

Enormous Audiences Attended Last Meeting of Campaign

Three Thousand Persons Heard Mr. Jacoby Tell Story of His Life Sunday Afternoon--In Evening Dr. Torrey Spoke on "Today and Tomorrow"--Eight Hundred Conversions Resulted From Meetings--Evangelists Left This Morning For Montrose, Pa.

Yesterday afternoon without doubt, saw the largest audience which Frederickton ever witnessed under one roof. Upwards of 3000 people assembled in the Arctic Tabernacle. The upper balconies were open for the first and only time during the campaign and almost every available inch of space in the vast auditorium was taken.

According to announcement Mr. Jacoby told the story of his life. It is a story he does not like to tell. Rather does he prefer to let the dead past bury its dead. But the story has been so helpful to many men downed by sin and has inspired so much hope in men and women with wayward sons and brothers, that Dr. Torrey insists on Mr. Jacoby telling it wherever he goes. It is impossible to give a verbatim report of it. The words which fell from his lips put into cold print would be but the dry bones of the skeleton from which the spirit has fled. One requires to hear the man, to catch his sympathetic spirit, and see how in almost every sentence he magnifies the grace of God who redeemed him from a life of sin to a life of service. The vast audience listened to him yesterday afternoon with deep interest and were swayed by his humor, pathos and dead earnestness as the trees of the forest are swept by the gale. Dr. Torrey has over and over again during the mission spoken of Mr. Jacoby as one of the finest characters he has ever known. For ten years, the two men associated as pastors of the Moody church, in Chicago, and Dr. Torrey was free to say that when Mr. Jacoby laid down his work there he was the most loved man in all that city.

Many people at the close of the service responded to his invitation and expressed a determination to follow Christ in everything.

The following are some of the most striking utterances from Mr. Jacoby's address:

"Some men are so far down in sin that they think they have to reach up to touch bottom--but God loves them still.

"At ten years of age I was drunk in my father's house. He had made a bowl of egg-nog and I slipped into the parlor and saw it there. I tasted it with my finger and then with a cup, and soon was drunk in my father's house.

"At fourteen I was expelled from school for fighting. At fifteen, I joined the navy and was court-martialed. At nineteen I was discharged--a gambler. Before I was twenty I joined a band of Philadelphia thieves. At twenty-one I joined the army and was court-martialed again. A short time later I was arrested as a deserter. I was put in the guard-house among a lot of the worst men in the army, who elected me as their leader. I was dishonorably discharged from the army without a cent.

"I joined the army again and went to Dakota, among the cow-punchers and outlaws. I cleaned up several camps at the gambling tables and was mixed up in a shooting scrape every week. I was known as one of the most desperate men in the west. I came back home again and got a place as conductor on one of the Philadelphia street cars. I was kept a month, and then discharged because I took too deep an interest in the finances of the company. I got a place in the Philadelphia police force and in three months was suspended three times, and then discharged. I was too bad for the Philadelphia police force.

"I went back to the army again, and was only in a short time when it was decided to reduce the force. I was let out under the class of those men who were considered worthless. I didn't have any money nor clothes, but I appropriated a suit some place and got mixed up in a salon row in Omaha. I almost killed a man, and was arrested, but they let me off when he didn't die, and gave me an order to get out of town in twenty-four hours.

"I drifted to another state, living by my wits, drinking, gambling, swearing, leading the life of an all-round desperado.

"One night I went to a revival meeting I was about forty-four years old. I don't remember the sermon, but when I left the building I was doing some serious thinking. I went back the next night and the next. I was asked to come forward but I shook my head. I remember one time when I was asked to join the Good Templars. They took my name in and I was given fourteen black balls. They would have given me more but they ran out. I was afraid they would do the same thing again. Well, I went back to the church again and decided to make a plunge in new life if they would have me.

"They sent me to the Moody Institute. I didn't have much of a vocabulary when I became a Christian--half of it was 'cuss words.' Well, I couldn't learn Latin or Greek or Hebrew, but I did learn to do personal work. Some of the men I began my work among were the old fellow who had known me in my worst days as a drunkard, as a gambler, and an all-round bad man.

"One of these was named George. The night that George came to Christ he said that he had never prayed in his life. This was his prayer: 'Oh, God, I don't know how to pray, but I want to be a better man.'

"This expresses it all, men. 'I want to be a better man!'

"No man is so low that he can't get up again. No man is so bad that there is no hope for him.

"Some men are so far down in sin that when they are in church they feel a good deal like a wheelbarrow in an automobile parade. But God's love is still for them."

THE EVENING SERVICE.

