Give your servants GOLD DUST to clean with, treat them rightly and you will have few occasions to insert a "help wanted" ad

They say a good workman is known by his tools. You cannot expect your maid to keep everything ship-shape unless you give her every modern help. To keep house without GOLD DUST is to do work by hard, old-fashioned methods. For cleaning everything and anything about the house—from cellar to attic—GOLD DUST is worth its weight in gold. It cuts grease and dirt like magic, does away with scouring and scrubbing, and saves time and tempers.

Your servant can do more and better work and keep sweet with the aid of GOLD DUST in all household cleaning.

TY COBB AND LAJOIE AT TOP OF AMERICAN BATTING LIST

Honus Wagner Leading Nationals in Stick Work
With Meyers of The Giants Close Behind—
McLean Batting 308

It is again a battle royal between Ty Cobb and Napoleon Lajoie for the batting honors of the American league. Only 13 points separate them.

Since his return to the game following an injury of the early spring, Lajoie has hit the ball in excellent shape. His work against Joe Wood last week, when he secured four hits out of five times up, proved that even a star boxman has no terror for the big Nap. All of his four hits were for extra bases, he getting three doubles and a home run. Cobb, was unable to better his average of a week ago, though he hit consistently in all the games played. He has now passed the 175 mark in base hits and should make 200 in a few weeks. His ambition is in hammer out 300 hits, but it is doubtful he will attain that mark. Clarence Walker, a Washington pickup, is winning fame as a batsman. He ranks third on the list and judging from his work his average should not be considered fluky. Jackson of Cleveland continues to maul all pitchers and his average shows a jog upward each week.

Eddie Collins bettered his average .350 mark. His associate Malinin, first base, held his average of last week is giving much satisfaction at week.

Jimmy Callahan and Brisco Lord, who were causing all manner of favorable comment by their phenomenal hitting a few months ago, are now scarcely in the .300 class. Schaefer of the Washingtons is another man who has been tumbling consistently of late and he has none too certain a hold on the .300 mark. The average, including Friday's games.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Honus Wagner is once more at the top of the National league batters, having supplanted his teammate, Jack Ferry, who is four times at bat last week failed to get a hit, and fell back from .400 to .333. The league presents 19 men who are batting .300 or better, which is two less than last week. Hoblitzel of the Reds and Mike Donlin having fallen out of the class.

The most notable work of any of the National league players with the stick last week was that of young Fletcher of the Giants, who took a jump from .304 to .331, putting him in fifth place, being preceded by Myers, Esmond and Ferry, of whom Esmond and Ferry have taken part in many less games. The work of Myers is notable; he has always been a hard hitter, but to hold the position of runner-up to Wagner is beyond the fondest hopes of his more ardent admirers. He also is a more finished catcher now than he was last year.

Fred Clarke is still finding the ball regularly, and the Phillies were lucky in securing Luderus from the Cubs, for he is still hitting hard, and to his batting as well as the fine pitching of Alexander and Chalmers, can be placed the major part of the credit for the good standing of the Quakers. The two Cubans, Marsans and Almeida, are still among the leading hitters, and strangely enough each had a mark of .324.

For a pitcher, Adams of the Pirates is showing unusually well with the stick, with the average of .323. He and Suggs of the Cincis seem to be the only pitchers that are able to hit as well as hurl. Cincinnati presents six men among the 20 leading hitters, Pittsburgh four, Philadelphia two, Chicago two and Boston and St. Louis one each. Brooklyn is still unrepresented. The average up to and including Friday's Games follows:—

BASE RUNNING WEARS OUT BRILLIANT BATTERS

This is Honus Wagner's 15th successive year as a .300 and better batsman and it is Ty Cobb's sixth. The chances are that Cobb will not equal Wagner's record in point of years, for it will be wonderful if his physique will stand the strain he is constantly imposing upon it. Wagner is built to stand the wear and tear better than the brilliant Cobb, whose legs are likely to give out as did Willie Keeler's and Dave Fultz's after years of desperate base running.

"Pop" Anson batted for .300 and better for the first fifteen years existence and then after a hiatus of two years proceeded again in the .300 class for five straight years. He probably could have kept on batting in that exclusive class for some years after he retired. "Pop" had grown old and had slowed down naturally and not from results of wear and tear. Base running was not his forte.
