

SCOTS WARMLY GREETED "TAY PAY" AT HALIFAX

(Halifax Chronicle)

With the swirl of Irish music rendered by the Pipers of the Society, Mr. "Tay Pay" O'Connor, was ushered into the annual meeting of the North British Society at the Halifax Hotel last night. It has been a strenuous evening even for such a strenuous Irishman, but the Scotsmen wanted to have him with them and he could not refuse. His engagements earlier had kept him busy and it was not until nearly midnight that he was able to attend the meeting of the North British Society. The members of the Society, of whom there was a goodly number present, could wait, and while they waited, they whiled away the time with the business of the annual meeting and elections of officers for the ensuing year, as follows:

President—Dr. Murdoch Chisholm.
Vice President—Dr. Jas. Ross.
Senior Assistant Vice President—John Strachan.
Junior Assistant Vice President—James Hall.
Treasurer—Geo. H. Taylor.
Secretary—M. McF. Hall.
Assistant Secretary—J. J. Bryden.
Committee of Charity—John McDonald, Hon. Wm. Ross, James Halliday, A. Stephen, D. H. Campbell.
Chaplains—Rev. Dr. Forest, Rev. Dr. Pollock.
Historian—Dr. Howard Murray.
Auditors—W. M. P. Webster, A. McKenzie.
Marshall—Geo. Anderson.

The Pipers of the Society were present and when Mr. O'Connor arrived escorted him, to the swirl of the pipes to the seat of honor at the right hand of President A. Milne Fraser. When the welcome to the distinguished guest had died away, President Fraser called upon Ex-Mayor Stephen to propose the next toast.

SORRY TO LOSE HIM

Mr. Stephen said that Halifax was soon to part with a citizen who for some years past has been the leader and mover in every good work accomplished in the city. He was more than a worker, he was a watchdog and had always guarded the interests of the city. It is only fair he said, to say that he meant J. A. Johnson, who would shortly leave Halifax for the West. He said that he called him a watchdog, because when a few days ago an officer of the Dominion had belittled the Empire port of Canada, he had been called down by Mr. Johnson. Although Mr. Johnson was leaving Halifax he was glad that he would still be a citizen of the Dominion and that in going to the West he would be going as a Missionary, in the interests of Halifax. There he would tell the people what a fine harbor Halifax has, not only the finest harbor on the Atlantic coast, but the finest harbor in the world.

TOO MUCH POLITICS

Mr. Johnson said that he was sorry he could not attend the meeting earlier, but he was always curious to see great men, and he decided to hear T. P. O'Connor, who he considered one of the great men of the British Empire.

He had been in Halifax for eighteen years and always had tried to do what he could. He doubted whether any Highlander ever loved his native glen, better than he loved Nova Scotia or any Scotsman ever loved Edinburgh better than he loved Halifax. It was an object lesson to the people of Nova Scotia that any man could do work without an axe to grind. The trouble was that there was too much politics. When he ran his elections, one would have thought it was a general election. Professor Walter Murray was a man of whom Halifax or any place should feel proud, but it was by the closest shave that he was elected. Politics was the curse of Nova Scotia and the people should wake up to this fact. He supposed it was fore-ordained that he should go to the West and teach the people that Nova Scotia was a part of Canada. Russia had given millions in money and men for seaports. So would Canada in the future do the same if they did not have the port of Halifax. Nature closed up the St. Lawrence and the only port was Halifax.

The curse of politics had shown itself more than once in the past. He would advise the citizens of Halifax to get together and secure a new assessment Act. The poor man was oppressed and the middle man was paying more than his share. An Act should be secured to make the "walking dead man" pay his share—the men with a big income who pay nothing. He would like to see men of the stamp of G. S. Campbell and Hector McInnes elected Mayor or by acclamation. The aldermen should also be men of ability and who desire to do something worth while.

Canada, he said, would never amount to anything until there prevailed all over the Dominion the true national spirit. In the West, no matter where he went, he would be sure to let the people know that he was a Nova Scotian.

