Frank La Porte, the second baseman of the New York American League Baseball Club, is at present doing some sensational playing around the middle section of the diamond. The little Frenchman is a good wielder of the "stick," and with timely hitting with his famous little black bat he is winning many a game for the New York "Highlanders." La Porte is deserving of all the credit that the "fans" can bestow upon him, for he is a player who is always working hard to try and keep his team up amongst the top notchers.

BASEBALL LINERS

It seems in both National and American leagues that strong prejudices are entertained against New York by all outside clubs. This in spite of the fact that a winning team in Gotham would be worth thousands of dollars more each season to every other club in the league. The big town will support nothing but a winner. In spite of this however, every city likes to take a crack at anything that hails from New York by hook or crook.

A few weeks ago a hysterical scribe from Chicago who excuses the deflating home club day after day with of his home club day after day with the most flimsy excuses imaginable authorized a sensational story that the Highlanders were employing a signal tipping apparatus. He also said that he could prove the charges. President Ban Johnson came to New York and after a thorough investigation declared there were no grounds for the story. The president of the league also offered a reward of $500 for proof that any club in the league was employing such unsportsmanlike means to win games. The Chicago echo has now been caught up by Eastern dailies. Boston papers made much ado and comment on the Chicago story. Frank Farrell is in Boston with his team, and he announced that he would gladly add $1,000 to Ban Johnson's reward. The Yankees' president further declared that he would push the case and make the Chicago scribe either prove his charges or retract. —New York American.

He gained 16 points during the week, replacing at the top of the column Phil lippe. Kirby White, who performed here for the Doves, is now the second batter of the league.

Lajolo and Speaker, who come after Cobb, both lost during the week, even though their positions did not change. The fifth star batter of the league is Eddie Karger, who picked up 620 points on Wednesday as a result of connecting safely with Ray of St. Louis.

IRON MAN MCGINNITY CONFIDENT THAT NEWARK WILL WIN PENNANT

Science, Nerve and Luck Combining to Help Him Toward the Top of Eastern League.

Manager Joe McGinnity (the iron man), of the Newark team, is quite confident that his team will win the Eastern League pennant this year though he is not going around boasting from the housetops that he is going to run away with the championship. ...

"It's going to be a hard fight" he said the other day, "but we have a good lead and a good team, and we should be able to hold our advantage to the end. Of course accidents may happen that might put us out of the race, but we will, of course, have to take our chances with the rest. For instance, I was nearly laid away myself in the last game at Rochester. George McConnell the Rochester pitcher, threw up a spitter close in and in attempting to dodge the ball and save my head (being a right hand hitter), I threw my pitching arm around and was struck full on the biceps, completely paralyzing for some minutes those all-important muscles. I felt no ill effects after the game or since then but the blow of the ball might just as easily have put my arm out of commission for the rest of the season."

MERELY PITCHING TO WIN

"Why do I pitch so often? I am merely pitching to win. When I have not a man who I think can win and feel I can and my players feel the same way, my place is in the box. I am trying to give Newark a pennant, something the town has never had. The fans there want one. It means a lot to them and also to me. A pennant will put my partner and myself in a position for a new ball field and greatly strengthen Newark as a ball town."

"In the old days up there (meaning the National League) I pitched whenever I was asked and if I was a willing worker when I was employed by somebody else, I surely should be willing to work just as hard now that everything is for my own interest. I can hardly be classed as hogging the pitching of my club."

"To my way of thinking, baseball is purely a matter of science, luck and nerve. I have been in baseball some time and have always had a great regard for luck but still cannot put it g bit ahead of science and nerve. The three win ball games. I try to work my pitchers so that they will give the team nerve and allow science to get in its work. One has to take a chance on the luck."

"There are places where some of my pitchers work better than in others. I haven't a Russell Ford, a Christy Mathewson or a Walter Johnson and I am called upon to do the best with what I have and keep good feeling among the men. That's all any manager can do. Of course, if I could find a Ford or a Mathewson I should be glad for at the end of the season it would mean thousands to me."

WHY HE PITCHES SO OFTEN

"Without a star twirler I find my men work better against certain clubs when I am in the box. That is why I pitch so often in certain cities. It isn't that I alone see the difference with the club, but others tell me of it. As long as it is there I owe it to myself and to them to pitch as often as the situation demands it."

"Ask any of my men, they will tell you that I have not a one-man team. They are all pulling as hard as they can. They eat, drink and sleep baseball, and fight their troubles out among themselves. It is always the case with clubs at the top or near the top. I have several young pitchers, and it means much attention to bring them out. The credit for most of the work of the youngsters I give to Hughie Hearn who can teach them more sitting on the bench than some players who are actively in the game. There are others like Hughie on the team, and they go to make up the science."

PURELY A MATTER OF BUSINESS

"As for the nerve if my pitching helps to make it, then I try to do my part. I am going to win the pennant if I can. As for this honor and glory business I have had my share. I am in business for myself and working for my own interests."

"Don't you ever get a sore arm?" "Never. I don't pitch with my arm exclusively. I throw the ball like Bob Fitzsimmons used to punch with the whole weight of the body behind the motion. When I swing with the ball, I don't make a snap throw and jerk my arm but follow the motion through with my body. It saves the wear and tear on the arm, and also gives great accuracy and speed."

The "Iron Man" said that his best ball is a raise curve ball, which he throws with a round-arm motion, and which the ball players call "old Sal." This is the curve with which he got most of his 195 strike-outs last season.
