THE FUTURE FOOD SUPPLY OF THE BRITISH ISLES

In Order to Relieve the People of Great Britain From Any Shortage of Food Supplies, Imperial Federation and Freedom of Trade Within the Empire must be Brought About.

(Standard of Empire)

Some figures contained in the annual trade returns issued by the Board of Trade a few days ago suggest an instructive commentary on the dangers of the growing dependence of the Mother Country on foreign food supplies. The value in 1909 of the imports of a selected list of foodstuffs, such as corn, meat, dairy produce, sugar fruit and vegetables, and feeding cakes amounted to not less than 209 millions sterling and of this not less than 77 per cent. is due to imports from foreign countries. That these imports are growing rapidly is evidenced by the fact that since 1905 the value has increased by 21 millions sterling of which not less than 17 millions is foreign. The significance of these figures is rendered even more striking by momentarily confining attention to the relatively more important articles like bread and meat. These two items alone account for a sum of 124 millions sterling, representing an increase of 17 millions sterling since 1905. Seventy-three per cent. of these articles at present originate in foreign countries a proportion which has not altered in the past five years. Regarded solely from the point of view of present values, when the stream of international commerce is untroubled by a single wave, these figures do not exhibit in trade perspective the state of affairs in the event of a war in which this country might be engaged. At once the dangers incident to warfare, the risks of capture of belligerent ships carrying food, the possibilities of even temporary blockade would revolutionise the produce markets and send prices up to a precipitous height. The working classes whose fund for the payment of food is a very limited one would be compelled to meet these new conditions by a rearrangement of their expenditure, spending more on bread and perhaps meat and less on comforts and semi-luxuries. An increase on the price of food would therefore have the paradoxical result of causing an enhanced consumption of bread-corn and the pressure of this exaggerated demand on the available possibly restricted, supply would in its turn react further on bread prices and cause them to harden still more. At present nearly two-thirds of our bread and meat are imported and at the port centres, like London, Liverpool, Glasgow and Hull, the proportions of imported food consumed by the local populations must be considerably higher. In those centres the suffering and privations incidental to a great war would be greater than in the rural districts and inland centres generally; but nowhere would the effects be negligible. Only in the degree of suffering would the various districts differ from one another, but everywhere it would be considerable. The policy of our statesmen and the efforts of our people must be directed to avert such a calamity. This must be accomplished not by any sacrifice of national or Imperial interests, but solely by a provision of resources so adequate in all its details as to make it increasingly improbable that the arbitrament of war will be forced on Britain in any international dispute. That provision, based on determined prevision, we are happy to observe is being undertaken in no shirking spirit by the self-governing nations who compose the British Empire. The food supplies of the Mother Country drawn from within the Empire are growing, though we hope the pace can be accelerated. It is satisfactory to note, for example, that in Western Canada the wheat area tilled in the present season is estimated to show an increase of 12 to 15 per cent. over the previous year. Though South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand are likely in the future to become important sources for the supply of wheat, it is on Canada that the largest reliance must be placed. Her resources are incomparably larger, her communications with the Mother Country are better and more rapid, and her supply is in general more dependable. In times of stress especially that this development shall not manifest her indisputable right to be called the granary of the British Empire. Without minimising in the very slightest degree the enormous potentialities of our other Dominions Overseas, we at Home derive courage and hope from the enormous developments in Canada. We desire only that this development shall not be slackened, but shall if possible be quickened to the utmost limit of her capacity. Britain desires to co-operate with her in providing men as settlers, and money for commercial development, knowing full well that by these means the Empire will be established with increasing firmness and stability.

At home also it is satisfactory to note that the efforts and statesmanship of at least one of the political parties are being directed to restore to agriculture a shadow of its former glory. Whatever may be said of the advantages of Great Britain's fiscal system from the point of view of the increase to national wealth, it will not be denied by even the most rabid Free Trader that it has destroyed British agriculture. Even our town life has been maintained only by a constant recruitment of population from the rural centres, where vigour and courage, physical strength and mental sturdiness are mainly developed. The strength of this current is showing signs of weakening, and therefore in the interests of that commerce which is mainly concentrated in our town life, in the interests of that physical well-being upon which our continuance as a nation depends, home agriculture must be revived and regenerated. The method advocated by the Unionist leaders is the establishment of peasant proprietorship, stimulating our farmers to the utmost of their capacity by the influence of what old Arthur Young called "the magic of ownership." This is to be supplemented by an extensive system of land banks, a large scheme of agricultural co-operation for the sale of produce, the improvement of transport facilities, and by State-subsidised agricultural experiments. By such a system it is hoped that at home, just as in the dominions overseas, agriculture will take on a new lease of life. The Empire will be free, not from danger alone, but from the fear of danger. Imperial solidarity will be the most natural outcome of this condition of affairs.