THE CAUSE OF IRELAND

Mayor Chisholm, in proposing the toast to Mr. O'Connor, said that it was seldom he missed an annual meeting of the Society, but he could not miss hearing the cause of Ireland set forth by Mr. O'Connor. His Worship also expressed regret that Halifax was to lose J. A. Johnson, and with ex-Mayor Stephen, he felt that leaving the city Mr. Johnson would always have a warm place in his heart for Halifax.

Mr. O'Connor had many claims upon us for distinction. He first had a claim as a journalist, and as such, all were acquainted with him. He was also a member of the British House of Commons, and as an Irish member it has been said that he was the whole Irish Party. He would ask all to join him in drinking the health of "that great Irishman, that great Britisher, T. P. O'Connor."

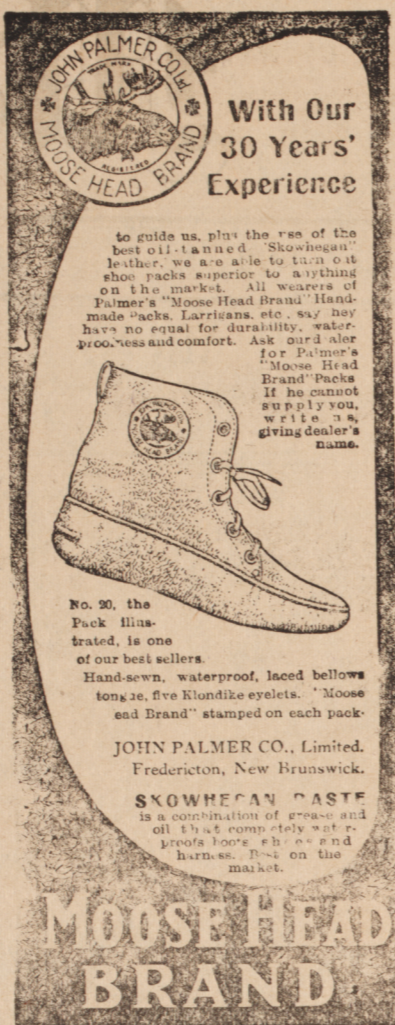

On rising Mr. O'Connor was given an ovation and his remarks that followed were frequently interrupted by bursts of applause. He spoke chiefly of the two great Celtic races, the Scotch and Irish, and his ready Irish wit was eloquent. He expressed great pleasure at being present with the North British Society. Halifax, he said, he had heard of since his boyhood days. When he was but a boy there used to visit the harbor of Galway and old hulk named the Clarence, which carried many of his fellow-countrymen from Ireland to St. John's, Newfoundland and Halifax, in that way he first heard of this city. Mr. O'Connor also spoke of the departure of Mr. Johnson for the West, and referring to Calgary, said that it was as live as Mr. Johnson, and that he could pay no greater compliment to either.

THE IRISH AND SCOTCH

Comparing the Irish and Scotch, Mr. O'Connor said that both races always clung to the Old Land. There was the foundation of their race, morals and religions and the battleground where all the great questions had been decided. The new world of energy, but wherever they are the Irish and Scotch always have a clinging and yearning for their native land. He knew Scotland well, having visited practically every town and village, and had always been kindly and well received. After an Irish audience he favored a Scotch audience, especially at a bye-election, because they take politics serious, as they should be taken. This was perhaps because they had a little Irish blood in their veins.

NEGLECT OF NEW BRUNSWICK'S INTERESTS

A great deal has been said and written about the loss to this country of having its valuable forests cut up into rossed wood and shipped away to a foreign country, there to provide the raw material for valuable and extensive industries. This state of affairs has gradually grown out of a condition and a time in which the value of the country's forests were grossly underestimated or else we were extravagantly prodigal and thought we had sufficient for all time and for all people.

