BRITAIN'S BIGGEST BATTLE INSPIRATION TO CANADA

Sir Alan Aylesworth's Message To The Liberals of Canada--Must Fight For People's Cause--An Eloquent Tribute To Sir Wilfrid Laurier--Minister Of Justice Delivers Rattling Speech At New Market, Ont., Increasing Deafness Necessitates Retirement from Politics

Newmarket, Aug. 13--It was a memorable meeting. Electors of North York and their ladies thronged the Newmarket Town Hall to the doors. Seats early Saturday evening, were at a premium, and scores of sturdy-limbed farmers and artisans stood, flooding the entrances through out. The proceedings were alike serious and enthusiastic. A strong bond of comradeship has established itself between these men and the distinguished statesman who came to them more than Minister of Justice and Canadian diplomat. The relationship was the closer one of constituent and member. They had experienced something of a personal share in the honor of his membership in the Government and his achievements in international diplomacy. They sat in sympathetic silence as he bespoke feelingly his appreciation of their friendship and support, and his sorrow that the growing affliction of deafness precluded further service. But the hall rang with applause when the speaker added heartily, "but I am in the fight till the end, and victory." They cheered his tributes to the great Liberal leader, and his eloquent exposition of the issue. And they welcomed the men he introduced, the successor upon whom his mantle has fallen.

REASON FOR DISSOLUTION

The reason for the premature dissolution of Parliament Sir Alan Aylesworth gave frankly at the outset. "There is no reason to be mealy-mouthed about it, or beat about the bush," said he. "Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave the obstructionists perfectly plain warning of what was going to come if they continued the costly burlesque of Parliament and waste of public time. The Government of which I am still a member had no wish to end Parliament before its term. We had everything to gain by waiting. The census insured largely increased representation in western Canada. We want to wait until the west secured the additional representation to which it is entitled. This was proper, but, moreover, it was to our interest." Sir Alan related that he had met Mr. A. Wilson of Sharon, who had just returned from a trip through the west. "I didn't talk to a single man all through the west," the Sharon man told him, "who was not enthusiastically for reciprocity. There is no difference of party. The whole country is unanimous."

AFRAID OF WESTERN DELUGE

"The Tories knew this," continued the Minister of Justice. "They also knew that they would have no chance at all when the people had experienced the great benefits of reciprocity in operation. They knew they couldn't be worse off than they are, and thought they had better take the chance before it was too late for anything but a deluge. The Tory party knew, after the Borden trip of last summer, that there was nothing for them in the west. They knew there was no hope for them after redistribution of representation to which it was entitled. So they returned to Ottawa to obstruct the business of the country, announced that they intended to force an immediate election, and then when it came instantly began to whine and complain. Mr. George E. Foster, no less, is telling the Tories--I quote, with an apology, his own elegant words--'we brought them to their milk.' Well, fellow-electors, we are not looking for trouble, but thank heaven, we are not running away from it." (Applause.)

THE COST OF OBSTRUCTION

The Minister of Justice dealt briefly with the situation prior to dissolution. It cost the country some $5,000 per day to keep Parliament in session. For two weeks the Opposition had deliberately thrown this public money away. Unless the rules were changed Parliament was no place for any man whose time was worth something. Through it all the Opposition leader was crying aloud for an election and an appeal to the people, but when it came he was the first man to whine and complain. "This is so sudden," (Laughter and applause.) The Minister advocated a change in the rules of the House of Commons under which such senseless waste of time in premeditated obstruction could not take place. The Liberal party in England had to adopt such a course, and it would be necessary for Canadian Liberals to deal with obstruction which sought to impede the onward march of progress in Canada.

CAMPAIGN OF NOISY INANITIES.

Sir Alan Aylesworth analyzed the reciprocity agreement from an economic standpoint. All progressive civilized countries were seeking new markets. The development of trade spelled prosperity. The question was whether Canada was willing to deal with men who offered to buy from her. There was no necessity for selling to the United States, even under the reciprocity agreement, if any were afraid that their loyalty would be affected. The trade agreement was a business matter. It was not a matter for high philippics or the eloquence of self-constituted "patriots." It was an issue solely affecting trade conditions.

TO EMULATE OLD ENGLAND

The time had come in Canada, as it had come in Britain, when liberalism must wage its battle with and for the people. As a Liberal he exulted in the triumph of Prime Minister Asquith of Britain in the battle of the masses against the classes. It was an inspiration to Canadian Liberalism in its battle for the people against moneyed interests, which sought to use the tariff to build up trusts and combine to the detriment of the nation. Although he was precluded from being a standard-bearer in the battle, Sir Alan declared his determination to fight to the end and victory. (Renewed cheers.)

