CLERGYMEN PAY TRIBUTE TO DECEASED SOVEREIGN

Eloquent Sermons on Death of King Edward Preached Yesterday---Appropriate Music in Many Churches---Sacred Edifices Draped

At all the churches of the city, reference to the death of King Edward was made yesterday. In some sermons on the sad event were preached. Special music and prayers were used in some of the churches and in some cases draperies of purple and black were displayed.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL.

At Christ Church Cathedral reference was made at both morning and evening services to the death of King Edward. Rev. Sub-Dean Street at the morning service made fitting allusion to the loss sustained by the Empire through the death of the Sovereign. Dean Schofield before the evening service made a more lengthy reference.

The official pew in the cathedral was draped with purple and black. Special prayers were offered and special hymns sung at both services and at the conclusion of both the Dead March in Saul was played on the organ while the congregation remained standing.

The remarks made by the Dean on the death of King Edward was as follows:

GEORGE STREET BAPTIST.

At the George Street Church last evening the pastor, Rev. A. A. Rideout, spoke on the death of the King. He took as his text 2 Sam. 3:38, "A Prince and a Man hath fallen," and said in part:

Our king had no peer among the rulers of the world. He was the prince or foremost among rulers. Throughout the empire today is mourning for the great loss. The speaker described the greatness of the empire, mentioning the possessions in the different parts of the world, and said that in no part was he more loyally loved and deeply mourned than in our own province. The visit to Canada as Prince of Wales was described and the loyal welcome that he everywhere received.

Since the Norman conquest, thirty-six sovereigns have ruled. Of these twenty-eight have reigned a longer period than the one we now mourn, but when we estimate a reign by what has been accomplished, Edward's reign takes a high rank.

The King on his accession to the throne, chose as his ideal to follow the great example which had been bequeathed to him by his mother. He used his power for the promotion of peace, and won the title of which there is none greater, "The Peacemaker," and as the end was near he could say "I have done my duty." The Empire stands for liberty and equal rights to all. Its flag floats over no slaves. If one should ask the cause of its greatness, it is not found in the army or navy or wealth of resources, but in the hearts of the people. The King, by his life, endeared himself to all classes, and received back their loyalty. Thus he left the nation stronger than when he began his reign. To the young King we pledge our loyalty, and pray that he may be divinely gifted to govern aright.

A large congregation was present at the service and the speaker had their closest attention. The pulpit was appropriately draped for the occasion.

METHODIST CHURCH.

At the Methodist Church the evening sermon was particularly on the death of the King. The pastor, Rev. J. W. McConnell, referred to the warnings which the Almighty frequently gives to nations through some great event. Such warnings were for the purpose of making a people remember its shortcomings, and also that there was a Supreme Ruler under whose direction all nations had their existence. The death of King Edward had been an event which well might move the people of the British Empire and remember that they owed allegiance to the King of Kings.

Concerning the late sovereign the preacher said that the qualities of his character had been such that he had been endeared to his own people and regarded by other nations with the profoundest respect. He had well earned the title of Peacemaker. By his diplomacy he had converted the nations of continental Europe from a state of coldness and in some cases of hostility to Great Britain, to one of warmest friendship.

PARISH CHURCH.

At the Parish Church Rev. Canon Cowie at the morning service referred to the loss sustained by the nation at large and by the Church of England through the death of King Edward. His excellent qualities as a ruler and as a man were mentioned and the wish for a prosperous reign for his successor expressed. Drapery of purple and black was used in the interior of the church. Special hymns and prayers were used during the service.

ST. DUNSTON'S CHURCH.

At St. Dunstan's Church at both services, Rev. Father Carney referred to the death of the King. British subjects of all classes, he said, were united in mourning the death of a sovereign who, though ruler of the British Empire for but a few years, had displayed qualities of a character which had earned for him the love and veneration of his own people and the respect of all others.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

"The Passing of the King" was the subject of the sermon preached at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Rev. Dr. Smith, the pastor, made mention of the loss all British people had sustained in King Edward's death and also referred to the numerous admirable qualities the sovereign had displayed while upon the throne and also while Prince of Wales.

BRUNSWICK STREET BAPTIST

At the Brunswick Street Baptist Church last evening before a large congregation, Rev. J. H. MacDonald spoke eloquently on the life and character of Edward the Peacemaker. He gave a comprehensive review of his career as Prince of Wales, and pointed out how he had from the very first shown himself possessed of the qualities of the statesman and diplomat, qualities which he never failed to exercise in the promotion of peace and harmony. During the long period in which he served as Prince of Wales he did much to lighten the burdens of his royal mother, and cheerfully responded to all demands made upon him. Upon ascending the throne as King he had promised to walk in the footsteps of his beloved mother, to be a constitutional sovereign and to work for the amelioration of the condition of his people.

There was not the slightest doubt but that he had fulfilled every promise to the letter. Under the fierce white light that beats upon a throne King Edward had been revered and acclaimed by the people of the great British Empire, and had proved himself one of the greatest monarchs of his time. The preacher dwelt at some length upon the late King's qualities as a statesman and diplomat, and showed how he had continually striven to do his duty to the empire to promote peace and faithfully discharge responsibilities of his exalted position. His remarks were followed by the congregation with the closest attention.

AT DOUGLAS.

Rev. Canon Smithers preached at Douglas yesterday and during the service made appropriate reference to the demise of the sovereign.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

The rural mail delivery established some weeks ago through the efforts of Col. McLean, M. P., between the Mouth of Nashwaak and Lower Maugerville, is giving every satisfaction. It has sixty-three subscribers out of sixty-six families residing in the route. Mr. Harry McLean is the carrier and makes daily trips from the city. Under the old arrangement mail from this city for Maugerville, was sent to Waasis by rail, then by horse and carriage to Oromocto, thence to Burton court house, thence across the river to Sheffield thence up the river to Maugerville. In other words to deliver mail to residents of Upper Maugerville, eight miles from this city, it was necessary to haul a distance of twenty-five miles.
