DEPARTED SOVEREIGN*Memorial Services at Cathedral, Methodist Church and St. Dunstan's Church Largely Attended--Able Address By Very Rev. Dean Schofield.

Fredericton today mourns for the dead king. The memorial services at the Methodist church, at Christ Church Cathedral and at St. Dunstan's church were attended by large congregations. Many of those present at the services were compelled to stand, all seats being occupied.

The whole city has put on an appearance of mourning, flags are flying at half-mast on all public buildings and many private ones as well. The vessels in the river also displayed their flags at half mast.

The colors of royal mourning, purple and black, are displayed everywhere. The Dominion, provincial, city and county buildings are all draped as well as the interior of the churches in which the special services were held.

In accordance with the proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor, May 20th has been observed as a day of mourning for Edward the Peacemaker. Practically all places of business were closed and the factories of the city did not run today. The parades of the various fraternal societies and military bodies to divine service attracted many spectators. All societies which attended service more regalia. The members of the University faculty wore academic costume according to degree.

THE UNION SERVICE.

The first memorial service in the city was that at the Methodist Church at eleven o'clock, in which the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist congregations united. This service was attended by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and staff; members of the executive council and representatives of the civic and county governments. All the clergymen of the denominations taking part were present, as well as Rev. Dr. Torrey, and Mr. Charles Butler, who are conducting the revival services in the city. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Draping of purple and black was used extensively. The organ and choir loft were draped, as were also the fronts of the galleries and the pillars. Sheaves of wheat, typifying the close of a life full of worthy deeds, were also employed for decorative purposes.

St. Andrew's Society marched from its hall to the church, preceded by its pipers with pipes draped. The York County Orange Lodge and subordinate lodges, with P.D. Grand Mas. N. J. Smith, marched from Orange Hall to the church by way of Queen and Carleton Streets. The band of the 71st York Regt. headed the Orangemen and played a funeral march from the hall to the church.

At the church His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and staff were seated in the first pew on the right of the main aisle. Behind them were seated Premier Hazen and members of the executive council. The judges were seated next and directly behind them members of parliament. St. Andrew's Society was seated to the rear of these. On the left of the main aisle His Worship the Mayor, the aldermen and the city officials occupied the front pews. The members of the faculty of the University of New Brunswick were given a position in the pews immediately behind. The members of the various Orange bodies occupied the rear of the church on both sides of the main aisle.

The service contained no address, but was composed of scripture reading, prayers and music. The united choirs of the four churches sang. The only solo during the service was by Mr. Butler. There was also a selection by a male quartette.

AT THE CATHEDRAL.

Service at Christ Church Cathedral began at three o'clock and, like the union service of the morning, was most impressive. The address by

Very Reverend Dean Schofield was most forceful and brought to all a realization of the loss which, the British Empire and the world had sustained in the death of Edward the Seventh.

The Cathedral was draped in colors of royal mourning. The scheme of decoration was simple, but most effective. The pillars supporting the roof were draped alternately with purple and with black. The official pew in which his late majesty sat when attending divine services in 1860 was also draped. The west entrance was used by those attending the service.

The capacity of the church was taxed to the utmost and many were unable to get in. The service was attended by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and the representatives of the government who had attended the union service in the morning. The Masonic bodies as well as the military organizations of the city, including the regulars, the militia and Veterans' Association, were in attendance. The Sons of England also attended in a body.

The members of the Masonic Order were played to the Cathedral by the Fredericton Brass Band. The 71st York Regt. band played the military organizations and the Sons of England to the church. Funeral marches were played in all cases.

The specially invited bodies and representatives were seated in the centre of the church. His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and his attending staff occupied the first pew on the right of the main aisle. The Premier and executive were seated behind them. Judges of the Supreme Court and County Courts were seated next. To the rear of them were placed members of parliament and legislative officials. The Masonic body sat behind them and the regular troops were stationed behind them. The front pews on the left of the main aisle was occupied by the officers of the R. C. R. and the active militia, with retired officers. Members of the City Council and civic officials were seated immediately behind. The high sheriff and coroner and municipal representatives were seated next. Members of the University faculty, school trustees and trustees of the Victoria Hospital were seated next and the Sons of England were placed to the rear of them, with the Veterans' Association behind them.

ADDRESS BY THE DEAN

Very Reverend Dean Schofield delivered the following address:
1 Kings 3:12. "And God said I have given thee a wise and understanding heart."

After referring to the universal note of sorrow to which all hearts are bowing, the preacher went on to speak of the deep undertone of triumph in existing conditions.

"The loss to the empire is great because the empire mourns a great King," said the Dean.

"In estimating the greatness of the late sovereign the world at large seems to have laid hold upon King Edward's love of peace. In an era that appears terribly selfish, at least at times, the title of Peacemaker is one of which any King might well be proud. It is peculiarly interesting as applied to an Edward. History records seven Edwards as having ruled from England's throne. The first Edwards were all warriors. Then came a change, the sixth Edward, always delicate, was a student and little else besides the prey of men stronger than himself. It remained for our time to raise up one to round out the Edwards of History, and Edward VII., by his knowledge of men and affairs and because of his influence therein was always bearing in one direction, to win for himself the title Edward the Peacemaker."
