HON. MR. PUGSLEY DISCUSSES RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT

"To the farmers along the border counties of Quebec, and of Ontario bordering on the Great Lakes, the advantages of obtaining access to the markets of the great cities south of the border appeal with peculiar force.

"When you consider the marvellous development which is going on in the three prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the rapid increase in the production of wheat, you cannot wonder that the farmers of those provinces are so insistent in favor of obtaining the widest and freest possible markets for their products.

"Raising, as they do, the best wheat in the world, they are not afraid of competition from any quarter, and they earnestly request the opportunity to sell not only in the English market, and the other markets of Europe, but in the United States markets as well. This opportunity will, if the agreement is ratified, be secured for them without the sacrifice of any Canadian interest. If the agreement is carried into effect the growth of wheat on our western prairies will increase by leaps and bounds, and the general prosperity will be thereby vastly increased.

"Some people say that we should discourage these aspirations of the western farmers—that we should throw obstacles in the way of their securing a market for their products in the United States, but the western farmer replied: 'We will gladly send to the English and other European markets all the grain that those markets will take; we will cheerfully sell to the Eastern Canadian miller all the grain that he wishes to buy and for which he is willing to pay a fair price.' But they also say: 'We want the fullest liberty to do with our products as we please, to sell them in such markets as suit us best, and where we can dispose of them to the best advantage.'

"By this agreement we will have removed the shackles from the north-west farmer, and will have struck a mighty blow toward linking together the west and the east, and making the toiling masses of the people of Canada contented and happy citizens.

MANUFACTURERS CHANGE VIEWS.

"A considerable section of the financial and manufacturing interests of the east are beginning to feel that they would be making the greatest possible mistake from the national standpoint, not less than from the standpoint of their own interests in setting themselves up against the reasonable demands of the farmers of the west, for the widest and freest markets possible.

"As to the fishermen from east to west of Canada it is no wonder that the provision for the free admission of the products of their industry to what they recognized as their natural market wins their hearty approval. The Canadian fisheries are the most valuable in the world. They give employment to many thousands of people, and no well wisher of his country can be indifferent to any movement which makes, as this trade argument will, for their prosperity and happiness.

"To the miners, the more rapid influx of capital to develop our inexhaustible mineral resources, will mean also increased employment and at better wages. No one can persuade them that this agreement will not be good for them and for Canada."

"Is the annexation cry having any great effect among the people adverse to the agreement," Dr. Pugsley was asked.

"I do not think so," he replied. "At first quite a feeling was produced by the appeal of the 'interests' on this cry, and some people actually believed that it was a part of the agreement that Canada was in some way to become subject to the United States.

"I received a circular from the secretary of a society of very estimable but misguided ladies of Toronto, who appealed to me to oppose the agreement on the ground that it was calculated to 'invade the sanctity of the Canadian home,' referring, I presume, to the divorce laws of the United States. I have not heard as to the actions of the society lately, but I trust that by this time they will have realized that a purely trade arrangement under which two neighboring peoples will have liberty to trade with each other is in no way linked up with the laws of divorce.

SWEEPING CANADA

"In conclusion," the minister said, "let me add that the present clear understanding by a majority of the people that British preference, as Sir

Wilfrid Laurier so strikingly expressed it recently in London has been nailed to Canada's topmast, there to remain. That there is absolutely nothing in the agreement to prevent Canada increasing the British preference or making any agreement which may be open to us at any time, of having reciprocal trade within the empire; or—and is important to St. John—preventing the carrying out of the policy already announced to go into effect when the Transcontinental railway is completed—of limiting the British preference to goods coming direct to a Canadian port—has pretty effectively silenced the annexation cry.

"The wave of public opinion in favor of reciprocity is sweeping over Canada the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the 'interests' are powerless to stay its progress."

VIGOROUS DEMAND FOR RECIPROCITY IN THE WEST

Yorktown, Sas., July 5—"We are for reciprocity," was splashed over streets and plastered over the walls in the room in which Mr. R. L. Borden met the grain-growers at Melville this afternoon.

The usual automobile parade took place around the streets of the town, which has grown out of the prairie in three years. Solemnly automobiles drew up to be photographed, while on the extreme left a little bill fluttered in the wind like a mischievous spirit. It said "We want reciprocity."

A few minutes later Mr. Borden met the grain-growers in a small room, and again there was a dozen times on every wall, "We want reciprocity."

Agitated Conservative committee-men got them all torn down save one, which waggled in the draught behind Mr. Borden's head.

They wanted reciprocity, Mr. Borden told them they would not get it, if he could prevent it, so they were merely courteously tolerant of their distinguished visitor.

The rink is an enormous one, and the sparrows were very busy. Mr. Borden's voice tired, and the audience was most chilly. It was a sad meeting in spite of the unusual sunshine.

Delegates of twenty-two grain-growers' lodges, with a membership of seven hundred, were waiting for the train here. "We're unanimous," one of them said. "Our politics? Well, I guess I'm a Conservative, but we haven't asked our members what their party is."

Mr. Borden made an informal call on a delighted old gentleman named Mowbray, of Halifax, and then braced himself for more grain-growers.

They told him that reciprocity was the big thing with them, and that they wanted to know his full reason for opposing it.

They made the other usual requests. Frederick Kirkham wanted to know how it was that the Cockshutt plough from Brantford could be shipped to Des Moines, Iowa, then to Calgary, paying freight and duty twice, and be sold much cheaper than one direct from Brantford. Mr. Borden could not figure it out, and while anxious not to doubt the authenticity of the case preferred to have the evidence in his own hands.

The night meeting was particularly enthusiastic, with more cheering than usual. Dr. Roche was the only one who didn't get a particularly good reception, and he talked too long. Hugh Clark and his stories made a hit.
