OPEN LETTER TO PREMIER HAZEN

The following letter appears in the last issue of the Richibucto Review: To the Honorable J. D. Hazen, Fredericton:

Dear Sir—You will remember that it says in the good Book "the worm will turn." Well, sir, let this be my reason for writing this letter.

Last winter I cut on vacant crown land fourteen thousand superficial feet of spruce and pine logs and hauled them to my mill at Portage River. Your scaler visited me in March, he made no seizure or served me with no notice of seizure, and now, sir, he goes to Mr. J. D. Irving (the man who was kind enough to advance me means to get a few logs) and demands double stumpage and expenses for sixteen thousand feet, making in all $50.00, will take no less. This would be all right if the same methods were adopted all along the line, but when I know, and everybody else knows, there are large quantities of lumber (cut as low as six inches) got out in this section on which practically there is no stumpage being paid, is it any wonder that I say, "the worm will turn." Of course I believe you know nothing of these things, and therefore personally I hold you innocent, but it has been said, a man is known by the company he keeps, and if the rest of your advisers are like the contingent that was sent you from Kent County, your surroundings, to say the least, are very doubtful indeed.

Further, the appointments that have been made in Kent County by your government since it came into power, are a disgrace to all honest men. I am an old man, past the three score and ten mark, and worked hard with my axe every day last winter until the 11th day of March, when I was struck by a falling tree and confined to my bed until the 7th of April. I was only able to resume work the 2nd of this month, and the doctor says I will never be completely well again. Still, I am working hard every day in the mill, trying to earn a bite to eat and to pay back the honest dollars that were advanced to me, and yet I am persecuted for stumpage and the opulent are let go scot free.

Is there any fair play, is there any justice, is there any humanity in it? Do you think the public in general will stand for this kind of thing? No sir. I demand an investigation into this matter. As to information, I can give you chapter and verse. Come to me, I am right here with the goods.

While I was laid up in bed last spring, some men that were working for me, by mistake, cut about one thousand logs on licensed lands. The Sheriff was sent, the logs were taken, but not a line was run to see if the logs or what portion of them was cut from the license. I had no means to go to law and so I had to let them go, and I was not allowed one dollar for cutting and hauling them.

All this was done at the instigation of your scaler who has allowed himself to be made a tool of by the little cigars and bloated Autocrats, who are oppressors of the land.

In speaking of me they say, exterminate him, starve him out, that the man who supplied me with the means to go on with is as bad as I am. Harrass, annoy, persecute the both of them.

Mr. Premier, if you will take your Bible and turn to the 30th chapter of Proverbs and the 14th verse, you will find a passage that will fill the bill.

Yours truly,
B. MATTINSON,
Lower Sabin, May 23rd, 1910.

GIRL WIFE AGED 10, SEEKS DIVORCE; SAYS LURED INTO MARRIAGE

Memphis, May 27.—Nellie M. Johnson-Lamar, 10 years old, has brought suit for divorce against her husband Newlan Lamar, who is more than three times as old as his wife, and still a young man. He is 32.

Mrs. Lamar alleges in her petition that Lamar lured her into wedlock while yet she was too young to know her own mind. She was married a year ago, when she was a child of 9.

The wedding caused a big local sensation. When it became generally known that Lamar had thus imposed upon a mere child fierce indignation was rife in New South Memphis and a hurriedly organized mob sought Lamar. He decamped instantly and escaped lynching.

When the hue and cry was raised against Lamar, he disappeared, but after several weeks he came back and attempted to see his wife. The parents of the girl ordered him off the place and when he persisted he was forcibly ejected from the house.

GARDEN NOTES

(Communicated.)

No farmer should in these days have a little tucked up garden, that it is necessary to work entirely by hand. Let it be out somewhere on a broad gauge plan—the rows of good length and far enough apart in most to use a horse and cultivator. Have several sets of cultivator teeth for the same cultivator, narrow ones as well as wide ones; sweeps ten or twelve inches wide too are very useful cutting off the weeds, stirring the soil and leaving it nearly level; weeder attachments are also very nice sometimes. I have all of these for my cultivator, thus being able to make various changes, according to what I am about to cultivate and its condition. These different attachments can be found, at the city hardware stores and implement manufacturers, if they do not come with your cultivator and it is not likely that they will only in part. You will perhaps get one up here and another there, not being able to get them all at one place. Sometimes something can be found at the junk shop that will be serviceable, at a very low price. My cultivator and attachments as I now have it came from four or five different places, and I can do a large variety of work with it.

The wheel hoe is needed, too, in the garden, especially in onion culture. I have used one for a score of years, and have found it a valuable implement. Hand hoes, too, of different shapes and sizes are necessary for the best and easiest working of a garden; quite often an old hoe may be cut over so as to be of more use than it was when new.

An extensive list of seeds of vegetables should be planted and I enjoy having a few flowers planted in the garden, too, because it is made more attractive thereby. The farm garden should be so managed as to afford the family a great deal of food in the summer time and a goodly store for winter.

There can be but little question that the garden, if well taken care of, is of the most profitable plot on the farm.