FRENCH CANADIAN BATTALION FOR ENGLAND

Montreal, June 21.—The 65th Rifles, a French Canadian battalion have been doing very active service during the last few days in the almost inaccessible mountain districts of Charlebois County, where the lofty Laurentide range arises thousands of feet above the sea level. Marching fourteen miles at one stretch over these mountain roads, indulging in a sham fight, and followed by the announcement by Honorary Colonel Rodolphe Forget, M. P., that on the fifth of June, 1911, the Regiment, 400 strong, with 34 officers, would start for the Coronation of King George V., was the news received today from the Lower St. Lawrence. The expense of the trip is being paid by Mr. R. Forget, M. P. Mr. Forget has spent half a million dollars in his country during the past few years in the way of model farms and private residences.

ICY TEARS

A traveller who had spent a winter in Sweden was describing the intense cold of the country. He said: "In Haparanda the day before I left I attended a performance at the theatre. It was a tragedy. Everybody wept. But it was so terribly cold that the tears of the spectators in the upper galleries fell like hailstones among the occupants of the pit."

LLOYD GEORGE INVITED TO VISIT AMERICA

Seranton, Pa., June 21.—The Druid Society of this city, composed of citizens of Welsh birth or ancestry, is making a strong effort to induce the Right Hon. Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Asquith Cabinet, to visit the United States this summer. His tour would include a visit to the great "Welsh Day" celebration here. The Druid Committee also hopes to have Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., as their guest with Chancellor George on that day. Mr. O'Connor, it is understood by the Committee, is coming with Mr. Redmond, M. P., and Mr. Devlin, M. P., to the Irish Home Rule Convention at Buffalo, and the Druids will spare no effort to secure the presence at the gathering of the popular and eloquent member for Liverpool.

COMPOTE OF RHUBARB

Take sound rhubarb, wash it well and cut it into lengths of about two inches. Prepare the syrup thus: Put six ounces of lump sugar, two gills of water, a few drops of red coloring and half a teaspoonful of ginger extract into a saucepan over the fire. Bring it to a boil, add the rhubarb and cook till tender; then remove it to a compote dish. Boil the syrup with a teaspoonful of lemon juice to a thick syrup; strain over the rhubarb and serve.

KING'S CORONATION TO TAKE PLACE NEXT MAY

Immediately After Which the Duke of Connaught Will Be Appointed Governor General of Canada.

London, June 21.—It is stated the coronation of King George will occur as soon as possible after the anniversary of King Edward's death, and immediately thereafter the Duke of Connaught will sail for Canada.

Rowing at Henley this evening, the Winnipeggers improved this morning's time for the half course by 14 seconds. They did 40 at the start and then dropped to 36. Their steering seems to have improved.

Rumors of a Canadian loan rise in consequence of the visit of Hon. Mr. Fielding, have been authoritatively denied.

TORONTO NEWSPAPERS CLEARED OF VIOLATING ANTI-BETTING LAW

Toronto, June 21.—After going over the facts of the case carefully during the past week, Magistrate Kingsford today dismissed the charge that the morning papers committed a breach of the Miller bill by publishing racing information "intended to assist book-making, betting and wagering upon horse race."

A similar charge against Philip Jorman and Frank C. Waldo, news gents, who sold the New York Telegraph, was dismissed, but the charge against the publishers of the Daily Racing Information will be taken up on the 28th instant. The charge against the G. N. W. Telegraph Company of transferring betting information by telegraph was withdrawn in the police court this morning. The magistrate was satisfied that Mr. Hogarth, the manager, was not responsible personally, and it was practically impossible to prevent the transmission of messages by code, as was shown at the investigation.

INHERITANCE TAX

Will be $428,000,000 for Present Fiscal Year.

New York, June 21.—A cable despatch to The Sun from London says: Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George estimates that the receipts from the inheritance tax for the financial year ending July 1 will amount to $128,000,000. The delayed income tax collected in April and May may amount to over $100,000,000.

Fond Mother—How did you get along in school today, Susie?

Tired Child (wearily)—Oh, I missed in my geography again. I forgot whether the Putnam joined the Amazon east of west of the confluence of the Marañon and Ucayale Rivers.

Same Child (years later; wife and mother)—What is it you want to know, pot?

Little Daughter (struggling over a primary geography)—Where is the Amazon River, mamma?

Mamma (after a long reflection)—I think it's somewhere in Africa or Asia, I forget which.