At the evening service the audience was again large. Notwithstanding that the rain fell in torrents, fully 2500 people were present. Many remained in the tabernacle between the service of the afternoon and that of the evening rather than to miss the evening closing meeting. Dr. Torrey was again in charge and preached a powerful and searching sermon, the subject of which was TODAY AND TOMORROW. When the meeting closed many lingered to say good bye to the distinguished evangelist and his fellow-laborers who, during their short stay here have formed many deep and abiding attachments with those who have been their helpers and those whom they have helped. Dr. Torrey announced that up to and including this afternoon 742 people had signed their intention to like Christian lives. At the close of the meeting a large number more came forward and it is safe to say that the number of converts will be not less than 800. It was a difficult thing to bring the closing service to an end, so great was the interest and so many were the inquirers. The expression was heard on every hand that could the mission be continued for another week a much greater work could be accomplished. But the churches plan to carry forward the work in addition to the regular services on Tuesday and Friday evenings a joint meeting will be held in the Methodist church on Thursday evening of this week.

Very little time was taken from the business in hand with words of farewell. Both Dr. Torrey and Mr. Butler expressed their regret at leaving Frederickton. On behalf of the executive committee, Rev. J. H. MacDonald expressed appreciation of the workers and their work. "We count it one of the privileges of our lives," he said "to have labored side by side with you, Dr. Torrey, and you associates." He assured them that they carried with them the affectionate good wishes of a host of friends.

ABOUT THE SINGING.

There was probably no factor in the meeting that did more to attract the people than the singing. At first it was difficult to obtain a large choir for the simple reason that at this busy season of the year, the singers, like many others, were occupied with the countless duties that the spring-time brings to the average man and woman. But after a time the singers managed to plan their work so as to be present at most of the services. The fact is, most of them became so interested that they could not stay away.

Mr. Butler is unquestionably, the best choir leader and soloist that has ever visited Frederickton. Miss Anderson, the pianist, is a performer of marvellous ability. The hymns which were sung and the solos which Mr. Butler rendered were for the most part simple both in words and in melody. Mr. Butler says he is often urged by music lovers to adopt music of a more classic nature, but his experience has taught him that it is the simple music and not the classical which finds its way to men's hearts and it is that he is after and Torrey meeting, No. 2.

not to display his own talents, greater than they unquestionably are. But back of all this, beyond the fact that the singer and pianist are people of rare tact and superb talent, there stand out the supreme fact which more than anything else accounts for the success of the movement, namely, the consecrated lives of these people. Dr. Torrey has surrounded himself with a corps of assistants who are first of all men and women of sterling character and who rejoice above all else in the privilege of serving somebody and in making the way of life clear to some inquiring soul. The musicians love their art, they love music for music's sake; but they have placed their talents in the hands of God and are making their music glorify Him.

FINANCES

The financial side of the campaign has not yet been wound up. It is safe to say however that about a thousand dollars was received in the collections for carrying on the mission. Dr. Torrey will likely receive for his services somewhere about $500 dollars. In the course of a few days the committee will have pleasure in giving to the public through the press a full and detailed account of the receipts and expenditure. It is gratifying to know that the committee in making their estimates kept well within the margin and that no expenditure was entailed which had not been anticipated in the budget.

OFF FOR MONTROSE, PA.

The party left this morning for Montrose, Pennsylvania, where Dr. Torrey now makes his home, and where he carries on during the summer months a Bible school and a series of conferences. A large number of people, including the pastors of the city churches, were at the train to speed the parting guests.

TWO BODIES RECOVERED FROM SUBMARINE WRECK

Calais, France, June 11.--The manner of the sinking of the French submarine Pluviose was revealed today when the superstructure emerged at low tide. A rent fifteen feet long and two feet wide was found in the stern where the submerged craft had been struck by the Channel steamer Pas de Calais. Two bodies were recovered before the rising tide again closed over the wreck. The Pluviose was sunk with her crew of twenty seven men in the channel two miles off the French coast on May 26. Since that time wreckers have been engaged at every high tide in towing the submarine ashore. It was impossible to raise wreck to the surface. Today in the shallow water of the jetty the superstructure rose to view and the first thorough examination was possible. The body of helmsman Lebreton clad in oilskins was found at his post in the steering tower. The trap door leading from the tower to the compartment below was closed. A second body had been found recovered when the returning tide forced the suspension of the operations. As it is now established that the hull is filled with water. Holes will be drilled through the plates to make possible the removal of other bodies. The funeral for the lost crew will be attended by President Fallieres and the cabinet.

A FINANCIER'S ADVICE

Mr. Henry Clews, the Wall Street financier, in an address to the students of the State University of Kentucky, last week, gave some counsel to the young in choosing their company. He told them that aside from shunning bad or incompetent advisers in business, there were others they should be careful to avoid. Mr. Clews thus stated the characteristics of these persons:

Avoid a man who vilifies his benefactor.

