IN THE HOUSE

It is sometimes urged by partisan opponents of Hon. Mr. Robinson that his moderation of political thought and utterance is a sign of weakness. In his moderation and his gentlemanly manner are to be found two of the reasons why Mr. Robinson enjoys as much general esteem throughout the province as any man in public life today. He added to his reputation in his brief address in the House on Thursday. He gave the government credit for accomplishment in several directions-and the government supporters pounded their desks in high hilarity. He quietly stated cases to show that the government has mis-spent hundreds of dollars in bridge work-and the government supporters failed to find the desk covers to pound. He quietly took up the mysterious case of the Albert Southern rails-and there was no applause from government benchers. So it ran. Where commendation was due the government the Opposition leader, with his characteristic manliness, gave that commendation. Where condemnation was deserved by the ministry the Opposition leader, with characteristic calmness, gave that condemnation. It will take a good deal of bluster and abuse to offset the effect of Mr. Robinson's address.

The report of his address is given on another page. It will bear careful reading. Perhaps, however, one or two points brought out may be emphasized in this column. For inof Westmorland. In one case the gov- House of Representatives today by and in this is the chief use of the structure. On another small bridge in Westmorland, which was to have been repaired by the former government at a cost of $50, just before the ministry went out of power, the present economical government spent no less than $1,100. Under the former extravagant ministry the bridge would have cost the people $50. Under the present economical administration it cost the people twenty times as much.

Coming to a reference to the Albert. Southern rails. Mr. Robinson smilingly reminded the House that after he had discussed the matter at the Hampton convention, Conservative papers had boastingly declared that when he met the Premier in the House he would be sorry that he had spoken. "Mr. Speaker," he said, "I am now face to face with the Premier. I am not sorry for what I said. I would have been sorry had I said anything that was not right." He then passed on to discuss the situation further. He pointed out that so far the public has no information whatsoever in regard to the disposal of the money received from the sale of the rails on which the province had a lien. Messrs. Fowler & Jonah, who have very frequently seemed to act as deputies for the present Attorney General, have apparently done about as they pleased. The public has no information. The creditors cannot find out what has been done. The Attorney General has not broken silence.

No doubt today the Premier will attempt to gloss over the difficult situation which Mr. Robinson has so well exposed. Judgment may probably be suspended until the government leader tells his story. But Mr. born things. He has not heard the never kink in sewing.

last of the Albert Southern mystery. There will be much more information for him and the public to consider before the session is brought to a

Mr. Robinson made many other telling points in his speech. It is not surprising that the government members endeavor to avoid stirring up the quiet, smiling leader of the Opposition. They have discovered that bluster and noise are not essential to effective political discussion.

The private government men who took part in the debate, Messrs. Hartt and McLachlan, delivered nice speeches and dutifully praised the government. Mr. Hartt had the advantage over his seconder in point of length of time taken up. The two were about on even terms as regards the harmlessness of their repective utterances. The Charlotte County member's special contribution to the debate was a back-handed slap at reciprocity, which for easily understood reasons, he did not risk condemning openly, and a glorification of the government's old friend, the Canadian Pacific.

The Premier in his address, spoke pleasantly, as always. As always, too, he went back into the past to recall alleged mistakes of the former ministry. As usual, also, he was carefully non-committal in respect to most of the issues of the present. Most notable was the colorlessness of his reference to the Valley Railway project. Where one might rightly have expected a clear-cut statement of the government's intentions in respect to this great question, there was evasion covered by many words. But Mr. Hazen must come out of the woods before very long Hiding among the timbers will not satisfy the people of the Valley who are demanding a competing trunk inion system of railways.

ROMAN CATHOLIC COLLEGE

Plainfield, N.J., March 2.—The main building of Mount St. Mary's College, a large and well-equipped Roman Catholic institution on Wachtung Mountain near here, which is attended by a number of Canadian students, was burned early today, entailing a loss of more than $200,000. The nearly 250 students and sisters in the structure got out in safety, argely owing to the heroism and presence of mind of the sisters.

Montreal, Mar. 1.—It was learned today that the capital stock of the $10,000,000 French Canadian bank is being offered by the underwriters at 1021, and that though a considerable portion has been subscribed, there still remains a large block to be disposed of at that price.

The name of the Bank has not yet been officially given, though the Government will be asked for permission to use the name of Banque du Can-There is little prospect however of this name being granted, owing to the national designation of the title. Mr. Fielding is known to be opposed to such a title for any bank, and his wishes are likely to be sustained by the committee which has the deciding of such matters. The price of 1021 seems very reasonable, considering the high premium at which all the bank stocks are selling on the stock exchange.

Tells What 7am-Buk Did For Him

Many famous persons have testified to the great value of Zam-Buk, and amongst the most recent is Admiral Rodney M. Lloyd. Writing from the Royal Naval Club, Portsmouth, England, Admiral Lloyd says:

"I have found Zam-Buk most reliable for healing cuts and abrasions; while for the relief of skin irritation it is invaluable."

Another famous user of Zam-Buk s Mr. Frank Scudamore, the War Correspondent, who supplied Canadian papers with their dispatches dur ing the Boer War. Mr. Scudamore says: "Some poisonous dye on my underclothing came in contact with a small ulcer on my leg and blood poisoning set in. Inflammation, pain and swelling followed.
