PRESIDENT TAFT'S PLEA FOR RECIPROCAL TRADE

Pays an Eloquent Tribute to Canada Which He Says Has Become a Great Country--- Declared That President McKinley in His Last Speech Advocated Reciprocity.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The last public utterances of President McKinley in favor of reciprocity, made the day before he was assassinated in Buffalo, were recalled today by President Taft in an address at the Ohio Society's anniversary banquet in commemoration of the McKinley birthday.

President Taft eulogized the character of the martyred president, and paid a high tribute to his attitude on the commercial expansion of the country, with particular reference to the declarations in favor of reciprocity generally made by President McKinley at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo.

"The broadening effect of the national responsibility McKinley had to carry," said President Taft, "shows itself in no respect more conspicuously than in this change of view on his part in respect of a policy of which he had always been the chief exponent. May we not hope that the change that he advocated may soon find expression in our national policy towards our good neighbor on the north, who has come half way to meet us?"

"May the fragrance of his beloved memory lead those upon whom is the responsibility, and incline their minds and hearts to this end."

"The Canadian agreement, if confirmed by executive action, will be a fitting close to a century's controversies and permanently establish good feeling between kindred peoples. We shall find a rapidly increasing market for our numerous products among the people of our neighbor. We shall deepen and widen the sources of our food supply in territory close at hand."

"Our kinship, our common sympathies, our similar moral and social ideas, furnish the strongest reason for supporting this agreement."

TRIBUTE TO CANADA.

"Canada is our neighbor for 3,000 miles. We have not always acted towards her in a manner most conciliatory with due regard to her sensibilities. She has become a great country—indeed a nation. She causes us to use no forts or battleships. She does not attack us and never will. She extends the brotherly hand of friendship and proposes closer relations with mutual benefits. Ought we to decline? The last words of McKinley urge acceptance. I am proud as a son of Ohio to bring forward for approval and effective action a measure carrying out the policy that he proclaimed and made his own at the acme of his great career."

"He (McKinley) felt the expansion of this country in a great world power. He saw the future growth of its commerce with other nations. He came to know that high protection policy was too provincial and that it was time to moderate it."

"A Chinese wall and entire exclusiveness did not commend themselves to him in the then state of the country and the development of its industries. He continued to believe in protection enough to prevent our industries from being destroyed by competition under conditions abroad that were impossible here, but he proposed to mitigate that exclusiveness of a protective tariff by reciprocity treaties that should reduce rates where the reductions would do no substantial injury to any class of our products or manufacturers, and would secure more favorable markets for our own goods."

"Accordingly, after his second election, at Buffalo, facing an immense audience in that Pan-American exhibition of industries, and looking over toward our sister country on the north, he spoke the words showing that he thought the time had come for greater liberality in our dealing with other countries, and for mutual benefits in reciprocal reductions of tariffs. I use his language, uttered on the day before he fell by the hand of the assassin."

QUOTES MCKINLEY.

"By sensible trade arrangements, which will not interrupt our home production, we shall extend the outlets for our increasing surplus. A system which provides a mutual exchange of commodities is manifestly essential to the continued health and full growth of our export trade. We may not repose in fancied security that we can forever sell everything, and buy little or nothing. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our industries and labor. Reciprocity is the natural outgrowth of our wonderful industrial development under the domestic policy now firmly established."

"What we produce beyond our domestic consumption must have a vent abroad. The excess must be relieved through a foreign outlet, and we should sell everywhere we can and buy wherever buying will enlarge our sales and productions, and thereby make a greater demand for home labor."

"The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem. Commercial wars are unprofitable. A policy of good will and friendly trade relations will prevent reprisals. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not. If perchance some of our tariffs are no longer needed, for revenue or to encourage and protect our industries at home, why should they not be employed to extend and promote our markets abroad?"

"Thus did McKinley in his last public utterances, declare for reciprocity."

THREE WERE KILLED BY FALLING SIGNBOARD

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Death swooped down upon a crowd of shoppers in busy Market street today, when a big heavy sheet metal sign, blown from a high roof fell among them and killed two men and a girl. A half dozen other persons were injured several so seriously that they were taken to the hospital.

THE DEAD

John Ellis, 40 years old of Philadelphia.

Henry Hahn, 56 years old, of Philadelphia.

Ruth S. Ribold, 17 years, of Philadelphia.

The sign was about twenty feet wide and ten feet high, and stood on the roof of a four story building in the heart of the retail shopping district. The street was crowded it being the noon hour. Without an instant's warning the sign, which was old, was wrenched from its fastenings by a high wind and fell to the sidewalk.

The greater portion of the heavy sign landed in the middle of the street and had it not been for this, the loss of life probably would have been greater.
