BRITAIN HAS CASH TO HELP COLONIES

A splendid and exhaustive review of Great Britain's investments abroad is given in the 'Statist' of London which reads as follows:

"The inhabitants of Great Britain notwithstanding the limited extent of the natural resources of their own country, and their need to purchase from outside lands, and to transport from distant parts of the earth the greater portion of their supplies of food and raw materials, have been so successful in overcoming the obstacles placed in their path by nature that they have not only had the means of purchasing all the food raw materials and manufactured goods they have succeeded to buy from other lands for their own consumption and maintenance, but they have been able to create so much surplus wealth that they have supplied other nations with visible capital to the extent of nearly $16,000,000,000 as well as with a large amount of private capital so that the total sum provided is estimated to be upwards of $17,500,000,000. The days of miracles are supposed to have passed but had anyone predicted two generations ago that in 1910 Great Britain would have possessed this great wealth abroad over and above the vastly increased wealth of her people at home, the prediction would have been regarded as beyond the possibility of realization.

That Great Britain has been so successful is undoubtedly due to the enterprise, courage, hard work and thrift of her people, which have caused them to save money in the first place; and in the second to use it wherever the best results were to be obtained, whether in their own country or in other lands. In fact, wherever capital has been urgently needed and likely to obtain profitable employment the British investor has been ready to find a large part of the sums required.

Sometimes new railways were urgently needed, sometimes the production of coal required to be expanded, sometimes the copper supply had to be largely increased, sometimes tin, or nitrate, or gold or silver, or lead, or tea, or rubber, or oil or electric power—in fact British capital was available for producing anything that the world urgently required for its use. The result of this attitude of our investors has been an increase not only in the wealth of Great Britain beyond the dreams of the most sanguine, but an expansion in the prosperity of the whole world at a rate and in a measure never previously witnessed nor possible. The greatness of the work accomplished by the investors of Great Britain cannot fail to impress every impartial person.

The lecturer weighing up the advantages which have accrued from Great Britain's policy of investing capital wherever it was urgently needed said: "In ascertaining the large amounts of capital that Great Britain has supplied to individual colonial and foreign countries, one is compelled to recognize the powerful influence which Great Britain has exerted in developing the world's natural resources by supplying other countries freely with funds for railway construction, for mining and for the production of every kind of natural wealth. It is no exaggeration to state that Great Britain's enterprise in placing her supplies of new capital wherever they could be profitably employed has been one of the great forces which have made for the increased prosperity of the human race in modern times."

The income directly derived by the British people from their investments abroad now reaches the very large sum. In this paper it is shown that the investment of about $13,500,000 of British capital up to the end of 1907 in other lands gave a direct income of $700,000,000 a year to this country and it is fair to assume that the investment of nearly $16,000,000,000 gives a return of about $830,000,000 a year, a sum which comes to us in the produce of the countries in which we have invested capital, and thus provides us with no inconsiderable part of the supplies of food and raw materials we obtain from abroad.

But the indirect advantages of the capital investments are quite as important as the direct advantages. By means of the capital which our investments have supplied, the young countries and India have so greatly expanded their productions of food and raw materials that they have had the means not only of paying the interest due by them to Great Britain, but of purchasing greatly increased quantities of British goods. The prosperity of Great Britain which has provided the capital, has been stimulated in three ways:

First, the remittance of capital to other lands has created a greatly increased demand for British goods.

Second, the remittance of the interest upon the capital has increased Great Britain's purchasing power, and has given her the means of paying for a large part of her supplies of food and raw materials.

Third, the investment of British capital abroad has greatly increased the production of other countries, and given them the means of purchasing additional quantities of British goods.

Moreover after sixty years of large investments the world's need of British capital is greater than ever, and in 1910 the amount of British capital supplied to other lands reached the unprecedented figure of $825,000,000, while in the last three years it has been $275,000,000. The investment of this new capital assures to the world in general fresh supplies of foodstuffs and raw materials, and to Great Britain in particular the additional quantities of foodstuffs and of raw materials needed to feed and clothe her growing population. Furthermore it enables other nations to purchase additional quantities of British goods both by reason of the loans of capital and of their increased productions. In brief the investment of the British capital wherever it is needed brings advantage to everyone.

In the Daughter States of the Empire and in India the investment of British capital has been very great: in the aggregate it reaches $7,770,000,000 of which $415,000,000 has been supplied in the present year. In the three Daughter States of Canada, Australia, and South Africa the amount reaches nearly $5,500,000,000—a very large sum when we recollect that the total population of these three countries is only 20,000,000. Commenting upon these great investments the lecturer stated that "in so far as the prosperity of the British Empire is governed by the amount of capital which the Mother Country is able to supply to the colonies and India, its future expansion in population and prosperity is assured. Never has Great Britain had so much new capital available for investment in the colonies and in India and never has she supplied money so freely to the other nations of the Empire as she has done in the past few years."

Could Not Rest at Night Back Was So Weak

Weak, lame and aching backs are the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning from the kidneys that everything is not right with them.

Heed the warning: cure the weak, lame, aching back and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't do this serious complications may arise and the first thing you know you will be troubled with Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease the three most deadly forms of Kidney Trouble.

On the first sign of anything wrong Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go to the seat of the trouble and strengthen the kidneys, thereby strengthening the back.

Mrs. John Puigh, Parkdale, Man., writes:—"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and I find nothing to beat them. I could not rest at night my back was so weak. I tried everything, but could not get anything to do me any good until I was told by a friend to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I tried them and I am not the same weak woman I was before. I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by the L. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PECULIAR POISONING CASE AT PITTSBURG

Pittsburg, Jan. 9.—Mrs. G. N. Strobaker, wife of the grain elevator superintendent, who was poisoned with strychnine under peculiar circumstances Saturday, is a patient in the same hospital and, according to physicians, is suffering from the same poison. Mrs. Strobaker was yesterday "detained" by the police, pending an investigation of her husband's case and at midnight was found to be suffering from what appeared to be a nervous collapse. She was in a cell at the south side police station, and Dr. E. Sable, a police surgeon, was summoned.

"The woman is suffering from strychnine poisoning," said Dr. Sable. "Her right arm has been paralyzed and it failed to respond to pin pricks."

Strobaker, who regained consciousness yesterday, is recovering from the effects of the poison administered to him and it is expected he will be discharged within a few days.

TAKING A COLLEGE COURSE.

"Mother, may I go out to school, Go to a woman's college, For every girl goes as a rule, To gather special knowledge. she goes away from friends and home With all her gems and laces, The halls and camouses to roam And other classic places."

"What! Would you go away to school? Would you, my little daughter, There to drink at the knowledge pool, Of wisdom's sparkling water! Would you sit there at night alone, Over your studies poring, Making the ancient lore your own, In all your classes scoring?"

"Why, mother, mother, how you talk Of lore and stuff and knowledge! Just in the classis halls I'd walk Of some swell woman's college; There I would wear the college pin And as the gay year passes Through all the games and spreads I'd spin, and not go near the classes!" —Chicago News.

ONTARIO MAY HAVE A PUBLIC TRUSTEE

Toronto, Jan. 9.—A bill will be introduced at the approaching session of the Ontario legislature, providing for the creation of office of public trustee on similar lines to the department and board in England in 1908. The public trustee would not only administer estates and trusts at actual cost, but would have power to step in where private executors or trust companies were suspected of mismanagement or maladministration of trusts. The bill will be introduced by a private member but the government will be urged to accept it as a government measure.