KILLING OF IMBECILES IS ADVOCATED BY NEW YORK DOCTOR

Detroit, Mich., May 27.—The custom of savages, who destroyed infants born hopelessly imbecile, was applauded today at a clinic of the Detroit College of Medicine alumni at St. Mary's Hospital.

Among the children submitted for examination was a baby girl bearing all the stigmata of degeneration.

Dr. Pisek, of New York, who was conducting the clinic, excused the child's mother from the room, and then turning to the assembled physicians, said:

"Some surgeons operate in a case like this, trephining from the front to the back of the skull to give the brain room. I have watched the results of these experiments and I am convinced that the untutored savages were more wise than we in their treatment of such cases. They took their children, and—"

The sentence was completed by a significant gesture that drew a burst of applause.

SOME FARM HOMES

(Communicated.)

In traveling across the country in the summer months, you often wonder how a farmer supports his family upon such a disgraceful looking place. Everything has a deserted look and still it will be inhabited by some family with small children who are growing up to bloom into life and some day to take our places. What encouragement do these children have in life, being brought up by such parents in such miserable looking houses? What are such farmers thinking about? They are not living up to the requirements of the times by letting their farm homes run down in such a dilapidated condition, letting the weeds and bushes grow up and shut out the sunlight, and starve their families in these good times? Who is to blame and what is the trouble, can anybody tell?

In passing by farm homes, you can tell every farmer's ability, just how big and smart he is, by the looks of his farm, and this is a positive proof of his ability in life. I have known of several most dilapidated looking homes and farms that have been remodeled into the most beautiful homes, and all the cost of the improvements was taken from the profits from the farm crops. The times are good. Everything that the farmer raises is for sale, brings a good price, and there is no call for slack, shipshod looking farm homes in New Brunswick. There are many little things and some big things that can be done, one at a time. Look around the buildings and in the barn, the tie-up and see that it is warm and comfortable for the cattle. Look at the orchard and see what needs to be done, to insure the greatest profit for your labor. Prune spray and feed the trees; raise a small fruit and vegetable garden. Such well cared for, will support a family six months of the year at the best of living. I know fruit and vegetable gardens are overlooked and neglected badly, and it comes pretty hard on the wives to know what to get for the next meal, when they are living without the fruit and vegetable garden. Some may think it

EXTRACTS

From Reports of A. McGill, Chief Analyst of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, Canada,

LEMON FLAVORING EXTRACT

I have the honor to present herewith a report upon seventy-five (75) samples, purchased throughout Canada in December last, as Lemon Flavouring Extract.

Lemon Extract is probably more largely used in the household than any other kindred preparation for the flavouring of pastry, &c. It is, of course, valued, proportionately to its strength as a flavouring material, and to the quality of the flavor which gives it its name. No legalized standard for Lemon Extracts exists in Canada; and in view of the large consumption of the article, it is of importance that it should be defined and legally recognized.

The results now placed in your hands, together with those published in Bulletin No. 114, will suffice to show the character of Lemon Extract as sold in Canada.

The United States standard for Lemon Extract is as follows: "Lemon Extract is the flavouring extract prepared from oil of Lemon, or from lemon peel, or both, and contains not less than five (5) per cent. by volume of oil of lemon."

Of the 75 samples covered by the present report, only 13 contains above 1 per cent. of lemon oil.

62 samples contain less than 1 per cent. of lemon oil and 60 samples contain less than 0.5 per cent. lemon oil.

Below is a tabulated report of the extracts being arranged in order of their lemon oil content.

This should be of interest to every user of Flavouring Extracts.

The orange is one of the best friends of the girl with the lovely complexion. It clears the skin marvellously.

Make a point of buying your gloves large enough to fit you, and you will find that they will last much longer and look better than if they were a tight fit.

It is an awful task to raise a fruit garden. When you make a good beginning your work is half done. There is more good living in a good fruit and vegetable garden than any other crop, four times the size of garden. I have not mentioned the kinds of fruits and vegetables to grow in a garden, as you should choose for yourselves. Some day, later, I will describe to you what I am doing in this line for a living and how it may be done.

AMATEUR DENTISTS WORK RESULTS IN BLOOD POISONING

Pawtucket, R. I., May 27.—About two months ago Harris Powell Gifford of this city, who is a first year student in the dental department of Tufts College, is said to have had two teeth filled by a fellow student. Today he died at his home, 267 High street, of blood poisoning.

According to his parents young Gifford's illness began soon after the operation at Tufts and continued until May 6, when he called upon a Pawtucket dentist. The latter said the trouble was due to the fact that a nerve had not been killed at the time the filling was put in, and he advised pulling the offending tooth.

This was done and as he did not get better the second tooth was extracted; also this latter was found to be ulcerated at the roots. Mr. Gifford continued to complain of severe pain and general blood poisoning followed, causing his death today.

The family decline to give the name of the student who operated in the first place. Young Gifford, who was 19 years of age, was graduated from the Pawtucket High School last year; he began to attend Tufts here, making the trip day by day.

In Doubt—"Did you ever have appendicitis?" asked the insurance man. "Well," answered the septic, "I was operated on. But I never felt sure whether it was a case of appendicitis or a case of professional curiosity."
