ONE DOSE USUALLY CURES INDIGESTION OR A BAD STOMACH

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't out of order.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery at any drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure almost any chronic case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.—8

ASYLUM AT BRANDON IS RAZED BY FIRE

Brandon, November 5.—The magnificent asylum which crowns the heights of Brandon Hills was last night totally destroyed by fire, the loss being estimated at half a million dollars. No lives were lost. The building was fully insured, and rebuilding operations will be started as soon as the insurance is adjusted.

There were six hundred patients in the asylum, and one hundred attendants, and their rescue provided many thrilling scenes. The fire was discovered at 5.30, and there is ample evidence to show that it was caused by one of the women inmates, who was playing with a box of matches which she had secured while working in the kitchen. She was one of the best-behaved patients in the hospital, and because of her gentle manners, and evident desire to please her attendants, she had for a long time been allowed a considerable amount of freedom.

The fire had made considerable headway before the alarm was given, and the flames spread so rapidly that all the energies of the staff were directed to getting out the patients. The new waterworks system which was being constructed to protect the building had not progressed far enough to be of any service, and the Brandon Fire Brigade had a mile and half gallop across the valley to the scene. Many residents of the city also went out in their automobiles to aid in the work of rescue. The military was called out and aided materially in preserving order and ensuring the safe disposal of the inmates.

There was snow upon the ground at the time, and the inmates, who ran shouting and screaming into the open stood in huddled groups shivering in the cold wind until the military arrived, when they were driven in hordes to a corral in a barn at the back of the burning buildings.

While the fire was in progress some of the best-behaved of the inmates were allowed to assist in the work of salvage, but they became so excited,

SOME POINTED QUESTIONS FOR MR. BOURASSA

The Montreal Herald has addressed the following open letter to Mr. Henri Bourassa:

MR. HENRI BOURASSA,
Winner and Loser

Dear Sir,—In explaining the result in Drummond-Arthabaska, you do protest too much that the campaign was not waged by you on anti-British grounds. There should be no misunderstanding on this point. It is a time for plain speaking. The meaning of the Nationalist movement, as directed by you in Drummond-Arthabaska, should be clearly understood of all men.

Say what you may now that the election is won and lost, the fact remains that it was won by appeals to anti-British sentiment. Even conceding that during the campaign you personally may have avoided using words that could be laid up against you as being anti-British, the fact remains that your text was the naval defence programme of the Government, and your appeal against that programme was based on the assumption that the Canadian navy might take part in British wars. Your followers played on the string every conceivable anti-British tune. They asked their hearers what had Britain none of Canada? They pictured the Canadian navy engaged in England's wars, and the homes of Canada thrown into mourning as a result; they denounced the Navy Act as an impairment of the autonomy of Canada, and as plunging the Dominion into the vortex of European militarism. In a word, their appeals were to any intent anti-British sentiment there might exist in the hearts of the French-Canadians of the riding; their appeals were to prejudice and to sectionalism; they were to the fears and apprehensions of a peace-loving rural population; they were to every anti-Imperial and anti-British sentiment that perfervid orators could arouse in the hearts of a people who naturally shrink from being thrust into the arena of world-politics.

A WHIRLWIND, NOT A BREEZE

No, Mr. Bourassa, having raised the whirlwind, you cannot tell us it is only a summer breeze. Having won an election through anti-British votes, you cannot blind our eyes to the fact that your appeals created these votes.

You have won a victory, but at what a cost! You have secured a verdict against Laurier's naval policy, but at what a cost! If your object is to isolate Quebec from the rest of the Dominion, you are succeeding. If your object is to convince the rest of the Dominion that Quebec cannot be looked to to take a wide view of Canada's duties to herself and obligations within the Empire, you are succeeding. If you think it part of nation-building to set Province against Province, you are succeeding. If you are anxious to weaken Canada's position in the Empire by having it felt in Britain that the Dominion is not even united on the meagre naval defence programme now outlined, you are succeeding. If you would destroy the work of Laurier in promoting trust and confidence between all our people, you are succeeding. But these are not the aims nor the counsels of a patriot. They mirror, rather, the aspirations of a man of ambition, regardless of how he gratifies them.

And to what end is all this destructive work of yours, Mr. Bourassa? The naval programme will be carried out. Come the Conservatives into power tomorrow, they will not do less than the Liberals are undertaking. You say all you have wanted is an appeal to the people on this question. They why did you not confine the Drummond-Arthabaska campaign to attacks upon Laurier? Why did you extend it to the naval proposals, and to the whole question of Imperial relations? Again we say, Mr. Bourassa, you do protest too much. The campaign was won by appeals to anti-British and anti-Imperial sentiment, whether you personally voiced these appeals or not.

WHAT DOES THE ELECTION TEACH?

And where, then, does the election leave us? It leaves us with a declaration, by a typical French-Canadian rural riding, against the Laurier Government's naval policy. What is that policy? The creation of a fleet of coast defence vessels, primarily to protect our own shores, but to be available for Imperial uses at the decision of the Canadian Parliament; the assumption of a purely Canadian duty, coupled with a recognition of Imperial obligations. Sir Wilfrid, in propounding this policy, followed lines that must and will be followed by Canada. He avoided, on the one hand, the dangers that are inseparable and took such long chances in dashing through the flames for furniture, that they themselves had finally to be rescued by main force and carried off into captivity.

The asylum was erected in 1889, and had bad wings added at different times. It contained insane from all three prairie provinces.

able from the policy of direct contributions to the British navy, and on the other the odium of doing nothing to guard our own coasts on to take our fair share, if need be, of Imperial responsibilities. Against such a sane and statesmanlike policy stands your policy. Mr. Bourassa, of negation and stagnation. You will deny this, no doubt, and will seek refuge with the lines of Torres Aedras—behind your declaration that all you want is the verdict of the people. But will the verdict of the people of the Dominion in favor of the Laurier policy wipe off the slate the words of your Nationalist orators in Drummond-Arthabaska, or convince the men who voted for Mr. Golbert that the navy proposals embody a Canadian national duty?

The simple fact is, Mr. Bourassa, you are bending all your great powers of persuasion—editorial, personal and oratorical—to the undoing of your erstwhile leader Laurier. If it is to be a duel between you two, there is no question as to where true patriots should stand. Laurier's career is today one of the prized possessions of his countrymen. He has consistently stood for religious liberty; you are today the hope of the Ultramontanes. He has stood for the union of the races; you are today cleaving them asunder. He has taught the English-Provinces that a French-Canadian can be trusted with national interests; your teaching would lead them to assume that Quebec is in but not of the Dominion. He, with wide-seeing eyes, realizes that Canada is becoming a member of the world of nations. You have yours fixed upon one Province. He symbolizes conciliation, the give and take of man with man, the recognition of differing opinions, and the tolerance that listen to all, you symbolize, today, narrowness, sectionalism, race prejudice. 'Tis a pity, for you were cut out for far different work. However, come men or go, principles endure, and as the things for which Laurier stands make appeal to higher motives than do the things for which you stand, we have no fear but that, in the long run, they will prevail. Quebec is neither going to forget Laurier, nor to ignore the lessons he has taught her—lessons in nation-building through mutual trust, confidence and respect.

You have won, Mr. Bourassa, but you have lost more than you have won.

Yours truly,
THE HERALD.
