TWO STEEPLEJACKS FIGHT IN MID-AIR

Lawrence, Mass., July 21.—Women wept, and men shouted in excitement yesterday afternoon, while thousands watched two steeplejacks, one crazed by the heat, battle for life on the top of a 150-foot stack at Kunkard's milk.

After a struggle of fifteen minutes on the top of a fragile scaffold in mid-air, Patrick Sennings, thirty-five years old, succeeded in subduing John Cavanagh, five years his senior, who had suffered sunstroke.

Then, without losing his nerve, Jennings lowered himself and Cavanagh to the ground, where he fainted. Cavanagh was removed to a hospital, where he is dying from sunstroke.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—Prayer and gospel meetings in forty churches, numerous hotels, office buildings and factories and on many of the principal street corners of Milwaukee will form a part of the programme of the annual national convention of the Gideons, which began in this city today and will continue over tomorrow and Sunday. The Gideons are an organization of commercial travellers banded together to spread the gospel and to promote religious and charitable work. Their special aim is to reach the travelling public and to this end they have undertaken the stupendous task of placing a copy of the Bible in every guest room of every hotel in the United States and Canada.

STRAY TOPICS FROM LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

(Special Correspondence)

New York, July 22.—The hot weather of the past few weeks seems to have had a stimulating effect upon the degenerates and criminals in this city and they kept the police extremely busy. Fortunately the heat also seemed to stimulate the energy and ingenuity of the officers of the law and in several cases they succeeded in making important captures. Among the miscreants arrested were two boys, undoubtedly degenerates, who had for some time derived "great fun" from shooting at inoffensive persons, mostly children. Several children were shot by the young criminals and one of their victims, at least, has but little hope of recovering. The older of the two boys, who was positively identified as one of the assailants, is about fifteen or seventeen years of age and has already a criminal record. For stealing a bicycle he was committed to the Catholic Protectory, from which institution he was released only a few days before his arrest for shooting several children.

It was quite characteristic of the ice trust that the price of ice was raised during the recent hot spell. It was not claimed that last winter's ice crop had been a failure or even short; neither did the officials of the trust give as an excuse that the ice cost the trust more during hot weather than at other times. The only reason given for the increase in price was, that owing to the heat the demand for ice had increased and the trust found it difficult to supply the suddenly increased demand, owing to the poor system of distribution employed by the subordinate companies making the deliveries to the consumers.

There are some men in the fraternity of crooks who are well educated and clever enough to make a success in some honest calling, could they only resist the temptation of preying upon the rest of mankind. There are, for instance, two clever crooks well educated and apparently not without refinement, who make a specialty of robbing jewelers by substituting paste rings for valuable diamond rings and pawning or selling the latter. One of the men, who signs himself the "Bear-Headed Pennyweight," seems to find a peculiar pleasure in writing letters full of humor and sarcasm to the jewelers' Circular Weekly after every successful coup. In his last communication to the trade paper named the literary crook explained that he had some time ago "retained for inspection" a ring with a nice Cape diamond from the largest jewelry store in Newark, N. J., and that he had pawned the bauble for 150 with a pawnbroker in Brooklyn.

Strange to relate, the Newark jeweler referred to did not know that he had been robbed until his attention was called to it by the letter sent to the jewelers' trade paper. The ring was found in the pawnbroker's shop mentioned in the letter. The writer of the letter evidently had a grudge against the pawnbroker, because the latter had refused to lend more than $125 for the same ring, when the crook offered it as security after he had redeemed it once.

All the shady seats in Union Square were taken the other day toward the end of the noon hour. There were plenty of vacant seats in the sun, but it was a scorching hot day. A young man and a girl strolled into the park from Broadway, and, finding no place to rest, obtained by strategy what they could not get by fair means.

Standing near enough to the sitters to be heard, the young man remarked: "It's pretty near time he passed over."

"Who?" innocently asked the girl, not seeing what her companion was getting at.

"Why, Wilbur Wright. He's going to circle the Metropolitan Tower today. Starts from Garden City. It's five minutes of it now let's go and see him. He's to be here at 1."

The report that one of the Wrights was to do an air stunt spread rapidly, and as the Metropolitan Tower could not be seen from the choice spot in which the youth had selected to sit, more than half of those occupying the benches started off. Two of the coolest, shadiest seats were then selected by the youth, and he and his companion sat down for a pleasant chat.

The mountain regions of Kentucky have always had the reputation of being the home of the "Moonshiners," as the makers of illicit whisky and brandy are called. But how true that may have been once upon a time, it is no longer so. Of course, there may still be a few small stills hidden away in the lone mountain cabins or in caves of the old Kentucky "Moonshine" districts but the amount of "mountain dew" produced there is scarcely worth mentioning compared with the capacity of the "Moonshine" distillery raided in Brooklyn the other day. The Government's revenue agents, who had done a clever bit of detective work, arrested six men and seized 2,000 gallons of illicit brandy and two stills, capable of producing 150 gallons each per day.

The Rev. William Stone, pastor of the Broad Street Methodist Episcopal Church in Trenton, N. J., has started a movement among the girls in his congregation which is rather unusual in connection with a church. He has organized a Girl Rangers Club and has established a range, where he instructs the sweet girls in the proper and efficient use of fire arms. As a side line he will also instruct the girls in gymnastics and he hopes that before the summer is over every one of the "Rangers" will be a crack shot.

The trees in Central Park and in other parks of the city are covered with caterpillars, who are making short work of the foliage. The Park Department's attention has been directed to this fact by many well meaning citizens, but the informants invariably received the reply that they must be mistaken. They were told that the Park Department had several men looking after the trees and that they were fully capable of holding the caterpillar pest in check. In the meantime the caterpillars, undisturbed and unmolested by poison or traps, continue to feast upon the choicest leaves and the trees are beginning to look like shaggy brooms.

VALLEY RAILWAY CONFERENCE AT OTTAWA

(Victoria County News)

Hon. J. K. Flemming, Acting Premier, and A. R. Gould, president of the St. John & Quebec Railway Company held a conference at Hotel Perth on Thursday of last week. The two men met by appointment, Mr. Flemming coming by train from Peel and Mr. Gould motoring from Presque Isle. They were together about an hour when they returned to their homes.

The two men talked over the Valley railway situation but afterwards refused to make any statement. It is generally believed that Gould will be one of the tenderers to build the road or a portion of it. Mr. Flemming afterwards stated that negotiations looking to the construction of the road were proceeding favorably and that he hoped to be able to make an announcement that a contract had been consummated before long.

HEAVY VOTE IN TEXAS

Dallas, Texas, July 22.—Following the close of one of the most interesting and bitterly fought campaigns in the history of the State, a special election is in progress throughout Texas today to decide upon the proposed amendment to the constitution for State-wide prohibition. The early reports from all quarters of the State indicate an unusually heavy vote. The anti-prohibitionists declare they will win by a substantial margin. Similar expressions of confidence are also heard at the prohibition on headquarters. The definite result may not be known before Monday, particularly if the vote is close.

The union machinists of New York are winning their fight for the eight-hour day. Up to the present time more than sixty New York firms have signed agreements with the unions on the eight-hour basis.
