CANADIAN IMMIGRATION AGENT IN BOSTON RECALLED

(The Boston American.)

Thomas Hetherington, veteran of many a Canadian political fight, and who has made friends right and left since he came to the States seven years ago, is getting ready to pack his kit, close up his immigration bureau in the Tremont Building and doff his official toga.

He loses his office of Canadian immigrant agent in Boston. And thereby, say his friends, hangs a little story.

Mr. Hetherington favored reciprocity. He is a Laurier man. He is a Liberal. The reform, as his friends explain, when reciprocity lost out and the Conservatives went "in," it was not surprising to them that an order came for Mr. Hetherington to close up his office with the dying of the old year. Just how long the office is to remain closed nobody seems to know. Some say it is certain to be re-opened with a new man, perhaps of a different complexion politically, to take charge of the roll top desk and office fixtures and the New England field.

Mr. Hetherington established the office and has done mighty fine work while he has been in Boston, everybody must admit. Just take a look at his record:

In six years and eleven months, directly or indirectly, he has been the cause of Canada's getting about 15,000 new citizens, along with about $8,000,000 in cash or other worldly possessions, mostly cash. All of which was certainly worth while.

But the old law of "to the victor goes the spoils," if such it is in this case, holds good across the line. Mr. Hetherington, however, isn't looking at it that way. He's good-natured and cheery. Eighty years of age? Yes, that he is, but looking eighty years young, active as can be—his record proves his ability to accomplish things. He expects to go back to his old estate, Cody's in New Brunswick.

"I have enjoyed my stay here and my work," he said recently. "New England people have treated me finely. I am just as much a Canadian as ever. I do hope that the day will come when the Maritime Provinces will enjoy reciprocity with the States."

"What is your attitude on Canadian reciprocity?"

"I felt very favorably towards reciprocity," was his reply. "I looked upon reciprocity as one of the most important national steps the Province of New Brunswick has ever had offered to her. I have been in line for reciprocity on natural products ever since Sir John Macdonald brought the matter up in Canadian politics."

"In my opinion Canada and more particularly the Maritime Provinces, has sustained an irreparable loss in the defeat of reciprocity. Perhaps I should not say irreparable, for the day may come when such an agreement will go through."

WABASH RAILWAY IN RECEIVER'S HANDS

(Canadian Press.)

St. Louis, Dec. 19.—Receivers will take charge of the Wabash Railway as soon as they appear before Judge Adams in the United States court, and qualify by giving $300,000 bond each. These bonds must be given in ten. Henry Miller, manager of the road, in a statement today says the receivership in no way will affect the operation of the road, which has 16,000 employees. Frederick A. Delano of Chicago, president of the road; Edward B. Pruett of St. Louis, vice-president, and W. K. Balby, of St. Louis, are the receivers appointed late yesterday by Judge Adams on the application of the Western Union Air Brake Company of Pittsburg, who filed a claim of $18,000 and alleged the road was insolvent and unable to meet unpaid vouchers of $1,800,000 and had bonded obligations due January 1, 1912, which will be defaulted.
