Give your servants GOLD DUST to clean with, treat them rightly and you will have few occasions to insert a "help wanted" ad

They say a good workman is known by his tools. You cannot expect your maid to keep everything ship-shape unless you give her every modern help. To keep house without GOLD DUST is to do work by hard, old-fashioned methods. For cleaning everything and anything about the house—from cellar to attic—GOLD DUST is worth its weight in gold. It cuts grease and dirt like magic, does away with scouring and scrubbing, and saves time and tempers.

Your servant can do more and better work and keep sweet with the aid of GOLD DUST in all household cleaning.

THE RISE AND FUTURE OF PRINCE RUPERT

Thanks to the Prudence and Foresight of the Laurier Government in Constructing the Transcontinental Railway a New Country will be Opened up with Enormous Possibilities for Future Development.

(Special Correspondence of The Globe)

Prince Rupert, B.C.—As all the world knows, Prince Rupert lies on an island of the Pacific close to the mainland of upper British Columbia. But Kanien Island is gradually losing its identity and being absorbed by the city to be. Until this spring the only way by which the mainland could be reached was by canoe or sailboat. Until a bridge spanned the opening no real connection could be made and Prince Rupert still lay isolated on its rocky island in the sea. The Grand Trunk Pacific have been rushing the bridge building ahead for the last six months, and it is now nearing completion. Crowds gather each day about the structure eager to see the last bolt driven in. On the island near the town are lying three huge engines, brand new and sparkling in the spring sunlight. About them the same atmosphere of eagerness and energy seems to hang. They actually seem to have imbibed their surroundings in this great new west, and are waiting, with the rest of the town for the completion of the bridge when track-laying will commence and trains will begin to run for the first hundred miles through the virgin forests.

ALL ABOARD FOR THE INTERIOR.

The anticipation of Columbus on the maiden voyage to America pales before the wild enthusiasm of these westerners here to board the first train to run into the famous valleys along the line of the G.T.P. If you know anything about railroad building you will be aware that when the railroad is completed except for the laying of the tracks it is looked upon as practically finished. Track-laying is a very quickly accomplished matter in these days of extraordinary labor-saving inventions. The laying of the first hundred miles of track east from Prince Rupert will mean much to the new town, when it is remembered that last year, with absolutely no facilities for entering the interior, numbers of settlers did old-fashioned pioneer work in their determination to secure land in this great northern garden of Canada.

ARE SORRY FOR EASTERNERS.

The far western Canadian is at a loss to understand why the people of the east have been so slow to grasp the possibilities of this new country, either as an investment or speculation. They can look along the line of the C.P.R. and see the innumerable towns and cities that have sprung up and increased the value of agricultural lands lying near these towns. The G.T.P. lies in the midst of an equally fine country—the chances are that time will prove it to be an immeasurably better country. Furthermore, our Canadian west has the advantage of the world as to its agricultural value which twenty years ago was held in doubt.

There is a story told here, and known to be absolutely true, of a young Englishman who was with an engineering party which worked along the line of railroad near Fort George. He was not in any way connected with the railroad but, having a desire to see the new country, had joined the engineering party at some northern points. Seeing the possibilities surrounding a certain section of land he set off on horseback, and then travelled by stage to the nearest railroad station. In great haste he hurried to Victoria to register a claim he had made in the interior. To his annoyance he learned that the claim would cost exactly four hundred dollars more than he possessed. He tried to raise the necessary money in Victoria, but found that his few friends viewed his enthusiasm as a sort of pipe dream. In the meantime the time limit on his claim expired, and it has since been learned that had the young Englishman been successful in raising the necessary money he would have made a quarter of a million dollars ultimately on his land, for it has since been chosen as the townsite of Fort George.

A HUNTER'S PARADISE.

The forests of this new country would gladden the heart of an eastern hunter. The woods are alive with deer, and it is not an uncommon sight to see two or three at a time each peeping picturesquely from behind giant trees with a more curious than frightened expression in their mild eyes, for hitherto they have not had the misfortune to learn that man is their natural enemy. In parts of the country during the fly season the deer may be seen in great numbers standing neck-deep in the rivers cooling off their bodies. The wolves are still plentiful, but are being quickly exterminated by the eager hunters who are anxious to secure the Government bounty of $15 for each head or skin brought into the Government offices here. There is a large fine imposed upon anyone shooting a porcupine, by the British Columbia Government. Porcupines are considered excellent food for the stray land-seeker or prospector lost in the forests here, for strange as it may seem within the precincts of a civilized country, up till last fall it was not an uncommon occurrence for prospectors to lose their ways in the wilds.

MONEY IN FISH.

The fishing industry about here has become something enormous in its proportions. Crosbie & Blackwell and other big English firms have their agents who inspect every can of fish packed for the British market. Last year one comparatively small cannery up the coast cleared $50,000 in three months. The Jap fishermen are paid two and a half cents for each of the finest salmon. If you examine a flat tin of fish you will discover that each can contains only a section of one large fish. This can sell to the consumer at 20 and 25 cents. There are two energetic young chaps along the coast who are on the way towards making a big fortune for themselves. One man was a clerk in the Bank of Montreal in Toronto the other also having resigned from an eastern bank. They interested a few friends in the possibilities of the cannery business, as well as investing their own savings. So far, and doubtless for some time to come, every can of salmon packed on the British Columbia coast will find a ready market for there is nothing in the waters of any country to equal the salmon of the Skeena River. The division of labor here in the fishing season is peculiar. The Japs do all the fishing and skilful fishermen they are. The Indians sit in long rows outside of the canneries cleaning the fish, while inside the buildings Chinamen do the packing. The older Indian women all smoke pipes while at work, and seem to obtain a tremendous amount of enjoyment out of them.
