Earl Grey Loud in His Praises of the Dominion

At London Banquet Given in His Honor Ex-Governor General Made Notable Speech--Discussed the Canadian Elections --Unstinted in His Praise of Sir Wilfrid Laurier--No Question about the Loyalty of Canadians

London, Oct. 25.—The Royal Colonial Institute banqueted Lord Grey last night, Sir Lewis Harcourt colonial secretary, presiding and Lord Minto, Sir J. Bevan Edward, the Duke of Marlborough, and Earl of Carrington, Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, the Earl of Dundonald, and Earl Brassey being among those at the top table. The general body of guests included practically all the leading men in London and Canadian circles. The crush was so great that many of the guests were forced to dine in an ante-room. The total company nearly numbered 300.

Colonial Secretary Harcourt, in proposing Earl Grey's health, said his departure from Canada coincided with Sir Wilfrid Laurier's resignation. Sir Lewis was quite sure there could be no assembly of Englishmen who wouldn't wish at this moment to pay a tribute to that distinguished prime minister and express its grateful sense of the great services rendered for so many years to the progress and prosperity of the Dominion, to which he had devoted his intellect and energy. No divergences upon his latest policy could detract from the warmth and gratitude felt for the achievements of his past career. (Cheers.)

CANADA AND STATES

Turning to Lord Grey's return Sir Lewis said it was no reflection upon his able and distinguished successor to say that Canada would gladly have seen Earl Grey's governorship indefinitely prolonged. He quoted the many administrative acts for strengthening and solidifying, and even extending the Dominion during Earl Grey's office. During the last five years the Canadian Government had been in close touch with the Washington ambassador, and through him had negotiated a series of treaties and arrangements of the highest possible value to the amicable relations between Canada and the United States.

"I am not referring at this moment," added Harcourt, amidst laughter, "to the recent reciprocity proposals. I don't think in my official position any advantage would be gained by discussing those circumstances. I had in mind other agreements which in the public estimation have been overshadowed by those proposals. Practically every outstanding question between Canada and the United States has either been settled or placed in the way of settlement."

EARL GREY'S OTHER WORK

He then proceeded to say that Earl Grey had witnessed and assisted in the advanced naval and military protective forces of Canada. His governorship had witnessed perhaps the greatest and most rapid extension of commercial and agricultural prosperity ever recorded in Canada's history. The Colonial Secretary finally referred to the charm and ability displayed by Lady Grey and said he welcomed Earl Grey back as a great governor, a good fellow, and a true friend.

EARL GREY REPLIES

Earl Grey had a rousing reception on rising to respond. Alluding to his welcome, he said: "It is a great reward for seven years of constant effort to serve Canada and the Crown. I hardly think such a reward is deserved when the conditions of my governorship are considered. I have said more than once that I believe I have been privileged to occupy the most pleasant billet in the whole Empire. It is no ordinary privilege to be in an atmosphere of undiluted optimism and continued new development."

Earl Grey acknowledged the references to Lady Grey and his daughters and referred to the willing and ungrudging co-operation of his cheerful and sympathetic staff.

NO ANNEXATIONISTS HERE

"I feel," he continued, "with the shadow of governorship still upon me that it would be out of place to give expression to any individual views upon subjects in controversy. I can say, however, with the greatest confidence that, with the exception of an occasional crank here or there, it is impossible to find an annexationist throughout the whole of Canada. (Cheers.)

NO TARIFF CHANGE SOUGHT

"I say with equal confidence that notwithstanding some desire to the contrary, there is no expectation in Canada that the recent Canadian elections should be used for introducing any change into the tariffs of the United Kingdom. It cannot be too clearly understood that Canadians are as adverse to the idea of interfering in your local affairs as they are to any interference on your part in theirs. The method in which the self-governing dominion may collect revenue, requiring them to fulfill not only national but imperial obligations, is regarded by Canadians as a local matter, within the said jurisdiction of the dominions concerned. They do not wish to interfere with the desire of the people of the United Kingdom to raise their revenue in such a way as may seem best to them."

LAURIER AND RECIPROCITY

Earl Grey, proceeding, said the relation of Canada to the Empire was contained in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's words that the twentieth century be longed to Canada and in the greeting hung across an Ottawa street on the arrival of the Duke of Connaught, "The Empire is our country; Canada is our home."

N. S. LADIES IN BERMUDA

over seven hundred feet long, being the largest room in the world under one roof, and it is said that an army of 50,000 men could find room on its floor.

After an hour's rest at our hotel, we started on our trip to Mount Vernon, the country home and burial place of Washington in Virginia, seventeen miles away; the journey being made in the electric train. On our way we passed through the towns of Arlington and Alexandria, along the shores of the classic Potomac, through old Virginia. These are points of interest that appeal very strongly to the American, and even a loyal Briton cannot view without a thrill the room and very bedstead in which Washington died, and his tomb on the grounds adjoining. There are so many interesting things that could be said about this historic spot, that a whole article could be devoted to it alone, but time and newspaper space will not permit. We spent an hour here, in this lovely country mansion, containing so many relics of the past, viewing the various rooms which are as they were long ago—the kitchen with the great fireplace and brick ovens, where one may buy postcards and souvenirs, the music room with its ancient harpsichord, the west parlor with its old portraits, the library, the family dining-room, banquet hall, and room in which Washington died.

Outside the lawn slopes gently down to the Potomac, and across lie the green meadows of Maryland. The most remarkable feature of the garden is the hedges, said to have been planted over a century ago. The whole is very curious in design, the central space in each plot being occupied by a flower bed. But I must now pass on to a recital of our evening's doings, to bring this diary to an end.

We considered our day as far as sightseeing was concerned, well spent, but the best treat was yet to come the visit to the Library of Congress. This magnificent structure is a masterpiece of architecture, costing over six millions of dollars.

On entering the great central rotunda, one stands transfixed, marvelling at the grandeur of the scene. This is a magnificent apartment, lined throughout with white marble high, polished. Here one sees lofty round columns, with elaborate carvings, the arches adorned with palm leaves and designs of exquisite delicacy. The great height of this entrance hall with its grand double staircase and white marble balustrades makes an effect which may be fitly termed imposing. This is described in the guide book as a "vision in polished stone" and such it is.

The first floor contains the reading room, newspaper reading room, a nice room and map room. The galleries of the second floor contain engravings, rare books and portraits. Standing in one of these galleries and looking upward to the central dome, the scene of many thousand electric lights is one not to be forgotten.

I have tried to describe this building, and the description is inadequate. No pen picture can give any idea of its beauty; it must be seen and pondered over to be appreciated. If one sees no other building in Washington but this, it is well worth the trip.

Tomorrow we return to New York and after two days in that city will sail on the steamship "Bermudian" for a week's visit to those beautiful islands in the Atlantic famed in poetry and song as "The Bermudas, Land of the Lily and the Rose," of which I will write anon.