REASON FOR RETIRING

Realizing the handicap of his deafness, the Minister said he had determined to withdraw from public life at the time of the North York convention ten weeks ago. Hon. Mr. Graham, his good friend and adviser, however, urged that it would not be fair to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then in England, to act in his absence, and accordingly he had waited, under the conditions then specified. "I take leave of you as your member now," he added, "only because I know that Liberalism is going to sweep the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, because of my confidence that North York will again be on the winning side, and because I realize that my good friend Mr. Roblin can do better work, both for you and the country, than I, under the affliction from which I suffer, could hope to do."

The parting had cost him much. He had learned to know and to love "that best of men and best of friends Sir Wilfrid Laurier." (Loud cheers.) "I went into public life because he asked me to do so," continued Sir Alan. "It was a dazzling thing to me, the honest ambition of any lawyer, to occupy even for a short time the position of Minister of Justice, in succession to such men as Sir John Macdonald, Edward Blake, Sir John Thompson, Sir Charles H. Tupper, Sir Oliver Mowat and Sir Charles Fitzpatrick. But deafness has meant that everything for me must change. I can no longer appear before the courts, and it ends my usefulness in public life. It is I confess a source of keen pride to me that every man on our side of Parliament more than 130 of them, have generously urged me to stay. I believe them to be honest in their kind words, but I do think their liking for me has carried away their best judgment. They must realize in their secret heart that, handicapped as I am, I would prove a source of weakness and not of strength. That is the sole reason I have felt that for me these days are ended. It would not be fair to the Government, to my party, or to the country to continue longer in office."

THE WORTH OF SIR WILFRID

Sir Alan Aylesworth paid an eloquent tribute to his chieftain. "It was with indignation," he said, "that I read in a Toronto Conservative paper an article headed, 'Aylesworth Forsakes Laurier.' When I forsake Laurier the breath will forsake me. (Loud applause.) Ah, fellow-electors, I know the man. I have tourist travel between the United States and the Maritime Provinces, the governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick be memorialized by this Board to so improve the highway between the United States boundary and Halifax, via St. John, also between Campbellton and Moncton, in order to make them more suitable for tourist and general travel, and that a committee of members be appointed by this Board to prepare such a memorial and take such further action as may be necessary to further the object of this resolution.

A clause asking the P. E. Island government to repeal the prohibition against auto running was withdrawn at the request of the P. E. Island delegates.

The matter of better roads took a wide discussion and W. B. Snowball, F. W. Sumner and others advocated the government borrowing from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 and constructing permanent roads in the province. The discussion was participated in by S. W. Miller, E. A. McCurdy, Newcastle; Davidson, Halifax; E. C. Cole, Moncton; G. Stead, Chatham; A. M. Bell, Halifax; J. A. Brace, Summerside; F. McDougall, J. T. Pawke, Moncton, and others. The resolution was finally adopted.

The Board then adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9.30. A trip to the oil wells is planned for tomorrow afternoon and the delegates will be banqueted in the evening.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The president, Capt. J. E. Masters of Moncton, in his annual address, pointed to a strong feeling in the Maritime Provinces for better roads and urged a bigger share of immigration for the Maritime Provinces. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, he said, could today offer better inducements to the farmer and can hold out just as good prospects to manufacturers and laborers as any country in the world. He called attention to the discovery and development of gas and oil near Moncton and gave a brief sketch of their development. Not only would this be a great benefit to Moncton, but to the whole Maritime Provinces.

sat back to back in the House. I have sat at his left hand in Cabinet Council. I know him intimately and thoroughly. I have seen him in every mood, and I come to you and tell you from the fullness of my heart that he is a man among men, and that I shall deem it a privilege to be his friend and supporter as long as life is left me. There is not a thought, nay, not a breath drawn by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that is not single to the good of Canada and her people. He is a loyal British subject, a true believer in that form of Imperialism which he thinks and I think is the true form that Imperialism which gives to every component part the fullest freedom, and seeks equally the well-being and closer binding together of the whole. (Roused cheers.) Amid the shrieking and shouting of smaller men with unworthy motives let me leave this with you. It is my earnest word to you as a man going out of public life: You can trust Laurier. He is worthy of your confidence in every sense. They tell you that the Government had become corrupt, that improperly and wrong are permitted to stalk at large. Intimately associated with him and his Government as I have been, if such were the case I would know it. It is not true. In the hundreds of thousands of transactions which devolve upon the departments of government it may be that here and there men have taken advantage of their dealings with the Government to collect more than their work was worth. It must, I fear, always be so, but none has more firmly sought and succeeded in administering Canada's gigantic business with strict uprightness and integrity than has Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is due that I should leave this conviction with you."
