissatisfied at the move, which has been responsible in winning several games for the Giants.

MAGEE SECOND.

Following Snodgrass is Magee, and though he has been tumbling of late, he is yet a few points ahead of Zack Wheat. Campbell of Pittsburgh, is one young man whose name was on the tongues of Boston fans frequently last week. He showed up splendidly in this city, hitting the ball hard and safely and fielding superbly. He is a worthy understudy to Fred Clarke. McLean, Hoblitzel, Bescher, Paskert and Downey, all of the Cincinnati Reds, show up splendidly in the standing, all hitting .300 or better. Chicago has four .300 hitters in Beaumont, Hofman, Archer and Zimmerman. Graham is the only Boston representative in the .300 list and he is doing well. Mathewson of the Giants took a tumble last week, but still boasts of an average that so many crave and so few attain. From the middle of the entire list of batsmen came a rumbling Friday and Saturday, and investigation proved it to be Hans Wagner regaining a few points. The averages:

	AB	H	Av.
Snodgrass, New York,	43	18	.419
Magee, Philadelphia,	128	46	.359
Leifeld, Pittsburgh,	14	5	.357

KING GEORGE WILL RACE LIKE HIS FATHER

Decision Recalls Comment on Similar Action of King Edward—Generally Approved.

(Toronto Globe.)

The decision of King George V. to carry on the racing and breeding establishments of his father on the same lines as in the past involves racing under his own name, and this recalls some interesting observations—interesting because of their lack of soundness—offered on this point at the time of King Edward's own succession to the throne. The late King had maintained a breeding stud at Sandringham, and as Prince of Wales had conducted a racing establishment with a considerable measure of good fortune, and with great accession to his personal popularity. On the death of Queen Victoria it was suggested—not by friendly or well-informed critics, it is sure—that the new monarch would not continue his connection with the turf or that, if he did, it would be under an assumed name. To this quite imaginary forecast was added the gratuitous and wholly unfounded sneer that "This may be taken as an acknowledgment that there is something equivocal about the business. It has been said in these columns that a higher standard is demanded from the turf by hostile critics than they require of the things with which they are themselves connected. We have many eminent authors, who have earned enduring fame under assumed names, yet it is taken for granted that a nominal de course is an admission of weakness. A common practice in literature is not good enough for the turf. The ill-natured suggestion was palpably ill-founded, inasmuch as assumed names on the turf are not for the purpose of concealing identity. They are registered with the jockey clubs and published in the official calendars, and all the racing world knows, for instance, that the Valley Farm Stable means the racing interests of the Messrs. Hendrie. It would have conveyed no hint that the business had anything of an equivocal nature, though, if the reigning monarch had decided to participate under another name with his subjects in a sport in which all are on a basis of perfect equality. No more on the turf than in learning is there a royal road to success, and the King's horses can only surpass those of the peasant by sheer force of merit. But all the conjectures and conclusions were set at naught by the actual developments. The King continued racing, and he continued as his Majesty the King. What he has done, so also does King George V., and there remains only to hope that he will have the felicity that fell to his father of leading in the winner of the greatest of races, bearing his own purple and gold colors.

His course has been favorable commented on by the English press.

HORSE NOTES

Giftline 2:03½ has been in 2:08½ at Indianapolis.
G. T. Wilson is getting Sorrento Todd 2:14½ ready over the Galesburg track.
They talk of racing Locanda 2:02, over the half-mile tracks this summer.

The converted pacer Custer, 2:05½, who is an M and M candidate, has been in 2:15.
C. C. Mapberry will send a good string of his own breeding to the Maine races this season.
Walter Hal is sure some pacer. It takes a crack to beat Major Mallow on a twice-around.
Vance Nuckols has Brenda Yorke named in the pacing handicap at Readville but is working her on a trot.

Milton Hatch, now a resident of New Vineyard, Me, has a busy summer ahead of him either as presiding judge or starter.
An offer of $30,000 was refused for Native Belle last week. Had it been accepted she would have gone into Lon McDonald's stable.
Baron Todd, the 3-year-old trotter William Snell of New Bedford has in Millard Sanders' stable at Indianapolis, is showing better than 2:20.
The three-year-old filly, Enara, by Walnut Hall, 2:08½, dam Belmo, by Moko, second dam Chestnut Belle, also the second dam of Native Belle, 2:07½ has been a mile in 2:17½.
Silver Song, the Onward Silver trotter who showed McDonald 2:11½, the other day, is not regarded highly as a racing prospect and has been bred to The Mariner son of Bingen.

RAIN SPOILED LAST NIGHTS BALL GAME

Rain spoiled what would have been a pretty good ball game last night, when the St. Mary's Stars and the Palmer's Tannery team met at the Trotting Park. When the rain descended and the flood came in the fourth inning, St. Mary's was leading 1 to 0.

Both pitchers, Brewer for St. Mary's and McLean for Palmer's, pitched good ball.

The teams line up was as follows:

	Catcher	R. Brewer
Toner	Pitcher	A. Brewer
McLean	Short Stops	Atkinson
Coward	1st Base	Scott
Chase	Right Field	A. Boone
Stevenson	2nd Base	F. Hughes
Bonner	Centre Field	Wilson
J. McDonald	3rd Base	Malloy
Burke	Left Field	W. Hughes
H. McDonald

DIAMOND DUST

Hans Lobert is with the Cincinnati team, nursing a lame wrist. This clever boy was playing his best game at third and his loss to his team has bothered the foxey manager. He will try out McMillan and Woodruff at third, as both are clever infielders.
