ENORMOUS PRICES FOR BLACK FOXES

(St. John Telegraph.)

G. A. McBean, who is identified with the Charles Dalton Fox breeding ranch at Tignish, P.E.I., is registered at the Royal Hotel.

To The Telegraph yesterday Mr. McBean said that the fox breeding industry was rapidly assuming large proportions, and this year there was a large increase over last year's consumption. In 1910 at one time, he said, there were twenty-five pelts on the London market. One of these pelts was damaged and brought but $46, while two others brought respectively £1,530 and £1,500 and the average of the sales was $1,385.98. Those skins represented 35 per cent. of the total output of skins of that year, while in 1911 the prices ruled 25 per cent. higher, and this year an increase of from 30 to 50 per cent. was expected. Lampson, the largest fur firm in the world, said that the supply of fox skins will never be equal to the demand.

The valuable pelts, of course, were those of the black and of the silver foxes. The rarity of these breeds partly accounted for the strong demand for them, but there was another reason. The fur of these foxes was finer in appearance and softer than that of the ordinary red or blue fox. Another reason for the high price was that it was possible to gild or plate the tips of the hair and this quality was not possessed by the fur of any other breed of foxes.

It is understood, Mr. McBean said, that recently in New York there was only one set of fur of prime skins comprising a skin and muf and this was sold for $35,000 by one of the largest fur concerns in the world.

"In its wild state the fur of the little animal is not in such good condition as when it is domesticated," Mr. McBean explained, "as its food supply is much less regular, it tears through the woods and the skin receives rough usage that naturally leaves it in a bad state. When the fox is domesticated it receives proper and regular food and careful attention and the fur is not abused in any way, so that the health of the animal soon shows itself in the improvement in the texture of the fur. Careful and scientific selection in breeding also is gradually improving the stock and a careful record of the different foxes is kept by the important ranchers."

The natural beauty of the fur of the black fox, Mr. McBean said, and its magnificent effect as an article of women's dress, will ensure a demand that will never fail.

Apparently any climate that was suitable for raising fur-bearing animals was suitable for fox ranching, added Mr. McBean, and while Prince Edward Island was at present the main place for the industry, that had occurred probably because it was first commenced there and took root and prospered. The industry was rapidly assuming wide dimensions, and last week six pairs of foxes were shipped to Russia at the price of $100,000 and inquiries were being received from all parts of the world for the foxes.

When asked why this business had not long before come into a more active state, Mr. McBean said that the few men who had bred foxes had done so very quietly indeed, anxiously guarding their secret and making enormous profits that were not pub-

HON. WILLIAM PUGSLEY

Mr. Lemieux--What do you say about that?

Mr. Pugsley--I was not surprised at my hon. friend's statement, knowing the flights that his imagination takes at times, I would not be surprised at anything he might say.

I will not detain the House longer. Let me just say in conclusion that the government knows what the policy of the Liberal party was. The government has before it the resolution unanimously passed by this parliament. In any policy which looks toward the building of a great and strong Canadian navy, which looks towards having that navy controlled by the people of Canada, a navy which shall be strong and great and always available for the defense of Canada, and in times of stress for the defence of the empire--if that should be their policy when they bring it down--they will receive the hearty and loyal support of the Liberal members of parliament and of the Liberal electors in Canada, from one end of the country to the other, irrespective of province, irrespective of race, irrespective of creed.

lished. Eventually it had leaked out and soon it was recognized that there were large profits to be made raising foxes, and the P.E.I. men took care to get in first.

Was Afraid COLD WOULD DEVELOP INTO • Bronchitis.

Bronchitis begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty of breathing, and a wheezing sound comes from the lungs. There is also a raising of phlegm from the lungs, especially in the morning. This is at first white, but later becomes of a greenish or yellowish color, and is occasionally streaked with blood.

On the first sign of a cold or cough take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and prevent it turning to bronchitis, for once bronchitis gets installed into the system it is only a short step to Consumption.

Mrs. F. Saunders, Toronto, Ont., writes: "It is with great success I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. My little girl had an awful cold which seemed to go to her throat and chest, and while she was sleeping one could distinctly hear her wheezing. I was afraid it would develop into Bronchitis, so as soon as my husband came home I sent him right away to get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. As soon as she awakened up I gave her a dose and continued its use until she became quite better. We only used half a bottle. I will never be without it as I consider it invaluable."

Be sure you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. The price is 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Put up in a yellow wrapper, and three pine trees the trade mark.
