MILD WEATHER DISARRANGED HOCKEY SCHEDULES

Marysville--Fredericton Game Next Tuesday--Intercollegiate Schedule Arranged--Pro Games Postponed.

The mild weather of the past few days has played havoc with hockey schedules. The game between Marysville and Fredericton which was to open the local hockey season Friday night is off until Tuesday next on account of the poor ice of the past week and the Maritime Provinces professional league has also put the games back a week.

A Moncton despatch of yesterday says: "Owing to the mild weather the opening games of the pro-hockey league have been postponed until January 11th. Chester Gregory, representing the New Glasgow team was in town today, and after a conference with R. Norman this decision was arrived at. "The Halifax Crescents and New Glasgow and Moncton and the Crescents were the first games arranged but an entirely new schedule is now probable."

N. B. H. L. OPENS TONIGHT

The New Brunswick Hockey League will open tonight with Chatham playing at Sussex. The line-up of the Chatham team will be as follows: Heckbert, goal; McLean, point; Watling, cover point; Synnotte, rover; Godfrey, centre; Powers and Flood wings. Chatham plays St. John tomorrow

PRACTISE TONIGHT

The Fredericton Hockey team will practise tonight before eight o'clock. It is likely that there will be practise every night this week as the boys will need all they can get. Blank forms for registration are in the hands of the club secretary and should be filled in by all intending players who have not done so and who do not hold registration cards which are necessary this year.

COLLEGE SCHEDULE

The intercollegiate schedule has been drawn up by the representatives of Mount A. and U. N. B. and will be forwarded to the U. N. B. Athletic authorities for approval or alteration. The mix-up with regard to the U. N. B. representative receiving no notice to attend the league meeting is still unexplained. The Acadia representative says the required notice was mailed two weeks before the meeting.

Tuesday, January 10th was selected for the postponed Marysville-Fredericton game on account of being the most convenient day. Marysville has a game with Chatham two days after and Fredericton the day after that.

HOOF PRINTS

James Murphy, who owned Star Pointer when the son of Brown Hal became the first 2-minute horse, is going to have the skeleton of the former champion mounted and present it to some Chicago natural history museum.

The owner of the Bel is a bit put out because the gray fellow is barred from the free for alls in Canada this winter and is trying to secure some crack that can win. He has made an unsuccessful offer to lease Independence Boy.

Walter Cox is out with a strong letter to the stay-at-home turf editors who claim he did not try to beat The Abbe with Stranham Braughman last summer. Walter, like every one else who attended the races considers the Abbe one of the greatest racehorses the turf has known.

In the death of Nelia, 2.134 Hill-and-dale farm loses a very promising futurity candidate and a trotter that Johnny Dickerman considered one of the fastest he had ever handled. To her owner, W. B. Dickerman, her blood lines were particularly attractive and he had counted much on her future as a brood mare. She was by Bellini, 2.134, out of Nettie King, 2.204 dam of the Abbott, The Abbee and others. Her only start was in the Horseman 2-year-old futurity, which she won defeating Miss Stokes handsly.

H. L. Pierce of Leominster recently paid a visit to Kentucky and purchased three horses, one a four-year-old stallion by Prince Selma, 2.104, dam Directum Lady, by Directum, 2.054, the brood mare of Solferino dam of Cloth of Gold, 2.25, by Moko dam June Fleetwood, by Simmons, and a mare by Jay Bird in foal to Peter the Ureat, 2.074. Solferino is now in foal to San Francisco 2.074, and she was left in Kentucky to be bred to Walnut Hall, 2.084. The four-year-old stallion has a lot of action and he is destined for the show ring.

SPORT

SANDY FERGSOUN AND FLYNN LONGER IN LIST OF HOPES

Moncton Man Was Out of Shape But Forced the Fight For Twelve Rounds--Flynn was Afraid--Very Poor Bout.

Boston, Jan. 4.—After last night's exhibition at the Armory A. A., Sandy Ferguson and "Porky" Flynn who boxed a 12-round draw, must be eliminated from the list of "hopes." Both were so bad that a good light-weight would have defeated either one of them.

Sandy was as slow as an old cart-horse, while Flynn was afraid of the bulk of flesh that Sandy was. The latter having trained for several weeks, must have had more than 10 pounds on Flynn. The big Moncton scrapper shaped up all right but when he started to get into action he caused the spectators to laugh, he was so bad.

SANDY DID FORCING

Sandy did what forcing was done, and he was so eager to annihilate "Porky" that he kept trying to land his right for several rounds. Flynn was watching for it, and when the blow did not go wild it landed on the back of Flynn's neck.

Sandy did not land the right more than a few times, once being in the sixth round, when Sandy chased Flynn against the ropes. Sandy then shot the right to the side of the face and stung Porky hard.

That was about the best blow Sandy landed with that hand. After a few rounds Sandy was coached to use his left, and in many of the rounds he planted it on Flynn's face and body. Several times Sandy became angry over not being able to land a good blow on "Porky" and when Sandy got him in a clinch he kept banging his right on Flynn's back.

Sandy also did considerable roughing when they were against the ropes. At the start of some of the rounds Sandy would run out of his corner as if he corner as if he were going to wind up the affair in quick order, but Flynn, who was expecting such a move, would slip out of his way.

THE CROWD LAUGHED

When Sandy would go into a clinch and he often did, he created considerable laughter. Though Flynn acted and looked as if he were afraid of his life he did manage to land some punches on the big fellow. The left he poked onto Sandy's nose or mouth, and the right he swung many times onto Sandy's ribs and kidneys.

Flynn also did a lot of backing away, and the way that Sandy would go after him in the hope of cornering him amused the spectators. Had Flynn showed more aggressiveness the bout would have had a better appearance, and though Flynn did outscore Sandy he would probably have had such a lead that he would have got the decision.

SANDY DISAPPOINTED

It was a big disappointment to Sandy, for he was telling his friends that he would defeat Flynn in quick time. The decision of a draw satisfied the spectators, who were glad when the bout was over.

At the close of the bout a butt of a lighted cigar that was dropped by one of the spectators in the raised seats ignited the flooring, but it was extinguished in such quick time that only a few spectators were aware of the incident.

HIGHLANDERS SELL AND SIGN PLAYERS

New York, Jan 4.—The New York American league club yesterday sold Pitcher Tom Hughes, Catcher Fred Mitchell and shortstop Edward Foster to the Rochester club of the Eastern league. Hughes previously played with Montreal and Newark, Mitchell with Toronto and Foster with Jersey City.

They are said to figure in the deal which brought Catcher Walter Blair back to the Highlanders at the tail end of last season.

The New York National club has signed Pitcher Harry Rustenhaven, a left-hander, drafted from the Abilene, Kan. team. Rustenhaven played semi professional ball last season with the Cheyenne Indians. For this combination he pitched two non-hit games. His home is in Cheyenne, Wyo.
