INTERESTING GOSSIP ON FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, Aug. 5.—Although the women in Paris have taken up the little coat with enthusiasm, as one of the most charming features of this summer's fashions. It is a remarkable fact that these little coats have found but few friends in this country so far. I think some of the importing houses here are displaying a few charming models of such coats and here and there one may see a woman wearing one, but in Paris they are all the rage, and deservedly so.

The prominent French designers, who have shown some of the handsomest models of such coats do not wish the little coats to be considered separate coats. For that reason they repeat the color or trimming of the coat somewhere about the frock, very lightly, perhaps, very unobtrusively, but firmly enough to link the component parts of the costume into one homogeneous whole. Yet this is not always the case, and the thrifty and clever woman may make her piquant little coat do duty with more than one costume if she so wishes.

Broderie anglaise is a popular material for the short coat, and in linen or in cotton, as the French call the fine handkerchief linen, to distinguish it from toile, which is our linen, with revers and trimming of silk or velvet or plain linen it works out very charmingly. Where worn with a sheer lingerie frock into whose trimming a little of the broderie anglaise enters, such a coat is very pretty, but its use is by no means limited to association with the sheer white lingerie stuffs. This openwork embroidery is usual in handsome quality upon everything from silk muslin to satin and serge.

Used under sheer semi-transparent materials of color or black this popular embroidery is to be seen on all kinds of frocks, its bold openwork design showing charmingly through the cloudy veillings. Bands of the openwork embroidery trim silk, marquise, chiffon, linen, tulle and every material, and it is combined with the finest and the heaviest of laces.

Short coats are formed of lace, as well as of embroidery, though the lace is more often used in combination with embroidery than alone, and the coat, entirely of lace, seldom has the cachet of the little silk coats. Big collars of lace or embroidered muslin almost hide some of the little silk coats. A short taffeta costume with a coat of the taffeta, bordered in bouillonnees and sporting a big fichu of flat, overlapping pointed edge fichu of flat, overlapping pointed edge and embroidered muslin flounces had a tunic of the taffeta over an undershirt of the overlapping embroidery flounce.

The very short bolero-like coat, belted just below the bust line and with a little frill falling below the girdle, was introduced among the first of the short coats and is still greatly liked. The girdling and belting of coats of all kinds is noticeable in the late summer modes and produces some odd effects as well as some very delightful results. With the lowering of the modish waistline this girdling arrangement naturally assumes a Russian blouse character, and this has given rise to a rumor that the Russian blouse will be here again in the autumn. At all events, belted coats of one kind or another are fairly sure to find a place among fall modes.

Director coats cut squarely away at the high waist line in front and falling in a long, straight panel or coat tail in the back, are made up without trimming other than big, soft fichus, of fine muslin or net bordered by tiny frills and frills of the same sheer material finishing the half-length sleeves.

Black and white are still greatly worn in spite of the outcry about their over-popularity, and the frocks in this coloring are often the prettiest seen at smart functions. There has been a fad for sheer white over black as a change from the long adorned sheer black over white, and several of the great dress-makers have laid considerable stress upon this arrangement.

Practically all lingerie now is built on the simplest lines, so that the narrow lines of the frock may not be interfered with, and many dress-makers advise corsets that lace in front because of the narrowness and plainness of skirts at the back. Many women, however, dislike the front-lacing corsets. New corsets are very low at the top, to give a low-busted figure, but at the lower edge the material is built down to keep the hips in subjection.

The very newest notion in lingerie is the nightgown embroidered in color, and come of these little gowns are exceedingly dainty. The ribbon run through the embroidered eyelets, of course, matches the embroidery in tints. A pretty little French robe de nuit seen the other day had a yoke and diminutive sleeves of pink silk, scalloped and embroidered by hand, the scallops being laced together down the arm with aink ribbons run through eyelets. Yoke and mainbock gown were joined under a beading, also run with pink ribbon. In the skirt of the gown were set two bands of the pink mull between two bands of lace.

The fichu and the jabot still continue to dominate the neckwear situation in the shops. Table after table is piled with fluffy whiteness and amazing bargains are to be picked up now in graceful fichus and the one-sided coat frills which are so smart.

The sailor collar, made of sheer lawn, or organdie, with an inch-wide hem at the edge, is a pretty addition to cotton frocks of dainty coloring, and these collars are matched by cuffs which suggest the deeply hemmed organdie cuffs worn by a widow.

The regulation four-in-hand tie in all the new colors of silk and other materials is worn with the linen collar and strictly tailored shirtwaist, this season. These ties are also tied with a loose knot caught by a colored silk ring. Color is used to quite an extent in tailored neck wear in various touches, either in the trimming or in the material. There are also many pretty novelties in bow form.

Silk and satin bows in combination with white lace are popular. Black satin and white lace, or satin of color and lace are in many attractive forms. Novelties in the form of flowers and fruit are worn at the base of the high collar to give an effective touch of color. Black velvet is the favored foundation for these little novelties, and the flowers or fruit of ribbon are attached to it or are arranged in dangling form.

Tailored stocks and jabots are made from both white and colored handkerchiefs. A pretty jabot is made from two small handkerchiefs, to be worn with a colored collar a collar matching the jabot. Cut off a small corner from each handkerchief to make a tiny bow at the top. Use the three-cornered sections of both handkerchiefs to form ends of the jabot.

Small hats, with the sugar loaf model as the leader, are expected to be fashionable this autumn.