Who unjustly accuses others of bad deeds.

Who never has a good word for anybody;

Who, when he drinks, habitually drinks alone.

Who boasts of the superiority of his family;

Who talks religion downtown in connection with his daily business affairs;

Who talks recklessly against the virtue of respectable women;

Who runs in debt with no apparent intention of paying;

Who borrows small sums on his note or check dated ahead;

Who will not work for an honest living;

Who looks down upon those who do;

Who is always prating about his own virtues;

Who imputes bad motives to those trying to do good;

Who betrays confidence;

Who lies;

Who is honest only for policy's sake;

J. M. ROBINSON & SON WEEKLY MARKET LETTER

St. John, June 11.--The features of this week's market are the reduction of the Bank of England rate and the conference, at Washington between the President and the railroads. The reduction of the Bank of England rate foreshadows easier money for the summer and indicates that there will be no further call of American gold to Europe for some time to come; it points to a healthy state of European finances, and should be followed by a good market there for American securities. The conference between the President and the railroads has, it is claimed, produced a better understanding between the Government and the railroads, whether this is or not it is difficult to say, but at all events, it is certain that a truce was declared that the railroads conceded practically every point advanced by the Government, and that as a result, superficial confidence has been restored as was evidenced by an immediate recovery in the prices of stocks.

It seems that, notwithstanding the opinion formed both by the Government and the public, and the attempt to prohibit the railroads from advancing the freight schedules, that the trouble is over as by no means apparent, though it is quite evident that the sharp edge has been taken off the controversy. We are sure to hear of these railroad dates again and until business is more settled, the prospect of Government interference will cause uneasiness.

As noted above by the reduction of the Bank of England rate, money is easy on both sides of the Atlantic, and is likely to continue so during the summer, many bankers, however, look for high rates in the fall, which is not unusual in view of the large crops to be removed.

During the last week, the market has been characterized by the rapid recovery from the low prices of last week and the subsequent decline that has taken place in a quiet market, with transactions of only the average volume. This, of course, indicates a lack of confidence and a professional market. Since last August as we remarked last week, we have had a constantly declining market, with the result that prices have been carried down many points below the high level of a year ago. The most sensational period of the decline has been during the last three weeks, when prices crumbled rapidly, this apparently culminated in the injunction proceedings of last week, and the prospects should be for an advance from the present prices. Conditions favor an advance, money is easy, the condition of the crop is good and improving under the favorable weather now prevailing. Large crops mean increased activity in every line, large crops and easy money are usually accompanied by rising prices for securities.

CANADA.

Canadian markets during the week have continued their usual activity, with prices holding very well, but without particular feature with the exception of Nova Scotia Steel which has advanced rapidly to a price of $87 a share. This apparently is due to peace having been declared between the contesting parties, namely the Montreal and Nova Scotia interests in the stock, it is also due no doubt, to the fact that the Company has recently disposed of $1,500,000 of bonds in London and having paid off its floating liabilities is in particularly good shape financially.

In discussing Canadian conditions it is interesting to contrast them with those now prevailing in the United States, in the latter country business has to a certain extent slackened its pace and while crops are good prosperity reigns, there are this year certain signs of quiet conditions which have not been apparent for some time back; in Canada on the other hand every business is running full capacity, prices are advancing and there is plenty of capital a large amount of which is provided by the transfer of funds from the United States to Canada by American settlers in the North West. Judged from the present standpoint, it seems quite evident that Canada will progress during the next few years practically independent of external conditions.

DOMESTIC DIPLOMACY.

"Did you read that article in the paper the other day about the age at which a woman is most lovely?" asked Mrs. Dingleham.

Mr. Dingleham had been out very late the night before, and these were the first words that Mrs. Dingleham had spoken to him since she had declared that the explanation which he had attempted to give was wholly inadequate.

"Yes," he replied, "I read it."

"What is your idea about it?"

"I think," he said very gravely and earnestly, "that a woman is loveliest when she is just your age."

For a moment all was still in the Dingleham household. Then Mrs. Dingleham put her arms around her husband's neck and said:

"Henry, will you please forgive me for what I said last night--or this morning--when you came home? It was foolish of me, but I love you so that I am unreasonably jealous and suspicious."

The first machine used for sewing was probably the bone needle, and in the 16th century, in Great Britain, came the steel one, and it was not until the 18th century that mechanical means were in this industry thought of as a method of lightning labor; then the idea occurred to Thomas Saint, a London cabinetmaker, and he constructed a chain-stitch machine, working with a single thread.