There is some excuse for the condition of affairs in the lumber situation of this province today, because it is a legacy handed down from many generations. There is one industry, however, the position of which seems to call for severe censure upon the policy of the local government. A mountain of ore was discovered in Gloucester County and purchased by a large Canadian smelting company. Here was an extremely valuable natural asset of the province and when the company came before the legislature for a charter, one would naturally think that valuable rights would only be given an some hard and fast conditions of extensive industrial projects in this province.

Yet the legislature seems to have sold this birthright for less than a mass of potage. The Drummond people have almost unlimited rights to large sections of country adjoining their mines which they got at a song. They have sole rights to the power and to operation in their territory. They have secured one very valuable waterfall and were only beaten out by a rival for possession of another. What agreement have they made that these will be utilized for the good of the province and not allowed to remain as nature fashioned them, slowly but surely increasing in value, the "unearned increment" as it is called and some day be another source of great wealth to them?

What return are they making at present? True, they are mining the ore but they must pay out that amount in wages in this province, if they want to use the property at all and get any return for their present outlay. This is the lowest and crudest of labor however and the poorest paid. It is not even going into the pockets of New Brunswick citizens, for reports from the mines state that the labor is mostly coolie, men who take their wealth out of the country as soon as they have laid by enough to live upon in their own country where money is scarce and food prices low.

This is the extent of the benefit New Brunswick receives in return for

MAYOR OF ROME SENDS POINTED REPLY

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Mayor Nathan, of Rome, has promptly sent a pointed reply to the Montreal city council as a result to their recent vote of censure of him, on account of his speeches against the Pope, and of the public resolutions passed at the behest of Archbishop Bruchesi. In his reply to the council Mayor Nathan says:

"Gentlemen.—His Eminence the Archbishop of Montreal, in accordance with other reverend and eminent men who direct the political organization of the Roman Catholic church, has called a meeting of the faithful to scourge me for blasphemy, for insulting God, the Saviour, and his holiness the Pope.

"At a meeting of the common council many of you gentlemen, before approving of a similar vote of censure, desired to have before you the precise text of the averted blasphemies. I have much pleasure in enclosing you in the uprightness of your judgement, a copy both of my speech and a letter in reply to the papal bull. I trust you will perceive the justice of your reserve, the injustice of a supposition whereby I am accused of insulting religion and its divine representative.

"A man, who, like myself, has a profound belief in religious faith, whatever it assumes, cannot be guilty of what is truly blasphemy. As the whole gist of my words truly point out, my criticisms do not affect faith. They treat of a political organization waging war, in faith's name, against my country, striving to undo Italian unity, to repress and condemn liberty of conscience, power of research, modern science and civil progress. Men holding public office have the undeniable right to criticize the hostile attitude, to show, as in a picture, how different the past papal sway of Rome is to its present government.

"So much and no more is set forth in my words whereby if the charity of his reverence, the archbishop, which begetteth at home, has been excessive surely that excess has been accounted for by the lack of temperance and justice of his unchristian strictures.

(Signed) "ERNESTO NATHAN."

"Mayor of Rome."

This letter will be presented to the city council at its meeting on Wednesday.

its gift to the Drummond Company. Transportation charges are almost nil; the ore comes over the I. C. R. for a short haul at a very low rate; it is dumped automatically into the big chute at Newcastle, without employing a man beyond the ordinary train crew. To load 8000 tons of this ore on a steamer means a day's wage for no more than six or eight men, and in time that number will be cut down to half or less.

To our mind the neglect in protecting the lumber interests of our country is not to be compared with the almost criminal neglect to safeguard our interests in this matter; we can conserve our forests and they can reproduce themselves, but iron ore once removed can never be replaced.

If the ore was being smelted with in the Dominion the situation would not be so bad; but we are reliably informed that the company has a two-years' contract with an America smelting firm and that all the ore will go to the states to be refined.

Why could not the government have looked after the province's interests, instead of making this disgraceful bargain?
